ENGLAND ALARMED—MUST RUSH TROOPS TO FRANCE

LONDON, Aug. 29 (10.46 a. m.)—A Daily Mail editorial concerning the concentration of the Germans in immense strength to crush the British expeditionary force says:

"The Germans have brought the stupendous odds of three to one against the British soldiers, of whom we may well feel proud; but the situation is most critical. France has done everything in her power. Russia cannot help except by indirect pressure. Great Britain alone can find more men and find them she must. The nation must prepare on a collosal scale and must send every man and every gun that can be spared here and now to the decisive point in France."

GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS CROSS RHINE

ROME, Aug. 29 (12.28 p. m.)—A despatch to the Giornale D'Italia from Basel, Switzerland, says three German army corps, two Austrian army corps and a great quantity of siege artillery have crossed the Rhine.

BERLIN REPORTS DEFEAT OF RUSSIANS—AUSTRIANS ALSO PURSUING RUSSIANS

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—By wireless to the Associted Press via Sayville, L. I.—News of the defeat of five Russian army corps to the south of Allenstein is made public here today. It is regarded as encouraging and as greatly relieving the situation in East Prussia.

The Associated Press has been informed from official Austrian sources that the battles which have been in progress for several days past are expected to be decisive. Austrian troops are pursuing the Russians from Krasnik, about 20 miles north of the Galician frontier in the direction of Lubin.

There is no invading army between the river Bug and the river Wieprz. (These rivers are affluents of the Vistula and embrace a territory located to the east of Warsaw).

Austria, according to this same authority has invaded Russia and has occupied the region in front of Zamose.

The Austrians hold the regions to the west, north and southeast of Lemberg, Galicia, and have advanced toward the Dniester river against strong invading forces of the enemy.

No news was received here today concerning the situation on the French frontier beyond a special despatch to the Take Zeitung declaring that the British defeat at St. Quentin was complete. The British losses were heavy and the routed British soldiers were forced to accept battle by the German cavalry, who were in masses on their line of retreat.

The location in the foregoing despatch of St. Quentin in the department of Aisne, France, as the point where the British troops were forced to retreat before the German attack, places the scene of this fighting considerably further within French territory than have previous reports.

Up to the present time the British line has been described as extending from Cambrai to Le Cateau. St. Quentin is 20 miles south of Cambrai and the same distance southwest of Le Cateau. It is within eight miles of the boundary of the department of Somme referred to in an official communication issued by the French war department last night as follows:

"The situation on our front from the department of Somme to the Vosges remains the same today as yesterday."

SAYS GERMANS, CONTRARY TO LAWS OF WAR, BOMBARDED UNDEFENDED TOWNS

LONDON, Aug. 29, 4.50 a. m.—The correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. at Rotterdam sends the following official statement:

"On Thursday the Germans, contrary to the laws of war, bombarded Malines, an open and undefended town.

"On Friday morning the town was partially occupied by German infantry, which withdrew toward the south in the afternoon and bombardment was renewed, four shells falling about each quarter of an hour.

"The enemy also bombarded the region about Heyst-op-Den-Berg, a town 17 miles southeast of Antwerp, an open locality not occupied by the military. The two operations had no less an object than to terrorize the civilian populations.

"The Germans have systematically bombarded the forts and gaps of Namur for 48 hours. The town itself suffered little. The enemy has invested the northeast portion of the place and is attacking the forts and gaps in that region. The Belgian division retired to the second line of defense, which was bombarded violently. In turn the Belgian and French troops made numerous counter-attacks.

"The Belgian division retired by way of the Sambre and the Meuse and the movement was accomplished in good order. Our troops have rejoined the French lines.

"Reconnaisances made in the neighborhood of Antwerp gave favorable results and showed the country unoccupied. Our security, therefore, is complete."

GERMAN STEAMER CAPTAIN REPORTS FIERCE RIOTING AT DANZIG, GERMANY

LONDON, Aug. 29, 6.40 a. m.—A Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says the German steamer Derkid has arrived there from Danzig, Germany. The captain told of a terrible panic there owing to the fear of a Russian invasion. He said the inhabitants were in a desperate condition and that there had been fierce rioting.

MANY KILLED AT MALINES—GERMANS PREPARE FOR ATTACK ON ANTWERP

LONDON, Aug. 29, 6.42.—A despatch to the Daily News from Rotterdam says that out of 60,000 inhabitants of Malines only 200 are now left in the town. Refugees state that many were killed by the bombardment and practically all of the remainder fled.

The Germans are bringing up heavy siege guns of a new pattern for use against Antwerp. These guns have also been used at Malines.

The Germans have ordered all ablebodied Belgians in Liege and Tongres and their vicinity to proceed at once to Germany to assist in harvesting. The news of this order is likely to swell greatly the numbers of Belgian refugees in southern Holland.

MR. GEORGE FAIRBURN

DIED LAST NIGHT AT LOWELL GENERAL HOSPITAL AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

George Fairburn, one of the best known business men of this city, died last night at the Lowell General hospital after a short illness. Deceased was 50 years of age and was quite prominent in fraternal and business circles.

Mr. Fairburn was born in Lancashire, Eng. He came to this city in 1890 and secured employment with S. P. Pike in whose employ he remained two years. In 1893 he started a grocery and meat business in Merrimack street and conditions were so good that after a short time he opened two branch stores, one in Merrimack square and another at the corner of Merrimack and Fremont streets. Later he opened another market on East Merrimack street.

A couple of years ago Mr. Fairburn gave up the store in East Merrimack street and when the Page building was erected he removed his business to the Runels building, where he opened one of the finest equipped grocery and provision stores north of Boston.

Deceased is survived by a wife, two children, George C. Fairburn and Mrs. Florence Jordan; a father and mother and four sisters and one brother in England and a brother, Edward, of this city. He was a 32d degree Mason and was a member of Industry council, R. A., the Vesper Country club and the Mystic Shrine of Boston. His home was at 384 High street.

ANOTHER BICYCLE STOLEN

From Front of Marks' Tailor Shop on Central Street Yesterday

Bicycle thieves are busy around town and quite a few wheels have been stolen of late. The latest case happened only yesterday. Herbert Cartwright, who is employed by Marks the Tailor, in Central street, left his bicycle standing outside the store. He entered the establishment, and was gone but a few minutes, when upon returning he found his bicycle missing. He immediately notified the police who set to work upon the case. Bicycle dealers around the city have received numerous callers of late who wanted to dispose of bicycles, but as most of the dealers have been stung at one time or another, they are naturally cautious.

AMERICAN REFUGEES

ON BOARD HOLLAND-AMERICAN LINER ROTTERDAM WHICH SAILED TODAY

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 29.—The Holland-American liner Rotterdam sailed from this port early today for New York bearing more than 2400 passengers, of whom 1950 were American refugees from the continent. There were 1410 of the first cabin passengers, 720 of the second class and 300 steerage. Soren Listoe, American consul general here inspected the emergency first cabin accommodations and expressed himself as satisfied. Although these quarters are located in the freight hold they are quite comfortable. There are four berths to each cabin. Special culinary arrangements were made for the passengers in this section. Officers of the steamship company assured Consul Listoe that the comfort of everybody would be given first consideration. Most of the passengers expressed satisfaction with the arrangements, although some were not altogether pleased.

Henry Van Dyke, American minister to Holland, came to Rotterdam from The Hague to bid the party godspeed. In a short address he requested that they bear in mind the times and exercise patience if their eggs happen to be boiled two seconds too long. He asked the passengers to pray that the open door to Holland be kept ajar.

R. R. TRANSPORTATION IN GERMANY SUSPENDED

LONDON, Aug. 29.—2.16 p. m.—A despatch to the evening News from Copenhagen says:

"Ordinary railroad transportation in Germany has been suspended for the present because they are engaged in carrying troops from the west front to the hard pressed east front."

GERMANS MAY SACK BRUSSELS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Ostend says that of the German war levy of $40,000,000 on the city of Brussels thus far only $200,000 has been paid, and the Germans declare that if the remainder is not made good they will seize the pictures and works of art in the museums.

BRITISH DEFEAT GERMAN FLEET IN NORTH SEA

LONDON, Aug. 29.—It is announced that the British fleet has sunk two German cruisers and two German torpedo boat destroyers off Helgoland, in the North sea.

A third cruiser was set afire and was left sinking.

It is announced that no British ships were lost in the naval battle and that the British loss of life was not very heavy.

In addition to the two torpedo boat destroyers and three cruisers many of the German torpedo boat destroyers were damaged.

AMERICANS AUTHORIZED TO VISIT BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—(Via London) 6.40 a. m.—The military authorities have authorized Henry S. Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war at Washington and some American officers and newspaper correspondents to visit Berlin.

MISS OWENS PARTY HEARD FROM TODAY

The latest definite information received in this city concerning the whereabouts of Miss Owen's party arrived here this morning in the form of a cable message. In the party were Miss Flora A. Owen, Miss Carrie J. Bailey, Miss Sara M. Deane, Miss Ellen A. Stillings, Miss Doris H. Kerr and Mrs. Sophie W. Wing. The cable message was received by Miss Kerr's father, Mr. John Kerr of the Hamilton Mfg. Co.

The message was dated Venezia, August 29, and stated that the party would sail on the steamer Athene from Italy, arriving in New York about the middle of September.

Miss Owen's party left Lowell, July 11, sailing on that day from Boston on the S. S. Canopic of the White Star line, for Naples. Their itinerary included Naples, Rome, Florence and Venice, in Italy; Brieg, Montreux and Lucerne, in Switzerland; Baden-Baden, Mainz and Cologne, in Germany; Amsterdam and the Hague, Holland; Paris, France; London and Leamington, England. Their calculations, however, were badly crippled by the war which broke out while they were in Italy, where they were obliged to remain. Mr. Kerr received a letter from his daughter in the latter part of July and did not hear from her again until today.

AMONG THE TOILERS

Miss Anna Duplessis of the U. S. Cartridge Co., is spending two weeks at Lynn beach.

William Jarvis of the Silesia Worsted Co., has returned from a vacation trip to New York City.

It is said that a certain young lady employed at the U. S. Bunting Co., is somewhat anxious over a ring.

John McLean of the Tremont & Suffolk mills will spend the next week in Haverhill with relatives.

John McMahon of the U. S. Bunting Co. has returned after spending two weeks at the Glendale camp.

Michael Spillane of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. will spend the next week with relatives in Holyoke, Mass.

Fred Porter of the American Safety Tread Co. will spend today and Sunday at his camp at Long pond.

Steve Hessian of the John Pilling Shoe Co. will make the trip by boat to Provincetown tomorrow. He will be accompanied by a large party.

This year gives great promise of being a year of money making for the respective employes of the mills and factories of Lowell. Reports to textile magazine from manufacturers are quite encouraging.

Hugh Boyle of the Saco-Lowell shops has returned from an extended trip to Scotland. He reports a delightful trip with no distressing incidents on leaving. He made the trip six years ago.

Quite a gathering of young men headed by Amos Turner of the Saco-Lowell shops will spend most of their time next week fishing. They have plans arranged to stop at their camp at Crystal lake.

Another game of baseball was played at Shedd Park yesterday afternoon between young men, employes of the local mills and factories, who are now enjoying their annual vacations. The game was close and exciting and was won by the Hillsides. Score: 8 to 6.

Walter Miller who has been installing machinery at the Lancaster mills, Clinton, Mass., for the Saco-Lowell shops, has left Clinton for Waterville, Me., where he has been transferred.

The Buckhorn club are holding forth in their spacious rooms in South Whipple street every evening, and judging from reports they are having a splendid time. In compliance with the rules, each and every member has had his hair cut in "teddy bear" fashion. The baseball team that represents the club is doing wonderfully well on the diamond this year.

Business Agent Roscoe Hall of the Machinists' union is making quite an extended stay in this city, and every day he makes more friends. He certainly is a gentleman well met.

The Saco-Lowell shops closed its plant this noon not to reopen until Sept. 8. This will throw about 2000 men out of work.

Next week, thousands of operatives will be thrown out of work, owing to the closing of local industries. The shut-down will be a welcome one, however, as it will be the annual vacation period for the employes of the respective plants. The beaches will no doubt catch many of them while Rockingham fair will draw a large crowd every day. The mills will reopen Sept. 8, and a new era of prosperity is looked forward to. The shutdown will also help to instill confidence in the people.

Heinze Electric Co.

Business at the Heinze Electric Co. is good and all departments are running. Rumors to the effect that the company would begin night operations has caused many unemployed to ask for work. No night work is contemplated at the present time. The plant will close next Saturday all day in order that the employes may enjoy their annual trolley ride to Revere.

Silesia Worsted Co.

Business at the Silesia Worsted Co. is rushing and a large quota of help is steadily employed. Many of the departments are running nights, but this cannot be laid to prosperity as a result of the war, as this company has had an unusually prosperous season.

Lowell Textile Co.

Business at the Lowell Textile Co. is booming and night work will be started in a few weeks. A number of old hands will be employed on the night work, and but few, if any, new help will be employed. This plant is situated in North Chelmsford.

Union Webbing Co.

The Union Webbing company, which occupied a building in Thorndike street, has moved its machinery to a part of the Howard Braiding company's plant in East Providence, R. I., where operations will be resumed.

Mill Men Hold Meeting

The Millmen's union held its regular meeting in Carpenters' hall in the Runels building last evening. Routine business of an important nature was transacted. Several applications for membership were received and will be acted upon at the next regular meeting. Speeches on the good of the union were made by many of the members. The secretary reported the union to be making progress.

Electrical Workers Hold Meeting

Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers gathered in their hall in the Fiske building last evening and held their regular weekly business session. A grist of important business was transacted and two new members were admited. Communications from many sources were read at the meeting and properly referred. Reports of various committees were accepted. The secretary's report showed the union to be in a good financial condition.

Lawrence Manufacturing Co.

It is good textile opinion that sooner or later the hosiery and underwear mills of New England will experience a boom as the result of the European war that will overshadow any registered in recent years. It is probable that for months to come the menace of the "made in Germany" label will be eliminated.

If any mill in particular were likely to feel this the big Lawrence Manufacturing company of Lowell should be the one, for it is essentially a hosiery and knitting proposition. The good fortune, too, if it materializes will be doubly welcome, for Lawrence manufacturing has been having a hard row to hoe this year. The low Underwood tariff has been letting in a constantly increasing stream of foreign importations necessitating a curtailment as high as 50 per cent. several months ago.

Last year, however, was one of good earnings for Lawrence Manufacturing. In the fiscal period from the end of April to the end of April it rolled up profits of rising $200,000, equivalent to close to 17 per cent. on the stock, or over twice the dividend requirements. This compares with indicated earnings of only $ 1-2 per cent. the year before that. The last year, in fact, eclipsed the splendid 1909 showing.

Including the newly established "depreciation account" Lawrence has a reserve aggregate of $1,136,000, equivalent to nearly $91 per share—a strong dividend bulwark. Especially is this so in view of its liquid condition, net quick assets footing up to over $142 a share.

For years from the standpoint of intrinsic value and market price Lawrence has been an anomaly. With $142 a share in "net quick," $30 would cover the market appraisal of its big Lowell plants, a basis of about $3.40 a spindle against a recognized replacement value of six to seven times that sum. On a net basis the Lawrence capitalization is only about $1.30 a spindle. Figuring in the equipment of 1750 knitting machines it is nearly true that the Lawrence properties are completely uncapitalized.

Of course, on an income basis 8 per cent., Lawrence, around 170, sells high—a 4.7 per cent. yield. The 8 per cent. rate has, however, been in force since 1906 in the second half of which the 6 per cent. rate was increased after remaining stationary since 1906. The ten-year average of disbursements is 7 1-2 per cent. But purchasers of Lawrence figure on the inevitable readjustment of capital to property worth, having in mind the distribution of two shares for three held as an extra dividend back in 1909.—Fibre and Fabric.

SALISBURY BEACH IMPROVEMENT

Salisbury beach is likely to have a modern sewerage system and a complete rehabilitation of the water system, if the plans that are now being considered by the Artesian Water Co. are consumated. A conference between the representatives of the company and the selectmen of Salisbury was held at the beach Thursday and many phases of the plans were discussed.

It is understood that the company plans to rebuild a large part of the sewerage system of the beach and put in an up-to-date network of pipes that will care for all the demands of the beach. An important feature of the plans calls for the installation of hydrants at close intervals along the beach from the state line to the jetties.

The selectmen of the town of Westford have made up their minds to rid the town of the vegetable thieves who have been purloining in that district for some time and for this purpose they have appointed Harry Saxon of Whidden's corner, a constable, and it is Mr. Saxon's intention to devote his time running down the thieves and he predicts that Westford will be spotless in a very short time.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The newest theatrical policy will be given its initial presentations at the B. F. Keith theatre, on Labor day, Sept. 7. This was definitely determined yesterday by Manager Benjamin J. Pickett.

The policy of novelty will be probably the most versatile entertainment combination ever put forth on a local stage. It will consist of four high class vaudeville acts and four specially picked motion pictures, this show to completely change on Every Thursday. This will mean that every week eight vaudeville acts and eight motion pictures will be shown. Again, on Sundays, there will be another change.

The policy has been given a thoroughly satisfactory test in the larger cities of the country, as well as in cities of Lowell's size and general character, like Portland, Me., and Lawrence, and it has been decided to extend this in Lowell.

The prices will be 10 and 20 cents for the afternoon and 10, 15 and 25 cents for evenings, with two performances every evening, the first to begin at 7 o'clock, and to conclude about 9 o'clock. Only the best of vaudeville acts will be secured, and so far as possible the acts to be shown will be those which afford the greatest contrast to the silence of the motion pictures. Instrumentalists, singers, comedians, sketches and dancers will be among those selected. The Keith management is in a position to secure the very cream of motion pictures, as was exemplified during the supplementary season, and undoubtedly several of the masterpieces will be given.

The theatre has been cleaned and re-painted throughout, and the handsome entrance is more attractive than ever. New scenery has been painted, and several new drops have been secured, among them a most artistic moonlight one. The orchestra of the theatre will strike the very high level of past seasons, and the major portion of the theatre staff will remain as heretofore. Announcement of the bills to be presented will be made later.

LAKEVIEW DANCING PAVILION

The Lakeview Dancing Pavilion was visited by a large number of people last evening and all greatly enjoyed an evening of dancing under ideal surroundings. "The music is grand," one young lady was heard to remark as she passed the reviewing stand, as the spacious promenade around the hall is called. Her assertion was unanimous for the orchestra at the lake has an unenviable reputation for perfect accompaniment and exact playing. Next week several of the latest song hits direct from New York will be introduced, while of course all of the old favorites will still hold forth. The floor is in perfect condition, being waxed every day, under the supervision of an expert. All other details are carefully attended to, and those who patronize this popular dancing emporium are assured of a most enjoyable evening among congenial environment.

LAKEVIEW PARK

Tabor's Sixth Regiment band, E. F. Tabor, leader, will give two concerts at Lakeview park Sunday. The afternoon program will be as follows:

March, The Trooper.
Concert Waltz, June.
Overture, Schauspiel.
Solo for Trombone,
Wr. William Kinghorn.
Selection, "Alma,"
Popular Medley, B. M. C.
Selection, Lucia Di Lammermoor.
Solo for piccolo, Meadow Lark,
Mr. Z. J. Bissonnette
Tit Bits:
(a) My Crooney Melody.
(b) Night Time in Burgundy.
(c) I'm Their Way to Mexico.
Finale, Naval Reserve,

The evening program will be as follows:

March, Minstrel Days.
Overture, Templewelke.
Solo for cornet, Rebecca of Sunnybrook,
Selection from High Jinks.
Tid Bits:
(a) That Wonderful Demogza Strain.
(b) Trombonum (new).
Songs of the Day, Haviland 1914.
Duet for Flute and Horn "Serenade,"
Messrs. Anders and Bissonnette
Descriptive: The Cavalry Charge.
Remick's Big Song Revue of 1914.
Finale: Little Traveler.

THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Last call to witness the new Variety Show at the Academy of Music will be sounded today. The entire personnel of the program, including the pictures, will undergo a complete change for the new "Pop" Sunday concert idea to be inaugurated tomorrow.

To those who have not yet been to see the big vaudeville and picture show that is holding the hordes of the Academy of Music for the week-end, a word on the merits of this show might not be out of place. In addition to a fine program of guaranteed exclusive motion pictures the program includes a number of the very best vaudeville acts ever shown in Lowell.

The inimitable Jimmy Green easily takes first place on this all-star bill. He is a character comedian a little different from the ordinary. If laughing makes you sick, you'd better bring a doctor when you come to see Jimmy Green.

Then there is Fritzgow and Blanchard, a man and woman who have a novelty act that is far and away above the average. It really must be seen to be fully appreciated and any description of its many novel surprises here would be unfair both to the act and the audience. If you want to sit up and take notice, don't miss Fritzgow and Blanchard.

The Rogers Sisters, a duo of dainty, pulchritudinous "Flappers" round out a program that hasn't got a weak spot in its entire make-up. The sisters have a routine of the very latest musical numbers now being sung and whistled in all the large cities and they know just how to "put them over." This act alone is worth twice the price of admission.

Tomorrow, the entire bill will undergo a complete change. New feature pictures, including a rip-snorting Keystone comedy and a complete new vaudeville program will make the first "Pop" concert here one long to be remembered. Fred Weber, the extraordinary yodler, Nichols and Sherwood, entertainers of class, and The Famous Artistic Trio, a novel musical offering, are but a few of the many new features to be introduced tomorrow.

There will be no advance in prices for this big show.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the attraction will be Jeanette Dupre and her own big show. Miss Dupre is the only woman in the world who produces and managers her own show and she has surrounded herself with a bevy of dazzling beauties selected from the many big New York musical comedy productions.

The prices for the first half of the week have been revised to suit all pocketbooks. There will be the usual ladies' bargain matinees every afternoon at ten cents and the evening prices will include 500 of the very best seats at fifty cents with a selected few at 75 cents. Other good seats will be sold at 35 cents.

THE OWL THEATRE

Ferocious lions are seen dashing upon a ball-room floor in the twelfth episode of "The Perils of Pauline," which attracted two big audiences at yesterday's performances at the Owl. Other pictures on the program today besides this feature are "Shorty and the Aridville Terror" in two parts, a Keystone comedy, "Our Mutual Girl" in her weekly offering, and many others, all new to Lowell. The requests have been so frequent and numerous, that the management has decided to book the film of "Tess of the Storm Country" in which Miss Mary Pickford, and the Frohman Famous Players are seen to such advantage. Grace Miller White's beautiful story of a woman's unconquerable faith has made such a hit in Lowell, that theatre-goers are awaiting another chance to see this motion-picture masterpiece, and their chance will come next Monday and Tuesday. Vocal selections every day.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Owen Davis' famous play "What Happened to Mary," adapted from the world renowned "Mary" stories that have charmed millions of readers will be the attraction in which the Merrimack Square Theatre Stock company will be seen in the coming week. Allan Dale has pronounced it the greatest comedy drama since "Shore Acres" and declares it's a play full of the joy of living. So what further guarantee can one ask. It is a play that makes no pretense to solve any industrial or social problem, exploit any new system or theory—a play that deals with simple people and simple things, one of those rare gems compelling in its interests and winsome in its charm.

To describe the plot is hardly necessary, since perhaps nine out of every ten theatre-goers have read the story. And the play follows closely along the lines of the story. As might be imagined Miss Eva Marsh, the company's popular leading lady, will be seen in the title role. Further guarantee that it will be cleverly portrayed is not necessary. Miss Marsh has made many friends since coming to Lowell, some being patrons who have personally met the little lady, but for the most part, others who have watched her work from an orchestra chair. These have been charmed by her clever netting and charming personality, and these same qualities can be relied upon to make the role of Mary the coming week, one that will in all ways be perfectly satisfactory. Mr. Sam A. Meharry who will play the opposite leading character will also be seen to especially fine advantage and other members of the company who have been allotted prominent parts the coming week are: Marjorie Rendal, May B. Hurst, Wm. Freeman, Ted Brackett, Robert Lee, Kenneth Fleming, Eugene Desmond, Jos. Thayer, Mr. Walter Woods who personally looks after the directing and staging of all the plays has arranged some beautiful stage settings.

Special attention is called to the time of starting. The matinee first act curtain rises promptly at 2 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Seats are on sale one week in advance, and the subscription list for those who desire any particular seats reserved for them each week is still open. For week commencing Monday, Sept. 7 that smashing comedy success, "Officer 666" is announced as the attraction.

CANOBIE LAKE

This evening will give amusement seekers their last opportunity to witness the eighth edition of the Homan's Musical Revue which has caused so much favorable comment among the patrons of Canobie Lake Park theatre the past three days. It is another big show of wide variety that cannot fail to please anybody and certainly the tremendous applause shows the appreciation of the audiences.

Sunday will bring a host of extra attractions to Canobie and undoubtedly the attendance will be even greater than on last Sunday for there will be a reason. From 3 until 5 o'clock there will be a free band concert at the theatre by the crack Haverhill Military band, Herbert W. W. Downes, director, and the following program will be rendered: March, "The Diplomat;" music from "The Spring Maid;" overture, "The Jolly Robbers;" grand American fantasia, tone pictures of the north and south; waltz, "The Skaters;" grand selection from "Faust;" "The Lost Chord," (the melody performed by the cornets, trumpets and trombones); popular melodies (announced); selection from the opera "Maritana;" "March of the Sheridan Sabres."

From 5 until 10 o'clock there will be a special program of feature motion pictures at the theatre and in addition to the regular big program there will be shown the moving pictures taken at Canobie Lake last Sunday when thousands of people managed to get within range of the camera. Tomorrow will give these people their opportunity, and in many cases the first one, to see themselves in motion pictures and for that reason tremendous crowds are expected. The pictures, too, will be exceptionally interesting, showing as they do all of the important attractions of the park including the swimming pool where a number of amusing scenes were caught by the camera as the bathers enjoyed themselves. Among the other features in pictures to be offered will be the latest Pathe Weekly which includes more interesting scenes taken in Belgium during the terrible fighting between the armies of Germany and the allies.

Monday the Homan's Musical Revue company will offer the ninth edition of their big musical show with new songs, dances and comedy farces.

Tires at Before-War Prices

Yet We Never Got Choicer Rubber
We Never Built Better Tires

There exists now a new reason—most compelling—for buying Goodyear Tires. It results from war conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed suddenly closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cabled them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber.

And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyears. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

In Goodyears we pledge you the same-grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

Take Dys-pep-lets along with you when you go on your vacation. It is a wise thing to do. 4 ALARM FIRE IN BOSTON

Tenants Rush to Street—Huntington Ave. Apartment Ruined—Near Panic

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—A fire last evening that illuminated the sky for miles around and caused a genuine scare in the immediate vicinity ruined the 5½-story apartment house in course of construction at 491 Huntington avenue. Feeding on lathing and other woodwork the flames spread with such alarming rapidity that four alarms were sounded, the first at 7.14 and the second being skipped five minutes later. The loss will probably be not more than $25,000.

Thousands rushed to the scene and had a rare pyrotechnic display. The apartment house was a veritable furnace. Construction had only reached the stage where the plastering was to begin. The roof, wooden floors and lathes were in place, providing admirable fuel for the fire. The windows of the 40 apartments were not in yet and there was plenty of draft.

The building was one of three now building in the block bounded by Huntington avenue, Museum road, Ruggles street and the Fenway. "The Durban," the only occupied house in the block and containing 40 suites, most of them occupied, was threatened and the occupants made a very quick exit. They were greatly scared for a short time, but soon returned to the house.

Museum School in Danger

The Museum of Fine Arts school is directly across from the burned structure on Museum road, and shortly after the arrival of the first apparatus Supt. W. W. McLean of the museum had the firemen direct several streams over the one-story school structure. The main buildings of the museum were farther away, and at no time did the flames threaten to spread to them.

When Chief McDonough arrived, he said the entire building from cellar to roof was a glowing, leaping mass, with flames breaking out from practically all the window openings. On the outside a staging of timbers had been built. Although the walls themselves were completed, the staging had been retained in order to clean the bricks. These outside timbers also caught fire, and at intervals one would topple to the ground, sending up a great shower of sparks.

After several streams had played into the building from the Huntington avenue side from deck guns mounted on the hose wagons, the firemen were seen to fall back to the other side hurriedly. Then, with a great crash, one entire section of the brick wall crumbled and fell in.

This section of wall was directly above what was to be the main entrance to the apartment house and it is extended from the street floor clear up to the roof. In toppling, most of the bricks fell inside the building. Sufficient warning had been given, however, and no one was injured.

Only the Walls Left

When the flames were finally drowned out only the brick walls, except the section that fell, remained standing. The building is owned by Specter & Segal, neither of whom could be found at the fire.

The adjoining buildings at 499 Huntington avenue and that at 14 Museum road, both practically completed, are owned by Jacob Nason and Charles Kolodny, respectively. That the fire spread to neither of these was considered fortunate.

The fire was discovered by Arthur Gillis, a 15-year-old boy, living at 466 Parker street, who was on his way up Huntington avenue to Conant street on an errand. He chanced to look across the street and saw the entire inside of the building in flames.

He rang the alarm at Parker and Ruggles streets, then raced back to "The Durban" and notified Henry Robillard, the janitor. The latter aroused all his occupants and amid scenes of great confusion and excitement they left their apartments. One, Mrs. I. J. Breed, a cripple, had to be assisted out.

Supporting Wall Missed

The absence of any supporting wall in the middle of the building, considering its length of about 100 feet, was noted by a number at the fire. Chief McDonough expressed surprise that such a long building did not have a supporting wall in the middle and it was just where such a wall would be that the outer wall section fell in.

Mr. Kolodny, who is constructing the adjoining apartment house at 14 Museum road, was asked if the building laws required such a wall. He said that as the building department had inspected and passed on the building, it must have been all right.

The only accident reported was that Howard S. Black, 38 years old, of 6 Greenville street, Roxbury, in running to the fire was struck at the corner of Whittier and Ruggles streets by an automobile owned and driven by Raymond Mondell of 37 Westland avenue. His right arm was fractured and he was removed to the City hospital.

REAL ESTATE and BUILDING NEWS

Building activity is dropping down in this city and many claim the banks are responsible for the lack of work, for it is said that the money market is so tight that proprietors cannot get money except at a very high rate of interest.

It was predicted a few months ago that this season would be the worst in years for the building industry, but up to a couple of weeks ago, workmen of the different crafts were kept busy despite the prediction. However, the building business has felt the effect of the war. Many building projects have been abandoned because of the difficulty of obtaining money.

The scarcity of money is being felt all over the states and on account of this many large enterprises had to be given up at least temporarily. It is believed, however, that this tightness of the money market will not last very long and before the cold weather sets in work will be started on several large buildings in this city. A number of jobs that were started a month or so ago are being pushed along and it is the hope of the workmen that before they get through with the jobs on hand something else will turn up.

High School Annex

Superintendent Francis A. Connor of the public building department is rushing the job of converting the Varnum property recently purchased by the city into a school building. Mr. Connor has 12 men at work and he hopes the building will be ready for occupancy by Sept. 14, the date of the opening of the public schools. The heating system will not be taken care of until after the opening of the building.

New Building

D. J. Ring is having a residence erected at 40 Tyler park at a cost of between $4500 and $5000. The house will be of wood and will contain ten rooms, the dimensions of the building to be 30 by 32 feet. A hot water heating system will be installed.

Dr. Sparks has men at work on the building of a sleeping porch at his property, 291 Wilder street.

Carpenters are busy erecting a seven-room dwelling house for William England at 112 Upham street. The building will be steam-heated and will cost about $2500.

I. W. Flagg is making alterations in his building numbered 248-246 Fletcher street in the line of two bath rooms.

In Billerica

The Billerica Garden Homes, Inc., which recently purchased a large tract of land in the neighboring town, is getting things in shape and will soon start the construction of several dwelling houses. Under the direction of Contractor Kearney a large force of men are laying a street through the tract, building operations will soon be started. Contractor Wiggin of this city has a number of men at work on removing some of the old houses. The tenement buildings in Faulkner street have been moved back to the old T. R. & T. baseball grounds, while the houses occupied by Charles Cook and Mr. Potter have been moved to a position in the rear of Mr. Preston's home.

Fire Damage

A small gang of carpenters are busy repairing the fire damage in the Butrick building in Middle street. The burned partitions were torn down and the wood work has been started. No changes are contemplated in the building and only the fire damage will be repaired.

Middlesex Mill

Work on the construction of a new storehouse for the Middlesex company in Warren street is progressing and a part of the outside walls have been put up. An innovation in the construction of this new building will be the utilizing of cement bricks, which are manufactured by a Lowell company in North Chelmsford. These bricks are of the same dimensions as the earthen bricks and are given a 90,000 pound pressure test before being placed on the market.

The new parish house of St. John's Episcopal church, the residence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bancroft, is now ready for the painters. Although not large, it is a very pretty and attractive dwelling. When painted it will be one of the finest single dwellings in that locality. The garage in the basement is approached from the Rogers street side and the lawn and flower garden is enclosed by an ornamental wire fence. Rev. Mr. Bancroft has given very close attention to the work of construction which is first class throughout. The house is shingled with slated roof and has all the modern improvements.

THE SPELLBINDER

The Perpetual Care and John Davis trust funds continue to remain intact, but the statements in the Courier-Citizen, of a week ago Wednesday, attributed to Mayor Murphy relative to those funds, are far from remaining intact, having been punctured on Monday of this week by Acting Mayor Carmichael who manfully and courageously has placed the responsibility just where it belonged. From the statements attributed to Mayor Murphy that appeared in the Courier-Citizen, one would infer that His Honor had no previous knowledge of the attempt to turn over the Perpetual Care fund to the city in anticipation of taxes and the mayor is quoted as saying that Commissioner Brown formulated the scheme and consulted only with Commissioner Donnelly and City Treasurer Stiles in relation thereto.

Col Carmichael in his statement on Monday said:

"The mayor and all the rest of us looked upon it with favor until informed by the attorneys of the First National Bank of Boston that the transaction was not a legal one."

Col. Carmichael referring to the proposition to take the trust fund to bolster up the city finances also said:

"I don't know who was the first to suggest it but the authority of course rested with the city treasurer. The commissioner of finance, the city treasurer, the city solicitor and I think, the mayor, talked the matter over before the other members of the council were called in. The matter was gone over pretty thoroughly and we were a unit in declaring that we would approve of the transaction providing it was legal. There are people who are trying to lay the blame on certain members of the government and I want to state that that is absolutely unfair. If any blame attaches, each member should bear his share of it. No one member or two members of the council were responsible AND NO ONE MEMBER PREVENTED THE LOAN."

The Courier- Citizen quotes Mayor Murphy as follows:

"Commissioner of Finance Brown then formulated the plan of utilizing the cemetery trust funds amounting to $84,456, which was on deposit in seven savings banks. He placed the plan before Commissioner Donnelly and the city treasurer. These commissioners both believed the plan would be feasible. At this time it developed that the savings banks were discussing the plan of placing the 60 day notice rule on the withdrawal of deposits, so at the suggestion of Mr. Brown, City Treasurer Stiles made a hurried circuit of the banks and withdrew nearly all the fund from six of them."

Farther along the Courier Citizen says:

"Mayor Murphy, in discussing the whole transaction declared that he did not believe it good form or good business for the city to borrow its own trust funds and that he would not consent to such use of the money but would prevent it to the best of his ability."

And now comes Col Carmichael with the statement that Mayor Murphy had previously discussed the matter with the other commissioners and had agreed with them that the proposition should go through, if legal.

Col. Carmichael's manly statement of facts is decidedly refreshing in these days when political self-preservation cares little for facts and less for fairness.

It might be added that the $12,500 of the Davis fund that was going into the general treasury fund also remains intact. While the commissioners agreed to transfer the perpetual care fund, in a conference, the proceedings of which did not become matters of public record, the library trustees, of which the mayor is a member, are on record as having voted in meeting to loan a portion of the Davis fund to the city.

But nobody can deny the fact recently set before the public that Mayor Murphy saved the city $175 per year rental by abolishing the old crematory in Plain street. This fact remains incontrovertable.

Missing Trust Funds

And still there's more borrowing ahead.

In its efforts to keep the tax rate down—that honest tax rate—the municipal council at the beginning of the year quietly passed by section 634 of the acts of 1913 entitled: "An act to provide for the payment of outstanding demand notes and the restoration of trust funds by cities and towns."

Chapter 634 reads in part as follows:

"During the year 1914 every city and town which has at the time that this act takes effect outstanding notes payable on demand, or which has expended for the general expenses of the city or town, trust funds which have not been restored, shall provide for the payment of such notes and for the restoration of such trust funds IN THE TAX LEVY FOR THE YEAR 1914 where such provision is reasonably practicable, but where it would be unreasonably burdensome to provide for such payment or restoration in the tax levy of 1914, such city or town may provide for such payment and restoration as is provided in section two of this act.

"Section two: For the purpose of paying any notes of a city or town payable on demand and outstanding, when this act takes effect, and also for the purpose of restoring any trust funds which were received by a city or town and subsequently expended by it for the general expense of such city or town, and not thereafter restored, any such city or town is hereby authorized to borrow outside the limit of indebtedness fixed by law for such city or town, a sum of money not exceeding in the aggregate the amount required for paying such demand notes and for the restoration of such trust funds, etc."

What Rex Discovered

When Mr. Rex came to town and looked over the city's books sometime ago he discovered that the Huntington hall insurance fund, $10,500, the Jonathan Tyler fund, $10,000 and two Thomas Nesmith funds, one $25,000 and the other, $1000, had disappeared and existed only on paper, having been spent for the general expenses of the past. Of these perhaps the Huntington hall fund cannot properly be called a trust fund and therefore it is gone beyond recall. But the other funds, amounting to $36,000, are trust funds and the legislature of 1913 enacted a law to compel cities and towns that have been careless with their trust funds to restore them and to do it within the year 1914, providing for two ways in which such restoration is to be made. Thus the missing $36,000, which these trust funds aggregate must be restored at the expense of the taxpayers within the next few months. After all their talk about a low and honest tax rate during the past campaign, some members of the municipal council found themselves obliged either to give up the low tax rate proposition or the honest tax rate slogan and the latter is abandoned by omitting to provide for the restoration of the trust funds in this year's tax levy, thus giving a tax rate of $21.90 when the honest tax rate would have been $22.30, an increase of 40 cents. Now it must borrow the $36,000 before Dec. 1, and with a war on in Europe it will have to pay a much higher rate of interest than it would have at the beginning of the year, if it succeeds in borrowing any money at all, which is a matter of doubt.

Paying Big Interest

It was announced within a week that the city had succeeded in borrowing $30,000 at 5 per cent. for the addition to the high school and $50,000 for the water works at 6 per cent., and the war in Europe is held responsible for the increased rates of interest. The school board and the municipal council knew months ago that they would be obliged to borrow for the school addition, but they did not take action until a few weeks before the opening of the school, and after the rates of interest had gone up, while the municipal council instead of borrowing $80,000 in the first place attempted to borrow $225,000 and was turned down. The directors of the New Haven road have nothing on our municipal council when it comes to high financiering.

The Band Concerts

It has been announced that two more band concerts will conclude the year's series of municipal concerts, and the musicians and those of the public who have stopped to consider the matter are wondering. At the beginning of the year the city appropriated $1000 for band concerts. The entire series includes nine concerts, of which three cost $100 each and six, $62.50 each, making a total of $675. Thus the concert appropriation has a balance of $325. What has become of the balance, or what is to become of it, or if the municipal council intended spending only $675 on band concerts, why did it appropriate $1000?

The Contagious Hospital

Last year or early this year the state board of health was waving a mandamus, or a decree of some other terrible thing at the city of Lowell threatening all sorts of dire happenings if the city didn't proceed at once to construct and maintain a contagious disease hospital. The hospital hasn't been constructed as yet and the state board has subsided. And it's a lucky thing, too, for if the municipal council is obliged to do much more borrowing it will be necessary to have the experts of the First National bank move up here and give their entire time to keeping us in straight financial running order.

The Gallagher Case

The school board appears to have gotten itself into an interesting mixup as the result of the "throw down" of John F. Gallagher, a teacher in the vocational school. In June the school committee elected Mr. Gallagher, it is claimed, for one year, but at its meeting on Tuesday evening it rescinded its action and elected in his place Herbert L. Carragher. The school board offers no explanation of this action other than the statement that Principal Fisher of the vocational school recommended the change. Both Messrs. Gallagher and Carragher are said to be competent young men, in every way eligible to the position. But having elected Mr. Gallagher for one year it would seem that the school board should have some good reason for summarily removing him before the end of the year and hence it is not surprising to learn that Mr. Gallagher will protest against his removal and will report for duty at the opening of school. He will call for a hearing to begin with, and to which it would seem he is entitled and which he should have been given before being voted out of a job. Removing a man from a school position, without warning, just prior to the opening of the school season is unfortunate for the man removed even if the removal were justified for it is now too late to look with any hope of success for a school position for the coming season, all having been filled by this time. It is expected that Principal Fisher's reasons will be brought out later. The position is not worth fighting over except as a stepping stone to something higher.

Officer Crowe's Shift

A correspondent, who from the tone of his communication evidently thinks he "has something" on the writer of this column, writes to ask why The Spellbinder has not stated the cause of the removal of Officer Martin Crowe from Merrimack square, intimating that there is a reason that is being kept from the public. Just why Officer Crowe was removed, I know not. The correspondent, undoubtedly is hinting at the story going the rounds to the effect that a few evenings before his removal, Officer Crowe having learned that a man wanted by the police was in a down-town barroom sent for the patrol wagon and entering the saloon placed the man under arest at the bar and then took him out to the sidewalk where the patrol wagon was in waiting. As perversity would have it something went wrong with the wagon and it was stalled for quite a few minutes in front of the barroom to the intense indignation of the saloonkeeper who refusing to accept Officer Crowe's explanation or apology, whichever it was, threatened dire vengeance and made good his threat by making a complaint to Mayor Murphy or Supt. Welch. A local paper then commented on the case prematurely, stating that in the old days a police officer who had the temerity to interfere with the business of a liquor dealer would have fared badly, but happily such could not be the case under the present administration. Immediately afterward came the announcement that Officer Crowe had been changed to a route on the late night shift. Whether the liquor dealer's complaint or some other reason was responsible for the removal of the officer can best be ascertained by applying to Mayor Murphy or Supt. Welch. There is no doubt that Mr. Crowe is removed to a beat where the atmosphere is not so strongly contaminated with the odor of liquor.

The County Commissionership

At the Middlesex county democracy's outing last Saturday about all of the candidates for county commissioner on the democratic ticket, with the exception of Deputy Sheriff Walsh, of South Framingham, were present, and his absence was explained by friends who said that he was conducting an auction that could not be postponed, the sheriff evidently doing business like our own auctioneers, "sale will take place, rain or shine, without limit or reserve, etc." Senator Charlie McCarthy was the big noise among the commissioner candidates, umpiring the ball game and with the assistance of several energetic rooters, being made acquainted with about everyone present. While there are five or six candidates in the field, judging from the talk heard at the outing, the two favorites are Senator McCarthy and Deputy Sheriff Walsh. The latter spent a few hours in Lowell early in the week looking over the situation and from what he said he intends to give considerable attention to this end of the district. Sheriff Walsh stated that the vote of Lowell in his opinion will decide the nomination and that he is out to get that vote. He believes that the democratic candidate, provided he can get the support of the entire democracy on election day, can be elected. He states that the defection in the republican party is greater than has appeared on the surface and that the dissatisfied ones to assure a change in conditions will vote for the democratic nominee rather than waste a vote on the progressive candidate. Senator McCarthy visited Lowell a few weeks ago and expressed great confidence in his ability to pull off the nomination. As there are three candidates from the city of Cambridge the vote of that municipality will be split in all directions for Messrs. McCarthy and Walsh also expect support in the University City. Of all the democratic candidates, Sheriff Walsh is probably the best known in this city, having attended court here for many years.

Aftermath of Outing

Says the Cambridge Daily Standard: "A rumor reached the Standard office last evening to the effect that Patrick Mullen, who participated in the fast race of 50 yards or less at Lexington park on Saturday at the Middlesex democratic outing and who ended third in said race, claims he was fouled in the race by some ringer and thus robbed of the victory. As this rumor was heavily censored both before and after reaching the Standard office it may be believed that there is some foundation to the report.

This fat men's race was one of the features of the outing. The race was marred by a distressing accident, when Humphrey O'Sullivan fell in the course, tripping up a number of the runners who were unable to stop in time to avoid the spill. Just how many were spilled, and full details of the accident cannot be found at this time, as the intervening days have added to and detracted from the facts in the case. However, according to the present story, certain facts may be given credence.

First, it is claimed that Assessor Hogan got up steam and started before the signal was given. Second, Patrick Mullen and Peter J. Nelligan, who ended second, were delayed, impeded and otherwise obstructed in their course, and were forced to sand their tracks on several occasions. Therefore, it is claimed, that these two gentlemen are confident that they can walk off with the big assessor, and are willing, nay anxious, to meet him for a return match. Marquis of Queensbury rules, catch-as-catch-can, indoors or outdoors, at any time or in any place. It is understood that Assessor Hogan is a fine runner indoors. He is under all circumstances a fast man. He has had wide experience in running for office and running for assessments."

EUROPE'S MOST TALKED ABOUT WAR PERSONAGE, THE GERMAN KAISER, PICTURED FROM CHILDHOOD THROUGH THE YEARS TO THE PRESENT DAY

Kaiser Wilhelm, easily the most important single personage in the great European conflict, is fifty-five years old. These pictures show him at various ages, from five up to the present day. The German emperor, who is now in the twenty-sixth year of his reign, finds himself almost fighting the world alone. With Austria he is arrayed against Russia, France, England, Japan and Belgium, with the likelihood that Italy will throw her forces against him. Necessarily he is almost bitterly condemned and most warmly defended respectively by his enemies and by his friends. As the first "war lord" of Europe his people pin their faith in him and in his mighty fighting machine even against such tremendous odds. Will their faith be justified? What will the fates decree for this most powerful, resourceful and militant ruler who has risked the future of a great and prosperous empire and his own dynasty upon war?

GERMAN AMBASSADOR

Says the Messages From Berlin Have Brought Truth—Defends Zeppelin Airship Incident

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred with Secretary Bryan today on the censorship of German-owned wireless stations. Secretary Bryan said afterward that the question still was unsettled.

The ambassador touching on the question of anti-German sentiment said he felt the American people must realize that although delayed and censored, messages from Berlin have brought the truth and that many reports from London have been disproved. Fairness, the ambassador said, he believed would result in an unprejudiced view. Fighting on the Russian border, the ambassador said, had merely been clashes of outposts. The country is open and unfortified, he explained; the towns reported captured by Russians are undefended and unimportant points. No Russian despatches, the count declared, had mentioned engagements with more than one of the Prussian army corps.

In reply to the charge of the allies of violation of the rules of warfare by Germany, the ambassador said that a French aeroplane flew over neutral Belgium on the first day of the declaration of war and before German soldiers had crossed the border bent on destroying the Rhine bridges; flew as far as Coblenz and dropped several bombs into the city.

In defense of the action of the Zeppelin airship in dropping bombs into Antwerp, Count Von Bernstorff declared that in Germany the presence of women and children in a fortress, unlike conditions in the city of Antwerp, was not permitted. Attack upon a fortress in modern warfare, he pointed out, may be carried on from the air as well as from the siege guns.

The ambassador said he would not discuss the future and he did not take up the diplomatic side of the European struggle. Before he entered the diplomatic ante room he inquired of a messenger if other diplomats were present. The messenger answered that the minister of Santo Domingo was waiting.

"Well, we're not at war with him," the ambassador remarked. "I can go in."

FIREMAN SUSPENDED

FOR FIVE DAYS FOR FAILURE TO OBSERVE RULES IN REGARD TO APPEARANCE ON STREET

A lieutenant at the central fire station has the distinction of being the first man to be suspended for failing to live up to the requirements of article 27 of the rules and regulations of the department.

This article states that permanent members shall not be allowed to go outside their respective houses without being in uniform, and coat buttoned entire. The article provides that any man so reported shall be suspended one day without pay for each offence, except he is going to or from an alarm of fire or engaged in some special duty.

The lieutenant in question was suspended for five days and the charge against him was, it is stated, for appearing in the street in his shirt sleeves and also with his coat unbuttoned.

Asked if it were true that he had suspended, or had caused to be suspended for five days, a fireman who appeared in the street in uniform, and his coat unbuttoned, Chief Saunders said: "Yes, that is true. The man returned to work this morning after a suspension of five days. I had warned him several times not to appear in the street in his shirt sleeves or with his coat unbuttoned while on duty, but he ignored my instructions and I decided that the best way to make him mind was to suspend him under the rules. I do not wish to be hard on the firemen and I am sure I do not want to be finicky, but I propose that when, as chief of the fire department, I give an order to a member of the department, the order must be obeyed."

STORIES OF THE BATTLE

LONDON, Aug. 28.—2.20 a. m.—The Rouen correspondent of the Daily Mail in a despatch to his paper describes the arrival of British wounded there and gives their stories of the fight. He says the wounded, despite their injuries displayed a cheerful stoicism. They had all come from the fight in the neighborhood of Mons, where two French army corps had successfully held off the enemy on Sunday and Monday. The British, the correspondent says, had taken the field immediately upon their arrival after several days' march. They arrived just in time to stem the German onrush. Although sorely in need of rest, they behaved like fresh troops and held their ground with splendid courage, earning General Joffre's warm praise.

Not many of the British have bad wounds. Most of those who were able talked with picturesque profanity about their bad luck. One described how his regiment, ordered out of Mons Sunday morning, came under fire immediately. They had no trenches or cover of any kind and were obliged to lie down all day and pop up their heads occasionally to fire.

Another of the British wounded said:

"We marched into Mons Sunday about ten in the morning and were just about to be billeted when marching orders came and we were off again. We were to advance under cover of artillery fire but the enemy was doing a bit of artillery work, too, so we threw up trenches and snuggled down to wait for whatever might happen.

"We did not wait long. The German gunners were over a ridge two or three miles in front and their shells came whistling around us. I got my baptism of fire and at first did not like it. Fortunately most of their shells burst behind us and did no harm."

Some curious rumors are current in the British lines, the Mail's correspondent continues: One of the soldiers continued: Russians reached Berlin and were driving the Germans on to the British lines "so that we can crumple them up."

Some of the British soldiers are highly irritated because they did not see enough of fighting. One said: "I hardly saw a German. I came on one German infantryman while marching through a village and he began talking to me, saying 'Yah, Yah' or someing like that. What did I do? I ran my bayonet through him and would do so again."

A fusileer told the correspondent of the street fighting in a colliery town. He said: "It was mostly desultory fighting but there were stirring bayonet charges by the British. The Germans don't like that sort of thing. They quit the neighborhood as soon as it starts. One time we ran up within seeing distance of a huge mass of the enemy in close formation. Our machine guns did them up properly. When we catch them like that they don't ask for two helpings."

One of the hussars spoke enthusiastically of the work of the British artillery.

"There was one battery or rather half a battery in rather an exposed position," he said, "which was doing a lot of damage to the Germans, so they trained several of their batteries on it in an endeavor to silence. It was a fight between one David and a half a dozen Goliaths. One by one the guns were silenced until only a single gun and a single gunner remained. He went on doing the best he could, steadily and calmly and would have gone on until he dropped except that an officer called him back and he went back unwillingly."

POSTOFFICE CLERK

Victor Turnquist Has Reason to Feel Deeply Interested in the European War Tragedies

The European war has as much personal interest, perhaps, for Victor Turnquist, a clerk at the local postoffice, as for any many in Lowell. Mr. Turnquist received a letter a few days ago stating that ships on which his father and brother were engaged had been captured by the Russians. The letter was from another brother and Mr. Turnquist said his brother did not go much into detail. His father and brother were both on Swedish vessels. Sweden is a neutral country and Mr. Turnquist does not understand why Russia should interfere with Swedish vessels. He thinks, perhaps, that the ships were simply detained for examination. He expects to hear the full details later on.

ENGLISH BUS CONVEYING SOLDIERS TO STATION FOR FRANCE

London is becoming more and more like a military camp. The busses have been commandeered and are being used to transport soldiers through the city to the railroad terminals, and they will also be used to take the wounded to the hospitals when they arrive from Belgium and France. Cambridge and Oxford universities have been turned into hospitals, awaiting the wounded. Other institutions have been closed to students and cots placed in the dormitories. England realizes that this is a serious war and that many lives will be sacrificed and many thousands wounded.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

THE GOD OF BATTLES

To many in this country who are outside the horrible influences of the European war there is something almost blasphemous in the way some of the principals exultingly attribute victories to God, as though the Almighty Father could look approvingly on the spectacle of awful fratricidal strife among his puny children. The day has gone by when battle appeals to God sound convincing, and the myriads who bow to him in the name of a common Christianity no longer picture his might as it shone forth on the mountain of Shai or as when it held the sun above the horizon to aid the hosts of Joshua. Kaisers, emperors and kings may have moments of mental exaltation during which they see the lord of creation leading on their hosts to victory but those whom war will affect more directly will not see it in the same light. Francis Joseph may wire to the Kaiser "Victory after victory! God is with you. He will be with us also," but the women of France and of Germany who weep at home for the sons who will never come back to harvest the vineyards, will raise their hands and hearts to the same God for aid in their awful trial.

There was a time when armies sallied out in a holy cause as in the old testament times of judges and kings and in the later times of the crusades and the battles against the Turks, but even then the name of the Lord of Hosts was used to shield many a crime against individuals and nations. Today, saintly men like Pius X cry out against the horrors of war and make no attempt to give it a holy significance. "Peace on earth" was the message of the angels to the shepherds of Galilee and the Christ whose churches dot the plains of Belgium, Germany and France taught the brotherhood of man and stood out as the highest ideal of peace, charity and patience which this world has seen. One who in imagination looks today on the farms of France, wasted, depopulated, torn up by fiery rains and fertilized by the decomposing bodies of sons, brothers, fathers and husbands, and compares it with the France of Millet's Angelus will feel that God is a God of peace and that all warfare must be at variance with His universal plan and His divine justice. It is far more pleasant to feel that God in His high heaven is too intently listening to the wails of the women of Europe to hear the impious claims of tyrant, emperor or king.

SEARCHING THE FUTURE

If all who are swindled in the course of a year by self-appointed prophets of the future were to bring the offenders to court the public would be astonished at the credulity of many otherwise sensible people. The nature of the fraud, however, prevents disclosures and so the dupes of the paraders of the occult hide their losses and the fakes move off to another locality to try their fortune on a new batch of subjects. Occasionally a case gets into the papers and serves as a warning to people who have some claim to common sense.

A particularly striking case was revealed a few days ago by the arrest of a "mental scientist" at Gardner, Mass., on the complaint of a confiding woman of Shelburne Falls, who had been defrauded out of $180 by the wily prophet. The accused had occupied an office for many months at Greenfield and had done a thriving business telling fortunes, varying disclosures on the past and future by side business tips that promised wonderful returns to the gullible. He promised Mrs. Pierce of Shelburne that if she gave him $180 he would reveal the location of a gold mine. She turned over the money and all she got in return was a well-defined feeling of disgust and disappointment. Luckily for the public she was not sensitive in the matter as are most victims and so she seeks to have the psychic crook punished. Incidentally the police discovered after his arrest that he has a long record and has worked various little games in all parts of the country.

The inconsistency of the fortune telling situation should impress itself on anybody with a scrap of intelligence and still many women and some men will troop to fakirs over and over again half in earnest but more seriously than they care to admit. Why do they not see that if the medium or other prophet can point out great business opportunities or sources of money they would avail of it themselves instead of telling fortunes at 50 cents or $1.00 per head? In some states such frauds are prohibited by law and a great many weak-minded people would be protected were this prohibition general.

NEEDLESS BARBARISM

It is to be regretted that the ethics of warfare have not progressed in the same degree as the terrible art itself, at least on the German side of the present conflict. The disregard of treaties and contempt for neutrality as exemplified by the invasion of Belgium have been followed by all manner of indignities, so glaring as to arouse a protest from some Americans in the consular service. Belgian farmers have been slaughtered in cold blood; outrages have been committed against women; children have in some instances been massacred. All of these things have been well substantiated and they point to a degree of needless cruelty which no exigency of war times will excuse. It may be that the superior officers do not approve of the doings of the common soldiery but Germany has been so well prepared in other things that she will not be pardoned for having neglected a few lessons in humanity. War at its best is diabolical but wars can be fought without some of the features that make such distressing reading at present. The world at large will unreservedly condemn barbarity whether it be resorted to by the Germans or by the allies and a victory gained through some of the published methods will be associated with the worst cruelty of the ages.

FIREMEN'S DAY OFF

In refusing the reasonable but untimely request of one day off in six by the committee representing the Lowell firemen, Commissioner Carmichael undoubtedly disappointed this important municipal body, but under the circumstances he could not have done otherwise. It was a matter that should have been acted on by the entire municipal council and it was entirely out of the question for Commissioner Carmichael to decide owing to the city's financial condition and to the decisive rejection of a similar proposition when submitted to the voters at the polls. Such a concession at the present time would be tantamount to adding to the ranks of the firemen a number of men equal to one-sixth of the present body, and Lowell cannot do this just at present. Undoubtedly the firemen's request will be granted at some future date, for to refuse it ultimately would be to invite the pernicious two-platoon idea which is gaining ground in Boston and elsewhere. The firemen must bide their time, confident that the public will soon approve of their request. The recent concession of one day off in fifteen to the police department does not make it any easier for the firemen to accept the adverse decision with good grace.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS

This country must look pretty good at present to the Americans stranded abroad or waiting for an opportunity to return, and as things are shaping it is most imperative that their return be not delayed any longer than is absolutely necessary. Immediately after the outbreak of hostilities an American committee was formed in London for the purpose of looking after the interests of our people. This committee has just issued a strong appeal to Americans to return as soon as possible, reminding them that tourists consume foodstuffs and increase the financial difficulties of the country in which they temporarily reside. Secretary Bryan has also issued a warning to Americans abroad to return home as soon as they may because of possibilities which may make it impossible for them to do so a little later. These appeals will undoubtedly be heeded by all tourists who read the ominous signs of the times. Should there be some important naval engagements, the safety of ocean travel even for neutral ships might be menaced, and the mobilization of Italian troops and sundry signs of disturbance around the Balkan belt indicate a possible spread of the war fires with hardship to travellers all over Europe. The American who is shaking the dust of Europe from his feet just now is a wise American.

THE CRAZY MILITANTS

If the British ministers have any time to think of domestic affairs they must be convinced that their dealing with the militants in the past was altogether too mild and was, therefore, an absolute failure, and if there are any reasonable women among the militants, they must be ashamed of the acts of the furies for the past few days. On Thursday—a day of critical tensity in government circles and of anxiety among the public—a group of fanatics strove to fight their way into the office of the home secretary, attracting the unwelcome notoriety of the world and arousing a very hostile attitude in the English mob. Among those who thus brought the militant body into the spotlight were some that had been unconditionally pardoned by King George when England declared war on Germany.

Now, if ever, the wild women of England have shown themselves to be as devoid of decency as they are unreliable, for they had pledged their word to refrain from acts against the government during the English crisis. They are supposed to be striving for the vote but if this is an example of their patriotism or loyalty, what use would they make of it? Creatures with such a slight sense of the proprieties should be kept from the functions of government, and they have more than ever displayed their fitness for confinement in some institution for the irresponsible. If there is any sincerity in their crazy emotionalism they must realize that by their treasonable conduct they have forfeited their chance to profit by the disturbances of their country.

OUR CAPABLE AMATEURS

The petty critics who waxed so cynical in their condemnation of the men appointed to American diplomatic positions abroad by the present administration are significantly silent since the beginning of hostilities, realizing that their superficial darts would fall harmless before facts. Out from the mass of contradictions and disturbing reports comes the strong assertion of efficiency and ability in the American embassies and consulates of England, Germany, France and elsewhere. The following, from a report of the British ambassador, refers to Ambassador Gerard specifically, but it is in accord with the testimony of all fair authorities regarding the men chosen by the present administration to represent America abroad:

"I should also like to mention the great assistance rendered to us all by my American colleagues, Mr. Gerard and his staff. Undeterred by the hooting and hissing with which he was often greeted by the mob on entering and leaving the embassy, His Excellency came repeatedly to see me to ask how he could help us and to make arrangements for the safety of stranded British subjects.

"He extricated many of these from extremely difficult situations, at some personal risk of himself. His calmness and savoir faire and his firmness in dealing with the imperial authorities gave full assurance that the protection of British subjects and interests could not have been left in more efficient and able hands."

MANY LOWELL RESIDENTS

DETAINED IN NORWAY AND SWEDEN AWAIT CHANCE TO RETURN

A number of Scandinavian-Americans who left this city during the summer months on a visit to Sweden or Norway, are now being detained in one of those two countries and they are awaiting an opportunity to return.

Many of them have returned to their former homes for the summer months while others took in the Baltic exposition at Malmo. Among those who have left this city are many who have purchased return tickets but they have been unable to return on account of ships being tied up in the Norwegian and Swedish ports, but it is expected that before the end of September they will all have returned.

The list of those who are away and their destinations is as follows:

Mrs. Edwin Stromberg, wife of Rev. Edwin Stromberg, pastor of the Swedish Methodist church, and her three sons, in the northern part of Sweden; Mrs. Gustaf Anderson and two sons, and Miss Ellen Karlson, province of Skane; Miss Agnes Brolin, Boras, in the province of Gotland; Miss Anna Anderson, Miss Nannie Palmquist and Miss Astrid Samuelson, in the province of Smaland; Mrs. Ulrike Gustaffson, in the province of Skane; Miss Sigurd Larson and Miss Selma Anderson, in the province of Halland; Mrs. Anna Johnson, in the city of Skelleftea, province of Westnorrland; Mrs. Mathilda Zetteman and Miss Thelma Borg, in the province of Skane; Hilmar Larson, in the city of Skelleftea, province of Westnorrland; Konstan H. Lundberg, province of Smaland; John Okvist, Skelleftea; Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmar Magnuson, province of Oland; Miss Amelia V. Johnson, Skelleftea, and Miss Selma Anderson, Norway.

BABY IN RASH OVER HEAD AND BODY

Took Out All His Hair. Itched and Burned So Could Not Sleep. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eruption Healed.

Sherman Mills, Maine.—"When my baby boy was about three weeks old he broke out with a rash all over his head and body which took out all his hair and itched and burned so bad he could not sleep. It came in the form of water blisters and when he would scratch them they would make wet eruptions which continued to grow worse until they were all over his head and body. His clothes would chafe them so that I would have to keep him bandaged.

"I tried many different kinds of soap and remedies but it continued to grow worse until I obtained a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed him with the Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment. I could see that it helped him from the very first. The sore places had taken his hair all out but by the time I had used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment three weeks the eruptions were all healed and his skin is as clear and smooth as ever. He now has a fine head of hair and there has never been any sign of the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. John Collins, Feb. 19, 1914.

TEAM MAY FINISH IN FIRST DIVISION

Lowell Club Has Come to Life Since the Big Shakeup

Mgr. Gray Has Strong Nucleus for Next Season's Outfit

But few of the fans who travel out to Spalding Park to the home games realize what a strenuous battle the Lowell club is making for a berth in the first division. It is Manager Gray's one ambition now and he is bending every energy toward accomplishing this feat.

Getting away to a poor start this season the Lowell club has gone badly from the first. Nothing seemed to break right. Although it is folly to claim that the locals would have been in the pennant hunt had they gotten the baseball breaks in the close games this year still they would now be in a far more advanced position under different conditions.

Second Base a Bugbear

Second base has proved the stumbling block to Lowell's defensive play this season. From the time that Burke was shifted to third there has been no proficient pivot sacker on the local club until the advent of McCleskey. An even half dozen second basemen were tried out by Gray with but poor results until Hughey Duffy allowed McCleskey to slip through his fingers.

If McCleskey had been with the local club all through the season it is safe to say that Lowell would be mighty close to the top today. Instead of being a team that has been battered and beaten throughout the season they would have more confidence induced by more pronounced ability to win.

Kelly and Ring

Kelly and Ring have been sold. Whether or not they make good in the big show will probably matter not a whit to Lowell for either of them are better than Class B ball players and neither one will drift back into the local camp, barring accidents.

Kelly is a first baseman who can give lessons to the majority of the first sackers in either the National or American league when it comes to covering his position. Especially is the local player strong on taking weird throws. He has no superior in any league in this department.

If the youngster can learn to sprint this winter and also pick up a little in his batting he will surely become a prominent figure in the national game. Kelly is certainly a wonderful first baseman but he stands no chance of making good with the Yankees unless he can run and bat.

As for Ring, this youngster is possessed of more "stuff" than many pitchers up there have ever had. Jimmy is only nineteen years, tall and husky, and ought to make good in fast company.

His spit ball is talked about by every club in this league. When it is breaking right it is practically unhittable. A good start seems to be all that Jimmy needs in order to remain a fixture with the Chanecmen.

Stimpson a Valuable Man

Stimpson is another sterling ball player that Gray had the good fortune to grab last spring. Stimmy is one great outfielder and has proven his worth many times this season.

It is quite likely that Stimpson also will be recalled this year at the conclusion of the New England league season. As told in The Sun earlier in the season Stimmy received a letter of encouragement from Branch Rickey in which the St. Louis manager stated that he would take him back in the fall. The local left fielder, however, has heard no more since that time.

Stimpson is certainly too classy a ball player for this league or for any other Class B organization. He has a wonderful whip, can hat and field with the best of them and is a terror on the paths. Gray will be very lucky, indeed, if he retains Stimpson for another season.

Outlook for Next Season

As we have said before first division is the best that we can hope for this year, and it will mean a hard tussle to land a berth among the first four clubs. A look into the future, however reveals the fact that we have a mighty good nucleus for a successful ball club in this city next season.

In Fahey, Dee and McCleskey, the local club has three very good infielders. They are at least the equal of any three players filling corresponding positions on any club in the league today.

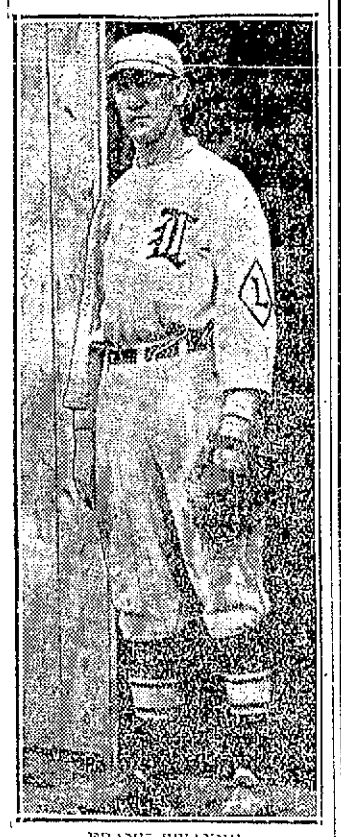

Behind the bat is Wacob. Pete got away to a very bad start this year but has worked himself into the foreground of New England catching by his splendid work during the last two months. As a substitute for him Greenhalge will also remain. Greenhalge's one capacity should be that of a pinch hitter.

Weaver, Zieser and Lohman will form a steady trio of pitchers for the season's start. There is small likelihood that either of these three men will be lost by draft or purchase.

Swayne is a Big Asset

Swayne in center field is another big asset which Lowell will have at the start of another season. This player is an exceptionally good outfielder and batter with nothing to hold him down except a poor throwing arm. Even with this defect Swayne is superior to the large majority of outfielders in the "little old league."

Therefore, from all appearances now this city bids fair to have a fast ball club in the field next season. Weakened as the leading teams in this year's race are sure to be by purchase or draft or both Lowell ought to be in the running from the tap of the gong when the 1915 season rolls around.

LATE WAR BULLETINS

BOTH ARMIES SLACKEN MARCH— LOSSES OF BOTH ARMIES APPALLING

PARIS, Aug. 29.—An official communication issued by the war department last night says:

"The situation on our front from the department of Somme, Northwest France, to the Vosges remains the same today as yesterday.

"The Germans forces appear to have slackened their march."

The apparent inaction of the armies, as indicated in the official statement, is explained by the frightful exhaustion on both sides, who for days have been fighting furiously.

The losses of both armies are appalling, particularly those of the Germans.

As an illustration of the losses sustained by the Germans, a prisoner relates that two German regiments, the 112th and 142d, were so cut down that they were made into one, and of that only 60 men now remain.

COMMANDER OF BRITISH TROOPS PRAISES KITCHENER

LONDON, Aug. 29.—1.15 a. m.—The official press bureau makes public the following bulletin sent by Sir John French, commander of the British troops in France to the war secretary:

"I shall be greatly obliged that you will tell the first lord of the admiralty how very much the army appreciates the kind messages and thoughts of the navy. Our warmest sympathy also is with our comrades in the royal navy in their trying and arduous vigil."

SAY GERMANS KILLED AMERICAN AND ENGLISH CLERGYMAN

LONDON, Aug. 29, 4.42 a. m.—A despatch to the Post from Ternensen, a seaport in the Netherlands describing the sack of Louvain from what it claims to be an authoritative source, says many citizens including women, were killed. Their nationality did not save one English and one American clergyman.

The despatch states that there will shortly start for the United States a delegation whose mission it will be to make public alleged German atrocities.

BOMBARDMENT OF AUSTRIAN FORTS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.32 a. m.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Milan says a report has reached there from Bari, Italy, that British and French warships, combined with Montenegrin guns resumed the bombardment of the Austrian forts at Cattaro on the night of Aug. 27. Two forts were demolished after six hours cannonading.

A small Austrian squadron attempted a sortie from its place of retreat at the island of Cherso but without success.

DENIES GERMAN TORPEDO BOAT SUNK

PEKING, Aug. 29.—After an inquiry at Tsing Tau the German legation denies that the German torpedo boat destroyer S-90 had been sunk.

A despatch from Che Foo, China, last night said that the British torpedoboat destroyer Welland had engaged and sunk the S-90.

FREIGHT CARS IN DEMAND

It's Easy to Peel Off Your Tan or Freckles

This is what you should do to shed a spoiled complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night; wash it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or discolored the complexion. The wax literally peels off the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, tanned, reddened, blotchy, pimpled or freckled skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

MAN FOUND DEAD

Unknown Man Believed to Have Resided in This City

LAWRENCE, Aug. 28.—The unknown man who was found dead Wednesday night by three campers at Shadow lake, beneath a canvas tent, had not been identified up to this morning. Medical Examiner L. G. Dearborn of Derry, N. H., and Dr. L. S. Soule of Salem, N. H., viewed the body and pronounced death due to cancer. It was stated this morning that the man's clothes will be searched today to find, if possible, any marks of identification.

The man is believed to have resided in Lowell. He was about 45 years old. He was at the farm of Charles Kelley at Salem, N. H., in search of his brother, to whom he said he wished to convey some property before he died.

He borrowed a pole and a piece of canvas and constructed a temporary tent Wednesday evening. Later in the evening he was discovered dead by the campers.

FIREMEN ARE REFUSED ONE DAY OFF IN SIX

Commissioner Carmichael Gives Leave to Withdraw—Lowell's $90,000 Loan is Discounted 6 per cent.

A delegation of firemen consisting of Capt. Foley of Engine 1, Lieut. Richard Burns of Engine 6, James Lannon of Truck 1, and Edward Cunningham of the protective, called on Acting Mayor Carmichael at the noon hour today for the purpose of discussing the proposition of one day off in six for the firemen.

Mr. Carmichael is commissioner of water works and fire department and one of the delegation telephoned to him this morning asking for an interview. Mr. Carmichael said he would be glad to meet them in his office at city hall at 12 m. and the delegation was on hand when the tower clock announced the mid-day hour.

The firemen argued for the one day in six on the ground that in pretty nearly every city in the commonwealth the firemen were allowed one day in five and they thought Lowell ought to get into line.

Commissioner Carmichael called their attention to the fact that the city had voted against the proposition for one day in five for the firemen and inasmuch as the public was paying the bills he thought he would have to let it go at that. He said that the voters had been very emphatic in their disapproval of the one day in five, having defeated it twice when the question appeared on the ballot.

The commissioner said he would be willing and glad to meet the firemen at any time and discuss any question of interest to them but in the present instance, he said, he would be obliged to give the petitioners leave to withdraw.

Money For Filtration Plant

The $90,000 loan for the filtration plant at the boulevard was put through today and the work of installing the plant will begin next week. The money was obtained from Bond & Goodwin of Boston, through the First National bank of Boston. The loan was discounted 6 per cent. and the actual amount received by the city was $84,600. This simply means that the city had to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent. in advance for one year.

It was deemed advisable to pay six per cent. for one year in order that the work may be started as soon as possible. Commissioner Brown allows that municipalities in the commonwealth will have plenty of difficulty in selling their bonds this year at less than six or eight per cent. and that the cities may just as well become reconciled to the fact that four per cent. paper will have to wait some time for a market.

The first work to be done at the boulevard in connection with the installation of the filtration plant will be along the excavating line and probably not more than 50 men will be engaged in the beginning. Despite the fact that the mills are running pretty full there are a great many hands idle in Lowell. This fact is nowhere evidenced more plainly than at city hall, and day after day the water department commissioner is fairly besieged by men looking for work. Supt. Thomas is away at the present time and Commissioner Carmichael takes the names of all men looking for work. When the work is ready the crews will be selected.

Complaints About Water

Commissioner Carmichael stated today that he is doing all in his power to improve the condition of the water, but despite all the department has been able to do, he said, bad water complaints are on the increase. He says that the greatest trouble is with the upper reservoir water and that a majority of the complaints come from the upper part of Centralville and Belvidere. When a complaint is received to the effect that the water is very bad at a certain point, the department sends men to blow out the pipes. This helps some, the commissioner says, but doesn't thoroughly relieve the situation.

Rifle Range Improvements

Commissioner Donnelly has assigned a gang of men to the rifle range where new targets are to be installed. The four foot targets are to be replaced by larger ones; the new targets to be six feet by six inches. The distances, however, will remain the same. The reason for changing the targets is due to the fact that the state has decided upon a uniform target. The work of installing the new targets will render it necessary to enlarge the pit and that is what the men are doing at the present time.

Playground Exercises Postponed

Because of the unpropitiousness of the weather the closing exercises at the playgrounds scheduled to take place this afternoon have been postponed until tomorrow morning at 9.30 o'clock and if tomorrow is not fair the exercises will be postponed again until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Messrs. McKay and Rountree, members of the playground committee of the park board, met at city hall at the noon hour today and decided to postpone the exercises as above stated.

The amounts paid were $1575 for the high school and $1267 for the Greenhalge school. A contract for a quantity of lumber to be used in the process of remodeling the Varney house in Kirk street and fitting it for school house purposes has been awarded to Amasa Pratt.

Purchasing Agent Foye has called for bids on one-half car of oats for the fire department.

Six applicants for chauffeurs licenses took the examination at city hall today. These examinations are given by the Massachusetts highway commission every Friday and the examiner today was Mr. Lathrop.

On Various Steamers Reaching Boston Next Week—The Italian Boats Have Slight Difficulty

During next week it is expected that more than 3262 refugees will have landed in Boston. The Franconia, which booked sailing last Wednesday, is due to dock Sunday afternoon. She carries a large number of passengers. Otto Hockmeyer and family, A. K. Chadwick, Joseph Barbour, Charles Knapp and many other Lowell people are included on the ship's passenger list. These people were booked by Leeds.

The Arabic is due to arrive Tuesday morning and it is said that she carries a larger number of passengers than ever before. She has some Lowell people aboard.

The Devonian is booked to arrive Monday or Tuesday and she also carries many passengers. The Misses Helen and Gladys Hoagland of Tyngsboro are believed to be on this boat.

The Menominee will arrive the latter part of next week. Lowell people are also included in her passenger list.

Between September 15 and 22 many more will arrive. Boats leaving Italy are not experiencing any trouble and many of them will dock in Boston between the dates mentioned.

BORROWERS COMPLAIN

CHARGE BANKS WITH WORKING HARDSHIPS TO HOLDERS OF SECURITIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Heads of national banks in this city confirmed today the report that they have received a confidential communication from Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams directing their attention to complaints registered at Washington by borrowers of money on stock exchange securities in this market. According to the letter of the treasury officials it is charged that the banks had thrown out many loans made on collateral of the most approved character and that they have in other ways worked hardships to holders of securities at this crucial period.

Acting upon these complaints, the treasury department has directed the national banks of this city promptly to furnish it with detailed information regarding its holdings of securities in loans.

The information requested calls for a descriptive list of securities carried for borrowers prior to Aug. 5 which the banks have since requested borrowers either to withdraw from loans and to pay because of dissatisfaction with the collateral. It also calls for a list of all securities on which the banks have required or are requiring a margin of more than 25 per cent.

MARIST BROTHERS RETREAT

Teachers Receive New Assignments From the Poughkeepsie Retreat—Brother Bernardin to Remain

The Marist Brothers of this city, who left here last week for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where they attended their annual retreat, returned to Lowell this morning. Only a few changes are reported in the Lowell house, and the many friends of the principal of St. Joseph's college, Bro. Leon Bernardin, will be pleased to learn that he has been assigned to Lowell for three more years.

The rule of the Marist order is that a master serve but three years at the same school, but by special permission a master may be given a second term and such was the good fortune of Bro. Leon Bernardin.

Brother Legontianus, former director of St. Paul's school in New York, has been transferred to the Hevey school in Manchester, N. H., as principal. Brother Legontianus is a native of this city and his family name is Emile Brouillette. He is at present the guest of his brothers and sisters of this city. Visiting at the Marist brothers' house is Bro. Namase, a former professor at the local school. Bro. Namase was stationed in this city during four or five years and left Lowell in 1900 for Malbaie, Que., where he opened a new school. He is now on his way to Manchester, N. H., where he will act as professor at the Hevey school.

Charles Lirette, Sr., the well known trapper, who has been in Lowell for the past few months, left yesterday for the wilderness of Alberta, Canada, where he will spend the fall and winter months trapping. Mr. Lirette will go directly to Derlingville, Alberta, where he will meet his son, Charles, Jr., and the pair will then set forth for the wilderness.

HELD UP IN WAR ZONE

AMERICAN TELLS OF EXPERIENCES WHILE MOTORING IN PRUSSIA

LONDON, Aug. 28.—4.37 p. m.—John W. Cox and Mrs. Cox, of New York, have arrived here and are the guests of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the American secretary of state and wife of Capt. Reginald Owen of the Royal Engineers. They came from Beirut.

"We were motoring in Prussia when war was declared and crossed immediately into Germany, where we were held up continually by the civil authorities. On Aug. 3 at Weisenstadt, the officials levelled their guns at our chauffeur who stopped the car. My band showed our American passports but these were disregarded by the officials, who said that they might have been forged.

"They took my husband to the police station, where they kept him for more than two hours. They tried to get me to leave the automobile but I refused as I was afraid that we would lose the machine. A hooting crowd gathered about the car, urging me to get out. There were no railroad trains and I told the crowd that I must keep the car as it was our only means of getting to Berlin.

"Women in the gathering sneeringly told me that I could stay there until the war was over. I told them I would.

"After many similar experiences in small towns, we arrived at Beirut. The attitude toward Americans changed when the order was promulgated from Berlin to treat Americans kindly. At Frankfort and other places we were greeted with a display of American flags and given candy, fruit and flowers."

Centralville Rebekah lodge, 137, met in regular session after vacation last evening. Miss Bessie Worrall, N. G., Miss May Biggs, V. G., in the chairs.

Mr. Joseph F. Roarke, clerk at the office of the building department, is spending his vacation of two weeks visiting popular summer resorts.

VALUE OF AEROPLANES

AVIATORS SAFE AT 1000 YARDS—FRENCH CLAIM AERIAL SUPERIORITY

PARIS, Aug. 29.—The value of aeroplanes in scouting work is the subject of discussion among technical observers.

"Our military aviators are rendering invaluable services," says the Temps, quoting an authority on aviation whose name is omitted for military reasons. The paper continues:

"Our aerial forces are infinitely superior to those of Germany. Besides some hundreds of military aviators all our best civilian airmen are in the service. Brindejono des-Moulnais, Roland Garros, Eugene Gilbert and Jules Vedrines are all at the front. Vedrines has just completed a raid with an apparatus of extraordinary power. Something more will be heard of this later.

"The experiences of our air people shows that an aeroplane is safe from bullets when 1000 yards high, and at 2000 yards an aviator still can observe accurately with the naked eye. As our flyers can guide a machine with one hand and use glasses with the other, the masses of the enemy cannot escape observation. The most difficult thing is to determine commands by discriminating among the uniforms.

"One danger to the French airmen is from our own soldiers, who have not learned to distinguish our aeroplanes from those of the enemy. I would suggest that we do not fire upon aircraft at all unless absolutely sure that we know their identity.

The Journal de Main-et-Loire at Angiers publishes a letter from one of the French frontier fortresses, in which the writer complains of the loneliness of the life there. It would seem that the only sport of the garrison is to watch for German aeroplanes and fire upon them. Three German airships have been brought down while the aviators were throwing bombs.

THE EMERALD ASSOCIATES

BEACHMONT SOCIETY, WITH REV. JAS. L. McGUINNESS IN CHARGE, ENJOYED TRIP TO LOWELL

The Emerald Associates of Beachmont, in charge of Rev. James L. McGuinness, formerly of Lowell, enjoyed a trolley ride to this city yesterday and after visiting all the points of interest agreed with the popular young clergyman, that Lowell is some city.

During Fr. McGuinness' stay in Lowell he made many friends and when he was assigned to the Beachmont church he told his parishioners of the many advantages of Lowell and also of the hospitality of its people. So anxious were the residents of the beach town to come to Lowell that when an outing was proposed all expressed their desire to trolley to the City of Spindles Yesterday was the day selected and the associates turned out in large numbers. Father McGuinness directed them to all the interesting places down town and then took them to Lakeview. Here they had supper and enjoyed the roller coasters, dancing and other diversions. Early in the evening they boarded their special car for home and all were loud in their praise of Lowell and congratulated Fr. McGuinness for his efficient management and averred that this year's outing was the "best ever."

GERMAN DYES COMING

WILL BE DESPATCHED TO THIS COUNTRY IN DUTCH SHIPS—REP. METZ OF NEW YORK INFORMED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—A brief cble message announcing hat Rotterdam and the chemical works along the Rhine in Germany were in communication and that the German plants would ship dyes and chemicals to Rotterdam for dispatch to America by Dutch ships was received yesterday by Representative Metz of New York.

"This means," Representative Metz said, "that the chemical industry of the United States is in touch with the German chemical factories and that they are willing to relieve the emergency that has threatened not only the chemical industry of the United States, but the textile interests and other industries which use dyes and other products of the German factories.

"It's the best news the chemical industry has received in many days, but of course it remains to be seen just what and how much the German plants now have in stock."

Mr. Metz discussed the situation today with Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and with state department officials. The question of sending Mr. Metz to Germany as a representative of the United States in the effort to open up the German sources of the world's chemical supply is held in abeyance. Ambassador Bernstorff has promised Germany's support in every way possible to facilitate shipment of chemicals for America.

One great obstacle now is the interruption of the cable to Germany.

PARIS READY FOR SIEGE

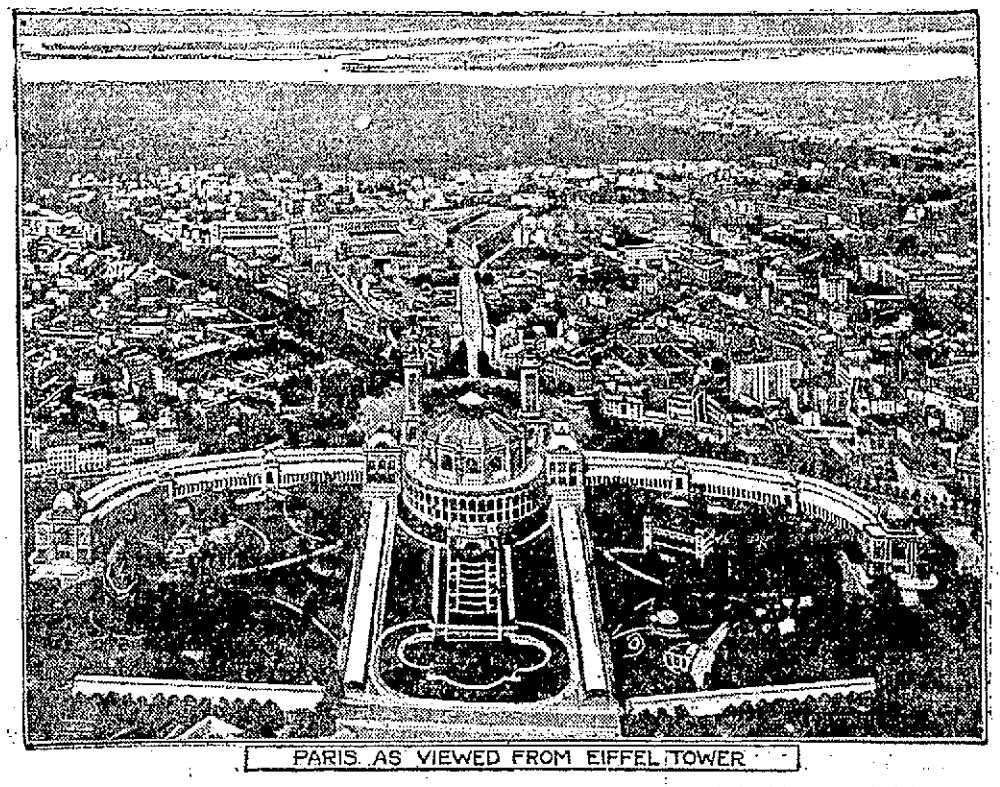

Berlin Reports Defeat of Five Russian Army Corps

Five German Warships Sunk by the British Fleet

London Admits That Situation is Critical For Allies

Austrian Troops are Pursuing Russians from Krasnik—British Troops Were Forced to Retreat Before the German Attack at Aisne, France—Fighting Scene Shifts Nearer Paris—Germans Rushing Troops From West Front to East

Thousands Were Killed in the Bombardment of Malines—Germans Prepare to Bombard Antwerp—Fierce Rioting in Danzig—Germans are Advancing in Northern France—Train Service Between Paris and Boulogne Suspended

PARIS AS VIEWED FROM EIFFEL TOWER

What little definite war news escaped the censors today reflected chiefly the situation in East Prussia, where the operations are assuming daily a greater importance. These reports are conflicting. At Berlin it is officially announced that five Russian army corps have been defeated by the Austrians and Germans south of Allenstein, 60 miles south of Koenigsburg.

Newspaper despatches from St. Petersburg on the other hand declare that Allenstein has been occupied by the Russians who are investing Koenigsburg. From the same source comes the statement that the Russians are drawing a net around Lemberg, the capital of Galicia.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts declared today that Great Britain would require hundreds of thousands of men for the present conflict.

Berlin has received a report of the defeat of the British at St. Quentin, France. If this is true it places the Germans 23 miles south of Cambrai, the scene of the recent German success.

A despatch from Paris says that train service between Paris and Boulogne has been suspended.

According to a report from Copenhagen, Germany is rushing troops from her west front to reinforce her army and that of Austria in the east.

The British foreign office announces that East Prussia is being rapidly over-run by the Russians, said to be within 20 miles of Lemberg, Austrian Galicia.

The German ambassador to the United States, Count Von Bernstorff, denied today stories of German cruelty and that Zeppelin airships had attacked anything but fortifications.

The Princess Patricia Canadian light infantry, 1000 strong, sailed from Montreal today.

ENGLAND ALARMED—MUST RUSH TROOPS TO FRANCE

LONDON, Aug. 29 (10.46 a. m.)—A Daily Mail editorial concerning the concentration of the Germans in immense strength to crush the British expeditionary force says:

"The Germans have brought the stupendous odds of three to one against the British soldiers, of whom we may well feel proud; but the situation is most critical. France has done everything in her power. Russia cannot help except by indirect pressure. Great Britain alone can find more men and find them she must. The nation must prepare on a colossal scale and must send every man and every gun that can be spared here and now to the decisive point in France."

PARIS IS READY FOR BATTLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Paris is ready for war, said Eugene N. Robinson of New York, a passenger on the Adriatic, which docked here today. The great steel skeleton of the Eiffel tower, he said, had been heavily fortified with aeroplane guns on top and a circle of forts at the base. Large numbers of German spies were being arrested in Paris daily, he asserted.

PLAYGROUND EXHIBIT

Will Be Provided at the Aiken Street Grounds Monday—Programs at Other Playgrounds Also

On Monday afternoon the parents and friends of the boys and girls who attend the Lawrence Mfg. Co.'s playgrounds in Aiken street, will be given an opportunity to inspect the work done by the little ones during vacation time. The exhibit which consists of various pieces of industrial work was scheduled to be held this forenoon in the Cheever street school, but on account of the inclement weather the affair was postponed till Monday afternoon.

The closing exercises of the playgrounds which had been postponed from Friday afternoon to this forenoon, were again continued till Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Each playground has arranged for an individual program, but it is believed that next year the exercises will be general, so that all the children of the various places of amusement will gather at one place and engage in a general program. This plan is being approved by the Middlesex Women's club and the College club, two organizations that are contributing to the care and welfare of the playgrounds.

PROTEST AGAINST ASSEMBLIES IN BEHALF OF NATIONS AT WAR MADE TO GOV. WALSH

BOSTON, Aug 29—Formal protest against the holding of public meetings in any city or town in the state in behalf of any of the nations at war in Europe was made to Gov Walsh today by Edward E. Chapman of Ludlow, master of the State Grange, and Albert G. Bryant, an official of the World Peace Foundation, who appeared as an individual only.

Objection to the holding of such meetings was made on the ground that they would be in violation of the neutrality proclamation recently issued by President Wilson and also because they might lead to similar meetings throughout the country.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 29.—The government issued a decree yesterday calling on all grocers to submit to the federal authorities an inventory of their stock and their price list. Failure to comply with this order will mean confiscation of the goods. The measure was made necessary because of the famine prices prevailing, which are causing distress and discontent among the populace.

A decree will be issued today demanding that every inhabitant deliver any firearms which he may have to the military authorities within 48 hours.

AMONG THE TOILERS

Miss Anna Duplessis of the U. S. Cartridge Co., is spending two weeks at Lynn beach.

William Jarvis of the Silesia Worsted Co., has returned from a vacation trip to New York City.

It is said that a certain young lady employed at the U. S. Bunting Co., is somewhat anxious over a ring.

John McLean of the Tremont & Suffolk mills will spend the next week in Haverhill with relatives.

John McMahon of the U. S. Bunting Co. has returned after spending two weeks at the Glendale camp.

Michael Spillane of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. will spend the next week with relatives in Holyoke, Mass.

Fred Porter of the American Safety Tread Co. will spend today and Sunday at his camp at Long pond.

Steve Hessian of the John Pilling Shoe Co. will make the trip by boat to Provincetown tomorrow. He will be accompanied by a large party.

This year gives great promise of being a year of money making for the respective employes of the mills and factories of Lowell. Reports to textile magazine from manufacturers are quite encouraging.

Hugh Boyle of the Saco-Lowell shops has returned from an extended trip to Scotland. He reports a delightful trip with no distressing incidents on leaving. He made the trip six years ago.

Quite a gathering of young men headed by Amos Turner of the Saco-Lowell shops will spend most of their time next week fishing. They have plans arranged to stop at their camp at Crystal lake.

Another game of baseball was played at Shedd Park yesterday afternoon between young men, employes of the local mills and factories, who are now enjoying their annual vacations. The game was close and exciting and was won by the Hillsides. Score: 8 to 6.

Walter Miller who has been installing machinery at the Lancaster mills, Clinton, Mass., for the Saco-Lowell shops, has left Clinton for Waterville, Me., where he has been transferred.

The Buckhorn club are holding forth in their spacious rooms in South Whipple street every evening, and judging from reports they are having a splendid time. In compliance with the rules, each and every member has had his hair cut in "teddy bear" fashion. The baseball team that represents the club is doing wonderfully well on the diamond this year.

Business Agent Roscoe Hall of the Machinists' union is making quite an extended stay in this city, and every day he makes more friends. He certainly is a gentleman well met.

The Saco-Lowell shops closed its plant this noon not to reopen until Sept. 8. This will throw about 2000 men out of work.

Next week, thousands of operatives will be thrown out of work, owing to the closing of local industries. The shut-down will be a welcome one, however, as it will be the annual vacation period for the employes of the respective plants. The beaches will do doubt catch many of them while Rockingham fair will draw a large crowd every day. The mills will reopen Sept. 8, and a new era of prosperity is looked forward to. The shutdown will also help to instill confidence in the people.

Heinze Electric Co.

Business at the Heinze Electric Co. is good and all departments are running. Rumors to the effect that the company would begin night operations has caused many unemployed to ask for work. No night work is contemplated at the present time. The plant will close next Saturday all day in order that the employes may enjoy their annual trolley ride to Revere.

Silesia Worsted Co.

Business at the Silesia Worsted Co. is rushing and a large quota of help is steadily employed. Many of the departments are running nights, but this cannot be laid to prosperity as a result of the war, as this company has had an unusually prosperous season.

Lowell Textile Co.

Business at the Lowell Textile Co. is booming and night work will be started in a few weeks. A number of old hands will be employed on the night work, and but few, if any, new help will be employed. This plant is situated in North Chelmsford.

Union Webbing Co.

The Union Webbing company, which occupied a building in Thorndike street has moved its machinery to a part of the Howard Braiding company's plant in East Providence, R. I., where operations will be resumed.

Mill Men Held Meeting

The Millmen's union held its regular meeting in Carpenters' hall in the Runels building last evening. Routine business of an important nature was transacted. Several applications for membership were received and will be acted upon at the next regular meeting. Speeches on the good of the union were made by many of the members. The secretary reported the union to be making progress.

Electrical Workers Held Meeting

Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers gathered in their hall in the Fiske building last evening and held their regular weekly business session. A grist of important business was transacted and two new members were admitted. Communications from many sources were read at the meeting and properly referred. Reports of various committees were accepted. The secretary's report showed the union to be in a good financial condition.

Lawrence Manufacturing Co.

It is good textile opinion that sooner or later the hosiery and underwear mills of New England will experience a boom as the result of the European war that will overshadow any registered in recent years. It is probable that for months to come the menace of the "made in Germany" label will be eliminated.

If any mill in particular were likely to feel this the big Lawrence Manufacturing company of Lowell should be the one, for it is essentially a hosiery and knitting proposition. The good fortune, too, if it materializes will be doubly welcome, for Lawrence manufacturing has been having a hard row to hoe this year. The low Underwood tariff has been letting in a constantly increasing stream of foreign importations necessitating a curtailment as high as 50 per cent. several months ago.

Last year, however, was one of good earnings for Lawrence Manufacturing. In the fiscal period from the end of April to the end of April it rolled up profits of rising $200,000, equivalent to close to 17 per cent. on the stock, or over twice the dividend requirements. This compares with indicated earnings of only 8 1-2 per cent. the year before that. The last year, in fact, eclipsed the splendid 1909 showing.

Including the newly established "depreciation account" Lawrence has a reserve aggregate of $1,136,000, equivalent to nearly $91 per share—a strong dividend bulwark. Especially is this so in view of its liquid condition, net quick assets footing up to over $142 a share.

For years from the standpoint of intrinsic value and market price Lawrence has been an anomaly. With $142 a share in "net quick," $30 would cover the market appraisal of its big Lowell plants, a basis of about $3.10 a spindle against a recognized replacement value of six to seven times that sum. On a net basis the Lawrence capitalization is only about $1.30 a spindle. Figuring in the equipment of 1750 knitting machines it is nearly true that the Lawrence properties are completely uncapitalized.

Of course, on an income basis 8 per cent., Lawrence, around 170, sells high—a 4.7 per cent. yield. The 8 per cent. rate has, however, been in force since 1906 in the second half of which the 6 per cent. rate was increased after remaining stationary since 1906. The ten-year average of disbursements is 7 1-2 per cent. But purchasers of Lawrence figure on the inevitable readjustment of capital to properly worth, having in mind the distribution of two shares for three held as an extra dividend back in 1909.—Fibre and Fabric.

SALISBURY BEACH IMPROVEMENT

Salisbury beach is likely to have a modern sewerage system and a complete rehabilitation of the water system, if the plans that are now being considered by the Artesian Water Co. are consumated. A conference between the representatives of the company and the selectmen of Salisbury was held at the beach Thursday and many phases of the plans were discussed.

It is understood that the company plans to rebuild a large part of the sewerage system of the beach and put in an up-to-date network of pipes that will care for all the demands of the beach. An important feature of the plans calls for the installation of hydrants at close intervals along the beach from the state line to the jetties.

The selectmen of the town of Westford have made up their minds to rid the town of the vegetable thieves who have been purloining in that district for some time and for this purpose they have appointed Harry Saxon of Whidden's corner, a constable, and it is Mr. Saxon's intention to devote his time running down the thieves and he predicts that Westford will be spotless in a very short time.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The newest theatrical policy will be given its initial presentations at the B. F. Keith theatre, on Labor day, Sept. 7. This was definitely determined yesterday by Manager Benjamin J. Pickett.

The policy of novelty will be probably the most versatile entertainment combination ever put forth on a local stage. It will consist of four high class vaudeville acts and four specially picked motion pictures, this show to completely change on Every Thursday. This will mean that every week eight vaudeville acts and eight motion pictures will be shown. Again, on Sundays, there will be another change.

The policy has been given a thoroughly satisfactory test in the larger cities of the country, as well as in cities of Lowell's size and general character, like Portland, Me., and Lawrence, and it has been decided to extend this in Lowell.

The prices will be 10 and 20 cents for the afternoon and 10, 15 and 25 cents for evenings, with two performances every evening, the first to begin at 7 o'clock, and to conclude about 9 o'clock. Only the best of vaudeville acts will be secured, and so far as possible the acts to be shown will be those which afford the greatest contrast to the silence of the motion pictures. Instrumentalists, singers, comedians, sketches and dancers will be among those selected. The Keith management is in a position to secure the very cream of motion pictures, as was exemplified during the supplementary season, and undoubtedly several of the masterpieces will be given.

The theatre has been cleaned and re-painted throughout, and the handsome entrance is more attractive than ever. New scenery has been painted, and several new drops have been secured, among them a most artistic moonlight one. The orchestra of the theatre will strike the very high level of past seasons, and the major portion of the theatre staff will remain as heretofore. Announcement of the bills to be presented will be made later.

LAKEVIEW DANCING PAVILION

The Lakeview Dancing Pavilion was visited by a large number of people last evening and all greatly enjoyed an evening of dancing under ideal surroundings. "The music is grand," one young lady was heard to remark as she passed the reviewing stand, as the spacious promenade around the hall is called. Her assertion was unanimous for the orchestra at the lake has an enviable reputation for perfect accompaniment and exact playing. Next week several of the latest song hits direct from New York will be introduced, while of course all of the old favorites will still hold forth. The floor is in perfect condition, being waxed every day, under the supervision of an expert. All other details are carefully attended to, and those who patronize this popular dancing emporium are assured of a most enjoyable evening among congenial environment.

LAKEVIEW PARK

Tabor's Sixth Regiment band, B. F. Tabor, leader, will give two concerts at Lakeview park Sunday. The afternoon program will be as follows:

March, The Trooper.
Concert Waltz, June.
Overture, Schausplel.
Solo for Trombono,
Mr. William Kinghorn.
Selection, "Alma."
Popular Medley, B. M. C.
Selection, Lucia Di Lammermoor.
Solo for piccolo, Meadow Lark,
Mr. Z. I. Bissonnette
Tit Bits:
(a) My Crooney Melody.
(b) Night Time in Burgundy.
(c) On Their Way to Mexico.
Finale, Naval Reserve.

The evening program will be as follows:

March, Minstrel Days.
Overture, Templewelke.
Solo for cornet, Rebecca of Sunnybrook,
Selection from High Jinks.
Tid Bits:
() That Wonderful Demogza Strain.
b) Trombonum (new).
Songs of the Day, Haviland 1914.
Duet for Flute and Horn "Serenade,"
Messrs. Anders and Bissonnette
Descriptive: The Cavalry Charge.
Remick's Big Song Revue of 1914.
Finale: Little Traveler.

THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Last call to witness the new Varieties Show at the Academy of Music will be sounded today. The entire personnel of the program, including the pictures, will undergo a complete change for the new "Pop" Sunday concert idea to be inaugurated tomorrow.

To those who have not yet been to see the big vaudeville and picture show that is holding the boards of the Academy of Music for the week-end, a word on the merits of this show might not be out of place. In addition to a fine program of guaranteed exclusive motion pictures the program includes a number of the very best vaudeville acts ever shown in Lowell.

The inimitable Jimmy Green easily takes first place on this all-star bill. He is a character comedian a little different from the ordinary. If laughing makes you sick, you'd better bring a doctor when you come to see Jimmy Green.

Then there is Pritzgow and Blanchard, a man and woman, who have a novelty act that is far and away above the average. It really must be seen to be fully appreciated and any description of its many novel surprises here would be unfair both to the act and the audience. If you want to sit up and take notice, don't miss Pritzgow and Blanchard.

The Rogers Sisters, a duo of dainty, pulchritudinous "Flappers" round out a program that hasn't got a weak spot in its entire make-up. The sisters have a routine of the very latest musical numbers now being sung and whistled in all the large cities and they know just how to "put them over." This act alone is worth twice the price of admission.

Tomorrow, the entire bill will undergo a complete change. New feature pictures, including a rip-snorting Keystone comedy and a complete new vaudeville program will make the first "Pop" concert here one long to be remembered. Fred Weber, the extraordinary yodler, Nichols and Sherwood, entertainers of class, and The Famous Artistic Trio, a novel musical offering, are but a few of the many new features to be introduced tomorrow.

There will be no advance in prices for this big show.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the attraction will be Jeanette Dupre and her own big show. Miss Dupre is the only woman in the world who produces and manages her own show and she has surrounded herself with a bevy of dazzling beauties selected from the many big New York musical comedy productions.

The prices for the first half of the week have been revised to suit all pocketbooks. There will be the usual ladies' bargain matinees every afternoon at ten cents and the evening prices will include 500 of the very best seats at fifty cents with a selected few at 75 cents. Other good seats will be sold at 85 cents.

THE OWL THEATRE

Ferocious lions are seen dashing upon a ball-room floor in the twelfth episode of "The Perils of Pauline," which attracted two big audiences at yesterday's performances at the Owl. Other pictures on the program today besides this feature are "Shorty and the Artdville Terror" in two parts, a Keystone comedy, "Our Mutual Girl" in her weekly offering, and many others, all new to Lowell. The requests have been so frequent and numerous, that the management has decided to book the film of "Tess of the Storm Country" in which Miss Mary Pickford, and the Frohman Famous Players are seen to such advantage. Grace Miller White's beautiful story of a woman's unconquerable faith has made such a hit in Lowell, that theatre-goers are awaiting another chance to see this motion-picture masterpiece, and their chance will come next Monday and Tuesday. Vocal selections every day.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Owen Davis' famous play "What Happened to Mary," adapted from the world renowned "Mary" stories that have charmed millions of readers will be the attraction in which the Merrimack Square Theatre Stock company will be seen in the coming week. Allan Dale has pronounced it the greatest comedy drama since "Shore Acres" and declares it's a play full of the joy of living. So what further guarantee can one ask. It is a play that makes no pretense to solve any industrial, social problem, exploit any new system or theory—a play that deals with simple people and simple things, one of those rare gems compelling in its interests and winsome in its charm.

To describe the plot is hardly necessary, since perhaps nine out of every ten theatre-goers have read the story. And the play follows closely along the lines of the story. As might be imagined Miss Eva Marsh, the company's popular leading lady, will be seen in the title role. Further guarantee that it will be cleverly portrayed is not necessary. Miss Marsh has made many friends since coming to Lowell, some being patrons who have personally met the little lady, but for the most part, others who have watched her work from an orchestra chair. These have been charmed by her clever acting and charming personality, and these same qualities can be relied upon to make the role of Mary the coming week, one that will in all ways be perfectly satisfactory. Mr. Sam A. Meharry who will play the opposite leading character will also be seen to especially fine advantage and other members of the company who have been allotted prominent parts the coming week are: Marjorie Rendal, May B. Hurst, Wm. Freeman, Ted Brackett, Robert Lee, Kenneth Fleming, Eugene Desmond, Jos. Thayer. Mr. Walter Woods who personally looks after the directing and staging of all the plays has arranged some beautiful stage settings.

Special attention is called to the time of starting. The matinee first act curtain rises promptly at 2 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Seats are on sale one week in advance, and the subscription list for those who desire any particular seats reserved for them each week is still open. For week commencing Monday, Sept. 7 that smashing comedy success, "Officer 666" is announced as the attraction.

CANOBIE LAKE

This evening will give amusement seekers their last opportunity to witness the eighth edition of the Homan's Musical Revue which has caused so much favorable comment among the patrons of Canobie Lake Park theatre the past three days. It is another big show of wide variety that cannot fail to please anybody and certainly the tremendous applause shows the appreciation of the audiences.

Sunday will bring a host of extra attractions to Canobie and undoubtedly the attendance will be even greater than on last Sunday for there will be a reason. From 3 until 5 o'clock there will be a free band concert at the theatre by the crack Haverhill Military band, Herbert W. W. Downes, director, and the following program will be rendered: March, "The Diplomats;" music from "The Spring Maid;" overture, "The Jolly Robbers;" grand American fantasia, tone pictures of the north and south; waltz, "The Skaters;" grand selection from "Faust;" "The Lost Chord." (the melody performed by the cornets, trumpets and trombones); popular melodies (announced); selection from the opera "Maritana;" "March of the Sheridan Sabres."

From 5 until 10 o'clock there will be a special program of feature motion pictures at the theatre and in addition to the regular big program there will be shown the moving pictures taken at Canobie Lake last Sunday when thousands of people managed to get within range of the camera. Tomorrow will give these people their opportunity and in many cases the first one, to see themselves in motion pictures and for that reason tremendous crowds are expected. The pictures, too, will be exceptionally interesting, showing as they do all of the important attractions of the park including the swimming pool where a number of amusing scenes were caught by the camera as the bathers enjoyed themselves. Among the other features in pictures to be offered will be the latest Pathe Weekly which includes more interesting scenes taken in Belgium during the terrible fighting between the armies of Germany and the allies.

Monday the Homan's Musical Revue company will offer the ninth edition of their big musical show with new songs, dances and comedy farces.

Tires at Before-War Prices

Yet We Never Got Choicer Rubber
We Never Built Better Tires

There exists now a new reason—most compelling—for buying Goodyear Tires. It results from war conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed suddenly closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cabled them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber.

And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyears. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

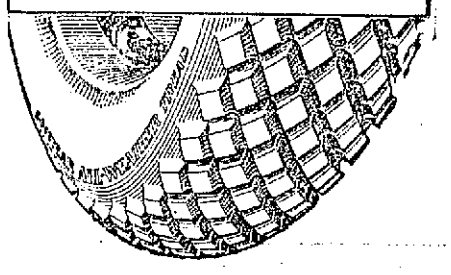

In Goodyears, we pledge you the same-grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

4 ALARM FIRE IN BOSTON

Tenants Rush to Street—Huntington Ave. Apartment Ruined—Near Panic

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—A fire last evening that illuminated the sky for miles around and caused a genuine scare in the immediate vicinity ruined the 5½-story apartment house in course of construction at 491 Huntington avenue, Feeding on lathing and other woodwork the flames spread with such alarming rapidity that four alarms were sounded, the first at 7.14 and the second being skipped five minutes later. The loss will probably be not more than $25,000.

Thousands rushed to the scene and had a rare pyrotechnic display. The apartment house was a veritable furnace. Construction had only reached the stage where the plastering was to begin. The roof, wooden floors and lathes were in place, providing admirable fuel for the fire. The windows of the 40 apartments were not in yet and there was plenty of draft.

The building was one of three now building in the block bounded by Huntington avenue, Museum road, Ruggles street and the Fenway. "The Durban," the only occupied house in the block and containing 40 suites, most of them occupied, was threatened and the occupants made a very quick exit. They were greatly scared for a short time, but soon returned to the house.

Museum School in Danger

The Museum of Fine Arts school is directly across from the burned structure on Museum road, and shortly after the arrival of the first apparatus Supt. W. W. McLean of the museum had the firemen direct several streams over the one-story school structure. The main buildings of the museum were farther away, and at no time did the flames threaten to spread to them.

When Chief McDonough arrived, he said the entire building from cellar to roof was a glowing, leaping mass, with flames breaking out from practically all the window openings. On the outside a staging of timbers had been built. Although the walls themselves were completed, the staging had been retained in order to clean the bricks. These outside timbers also caught fire, and at intervals one would topple to the ground, sending up a great shower of sparks.

After several streams had played into the building from the Huntington avenue side from deck guns mounted on the hose wagons, the firemen were seen to fall back to the other side hurriedly. Then, with a great crash, one entire section of the brick wall crumbled and fell in.

This section of wall was directly above what was to be the main entrance to the apartment house and it is extended from the street floor clear up to the roof. In toppling, most of the bricks fell inside the building. Sufficient warning had been given, however, and no one was injured.

Only the Walls Left

When the flames were finally drowned out, only the brick walls, except the section that fell, remained standing. The building is owned by Specter & Segal, neither of whom could be found at the fire.

The adjoining buildings at 499 Huntington avenue and that at 14 Museum road, both practically completed, are owned by Jacob Nason and Charles Kolodny, respectively. That the fire spread to neither of these was considered fortunate.

The fire was discovered by Arthur Gillis, a 15-year-old boy, living at 466 Parker street, who was on his way up Huntington avenue to Conant street on an errand. He chanced to look across the street and saw the entire inside of the building in flames.

He rang the alarm at Parker and Ruggles streets, then raced back to "The Durban" and notified Henry Robillard, the janitor. The latter aroused all his occupants and amid scenes of great confusion and excitement they left their apartments. One, Mrs. I. J. Breed, a cripple, had to be assisted out.

Supporting Wall Missed

The absence of any supporting wall in the middle of the building, considering its length of about 100 feet, was noted by a number at the fire. Chief McDonough expressed surprise that such a long building did not have a supporting wall in the middle and it was just where such a wall would be that the outer wall section fell in.

Mr. Kolodny, who is constructing the adjoining apartment house at 14 Museum road, was asked if the building laws required such a wall. He said that as the building department had inspected and passed on the building, it must have been all right.

The only accident reported was that Howard S. Black, 38 years old, of 6 Greenville street, Roxbury, in running to the fire was struck at the corner of Whittier and Ruggles streets by an automobile owned and driven by Raymond Mondell of 37 Westland avenue. His right arm was fractured and he was removed to the City hospital.

REAL ESTATE and BUILDING NEWS

Building activity is dropping down in this city and many claim the banks are responsible for the lack of work, for it is said that the money market is so tight that proprietors cannot get money except at a very high rate of interest.

It was predicted a few months ago that this season would be the worst in years for the building industry, but up to a couple of weeks ago, workmen of the different crafts were kept busy despite the prediction. However, the building business has felt the effect of the war. Many building projects have been abandoned because of the difficulty of obtaining money.

The scarcity of money is being felt all over the states and on account of this many large enterprises had to be given up at least temporarily. It is believed, however, that this tightness of the money market will not last very long and before the cold weather sets in work will be started on several large buildings in this city. A number of jobs that were started a month or so ago are being pushed along and it is the hope of the workmen that before they get through with the jobs on hand something else will turn up.

High School Annex

Superintendent Francis A. Connor of the public building department is rushing the job of converting the Varnum property recently purchased by the city into a school building. Mr. Connor has 12 men at work and he hopes the building will be ready for occupancy by Sept. 14, the date of the opening of the public schools. The heating system will not be taken care of until after the opening of the building.

New Building

D. J. Ring is having a residence erected at 40 Tyler park at a cost of between $4500 and $5000. The house will be of wood and will contain ten rooms, the dimensions of the building to be 40 by 32 feet. A hot water heating system will be installed.

Dr. Sparks has men at work on the building of a sleeping porch at his property, 291 Wilder street.

Carpenters are busy erecting a seven-room dwelling house for William England at 112 Upham street. The building will be steam-heated and will cost about $2500.

J. W. Flagg is making alterations in his building numbered 243-246 Fletcher street in the line of two bath rooms.

In Billerica

The Billerica Garden Homes, Inc., which recently purchased a large tract of land in the neighboring town, is getting things in shape and will soon start the construction of several dwelling houses. Under the direction of Contractor Kearney a large force of men are laying a street through the tract, building operations will soon be started. Contractor Wiggin of this city has a number of men at work on removing some of the old houses. The tenement buildings in Faulkner street have been moved back to the old T. R. & T. baseball grounds, while the houses occupied by Charles Cook and Mr. Potter have been moved to a position in the rear of Mr. Preston's home.

Fire Damage

A small gang of carpenters are busy repairing the fire damage in the Butrick building in Middle street. The burned partitions were torn down and the wood work has been started. No changes are contemplated in the building and only the fire damage will be repaired.

Middlesex Mill

Work on the construction of a new storehouse for the Middlesex company in Warren street is progressing and a part of the outside walls have been put up. An innovation in the construction of this new building will be the utilizing of cement bricks, which are manufactured by a Lowell company in North Chelmsford. These bricks are of the same dimensions as the earthen bricks and are given a 90,000 pound pressure test before being placed on the market.

The new parish house of St. John's Episcopal church, the residence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bancroft, is now ready for the painters. Although not large, it is a very pretty and attractive dwelling. When painted it will be one of the finest single dwellings in that locality. The garage in the basement is approached from the Rogers street side and the lawn and flower garden is enclosed by an ornamental wire fence. Rev. Mr. Bancroft has given very close attention to the work of construction which is first class throughout. The house is shingled with slated roof and has all the modern improvements.

THE SPELLBINDER

The Perpetual Care and John Davis trust funds continue to remain intact, but the statements in the Courier-Citizen, of a week ago Wednesday, attributed to Mayor Murphy relative to those funds, are far from remaining intact, having been punctured on Monday of this week by Acting Mayor Carmichael who manfully and courageously has placed the responsibility just where it belonged. From the statements attributed to Mayor Murphy that appeared in the Courier-Citizen, one would infer that His Honor had no previous knowledge of the attempt to turn over the Perpetual Care fund to the city in anticipation of taxes and the mayor is quoted as saying that Commissioner Brown formulated the scheme and consulted only with Commissioner Donnelly and City Treasurer Stiles in relation thereto.

Col Carmichael in his statement on Monday said:

"The mayor and all the rest of us looked upon it with favor until informed by the attorneys of the First National Bank of Boston that the transaction was not a legal one."

Col. Carmichael referring to the proposition to take the trust fund to bolster up the city finances also said:

"I don't know who was the first to suggest it but the authority of course rested with the city treasurer. The commissioner of finance, the city treasurer, the city solicitor and I think, the mayor, to-ked the matter over before the other members of the council were called in. The matter was gone over pretty thoroughly and we were a unit in declaring that we would approve of the transaction providing it was legal. There are people who are trying to lay the blame on certain members of the government and I want to state that that is absolutely unfair. If any blame attaches, each member should bear his share of it. No one member or two members of the council were responsible AND NO ONE MEMBER PREVENTED THE LOAN."

The Courier- Citizen quotes Mayor Murphy as follows:

"Commissioner of Finance Brown then formulated the plan of utilizing the cemetery trust funds amounting to $84,450, which was on deposit in seven savings banks. He placed the plan before Commissioner Donnelly and the city treasurer. These commissioners both believed the plan would be feasible. At this time it developed that the savings banks were discussing the plan of placing the 60 day notice rule on the withdrawal of deposits, so at the suggestion of Mr. Brown, City Treasurer Stiles made a hurried circuit of the banks and withdrew nearly all the fund from six of them."

Farther along the Courier Citizen says:

"Mayor Murphy, in discussing the whole transaction declared that he did not believe it good form or good business for the city to borrow its own trust funds and that he would not consent to such use of the money but would prevent it to the best of his ability."

And now comes Col Carmichael with the statement that Mayor Murphy had previously discussed the matter with the other commissioners and had agreed with them that the proposition should go through, if legal.

Col. Carmichael's manly statement of facts is decidedly refreshing in these days when political self-preservation cares little for facts and less for fairness.

It might be added that the $12,500 of the Davis fund that was going into the general treasury fund also remains intact. While the commissioners agreed to transfer the perpetual care fund, in a conference, the proceedings of which did not become matters of public record, the library trustees, of which the mayor is a member, are on record as having voted in meeting to loan a portion of the Davis fund to the city.

But nobody can deny the fact recently set before the public that Mayor Murphy saved the city $175 per year rental by abolishing the old crematory in Pinin street. This fact remains incontrovertable.

Missing Trust Funds

And still there's more borrowing ahead.

In its efforts to keep the tax rate down—that honest tax rate—the municipal council at the beginning of the year quietly passed by section 634 of the acts of 1913 entitled: "An act to provide for the payment of outstanding demand notes and the restoration of trust funds by cities and towns."

Chapter 634 reads in part as follows:

"During the year 1914 every city and town which has at the time that this act takes effect outstanding notes payable on demand, or which has expended for the general expenses of the city or town, trust funds which have not been restored, shall provide for the payment of such notes and for the restoration of such trust funds IN THE TAX LEVY FOR THE YEAR 1914 where such provision is reasonably practicable, but where it would be unreasonably burdensome to provide for such payment or restoration in the tax levy of 1914, such city or town may provide for such payment and restoration as is provided in section two of this act.

"Section two: For the purpose of paying any notes of a city or town payable on demand and outstanding, when this act takes effect, and also for the purpose of restoring any trust funds which were received by a city or town and subsequently expended by it for the general expense of such city or town, and not thereafter restored, any such city or town is hereby authorized to borrow outside the limit of indebtedness fixed by law for such city or town, a sum of money not exceeding in the aggregate the amount required for paying such demand notes and for the restoration of such trust funds, etc."

What Rex Discovered

When Mr. Rex came to town and looked over the city's books sometime ago he discovered that the Huntington hall insurance fund, $15,500, the Jonathan Tyler fund, $10,000 and two Thomas Nesmith funds, one $25,000 and the other, $1000, had disappeared and existed only on paper, having been spent for the general expenses of the past. Of these perhaps the Huntington hall fund cannot properly be called a trust fund and therefore it is gone beyond recall. But the other funds, amounting to $36,000, are trust funds and the legislature of 1913 enacted a law to compel cities and towns that have been careless with their trust funds to restore them and to do it within the year 1914, providing for two ways in which such restoration is to be made. Thus the missing $36,000, which these trust funds aggregate must be restored at the expense of the taxpayers within the next few months. After all their talk about a low and honest tax rate during the past campaign, some members of the municipal council found themselves obliged either to give up the low tax rate proposition or the honest tax rate slogan and the latter is abandoned by omitting to provide for the restoration of the trust funds in this year's tax levy, thus giving a tax rate of $21.90 when the honest tax rate would have been $22.30, an increase of 40 cents. Now it must borrow the $36,000 before Dec. 1, and with a war on in Europe it will have to pay a much higher rate of interest than it would have at the beginning of the year, if it succeeds in borrowing any money at all, which is a matter of doubt.

Paying Big Interest

It was announced within a week that the city had succeeded in borrowing $20,000 at 5 per cent. for the addition to the high school and $90,000 for the water works at 6 per cent., and the war in Europe is held responsible for the increased rates of interest. The school board and the municipal council knew months ago that they would be obliged to borrow for the school addition, but they did not take action until a few weeks before the opening of the school, and after the rates of interest had gone up, while the municipal council instead of borrowing $36,000 in the first place attempted to borrow $225,000 and was turned down. The directors of the New Haven road have nothing on our municipal council when it comes to high financiering.

The Band Concerts

It has been announced that two more band concerts will conclude the year's series of municipal concerts, and the musicians and those of the public who have stopped to consider the matter are wondering. At the beginning of the year the city appropriated $1000 for band concerts. The entire series includes nine concerts, of which three cost $100 each and six, $62.50 each, making a total of $675. Thus the concert appropriation has a balance of $325. What has become of the balance, or what is to become of it, or if the municipal council intended spending only $675 on band concerts, why did it appropriate $1000?

The Contagious Hospital

Last year or early this year the state board of health was waving a mandamus, or a decree of some other terrible thing at the city of Lowell threatening all sorts of dire happenings if the city didn't proceed at once to construct and maintain a contagious disease hospital. The hospital hasn't been constructed as yet and the state board has subsided. And it's a lucky thing, too, for if the municipal council is obliged to do much more borrowing it will be necessary to have the experts of the First National bank move up here and give their entire time to keeping us in straight financial running order.

The Gallagher Case

The school board appears to have gotten itself into an interesting mix-up as the result of the "throw down" of John F. Gallagher, a teacher in the vocational school. In June the school committee elected Mr. Gallagher, it is claimed, for one year, but at its meeting on Tuesday evening it rescinded its action and elected in his place Herbert L. Carragher. The school board offers no explanation of this action other than the statement that Principal Fisher of the vocational school recommended the change. Both Messrs. Gallagher and Carragher are said to be competent young men, in every way eligible to the position. But having elected Mr. Gallagher for one year it would seem that the school board should have some good reason for summarily removing him before the end of the year and hence it is not surprising to learn that Mr. Gallagher will protest against his removal and will report for duty at the opening of school. He will call for a hearing to begin with, and to which it would seem he is entitled and which he should have been given before being voted out of a job. Removing a man from a school position, without warning, just prior to the opening of the school season is unfortunate for the man removed even if the removal were justified for it is now too late to look with any hope of success for a school position for the coming season, all having been filled by this time. It is expected that Principal Fisher's reasons will be brought out later. The position is not worth fighting over except as a stepping stone to something higher.

Officer Crowe's Shift

A correspondent, who from the tone of his communication evidently thinks he "has something" on the writer of this column, writes to ask why The Spellbinder has not stated the cause of the removal of Officer Martin Crowe from Merrimack square, intimating that there is a reason that is being kept from the public. Just why Officer Crowe was removed, I know not. The correspondent, undoubtedly is hinting at the story going the rounds to the effect that a few evenings before his removal, Officer Crowe having learned that a man wanted by the police was in a down-town barroom sent for the patrol wagon and entering the saloon placed the man under arest at the bar and then took him out to the sidewalk where the patrol wagon was in waiting. As perversily would have it something went wrong with the wagon and it was stalled for quite a few minutes in front of the barroom to the intense indignation of the saloonkeeper who refusing to accept Officer Crowe's explanation or apology, whichever it was, threatened dire vengeance and made good his threat by making a complaint to Mayor Murphy or Supt. Welch. A local paper then commented on the case prematurely, stating that in the old days a police officer who had the temerity to interfere with the business of a liquor dealer would have fared badly, but happily such could not be the case under the present administration. Immediately afterward came the announcement that Officer Crowe had been changed to a route on the late night shift. Whether the liquor dealer's complaint or some other reason was responsible for the removal of the officer can best be ascertained by applying to Mayor Murphy or Supt. Welch. There is no doubt that Mr. Crowe is removed to a beat where the atmosphere is not so strongly contaminated with the odor of liquor.

The County Commissionership

At the Middlesex county democracy's outing last Saturday about all of the candidates for county commissioner on the democratic ticket, with the exception of Deputy Sheriff Walsh, of South Framingham, were present, and his absence was explained by friends who said that he was conducting an auction that could not be postponed, the sheriff evidently doing business like our own auctioneers, "sale will take place, rain or shine, without limit or reserve, etc." Senator Charlie McCarthy was the big noise among the commissioner candidates, umpiring the ball game and with the assistance of several energetic rooters, being made acquainted with about everyone present. While there are five or six candidates in the field, judging from the talk heard at the outing, the two favorites are Senator McCarthy and Deputy Sheriff Walsh. The latter spent a few hours in Lowell early in the week looking over the situation and from what he said he intends to give considerable attention to this end of the district. Sheriff Walsh stated that the vote of Lowell in his opinion will decide the nomination and that he is out to get that vote. He believes that the democratic candidate, provided he can get the support of the entire democracy on election day, can be elected. He states that the defection in the republican party is greater than has appeared on the surface and that the dissatisfied ones to assure a change in conditions will vote for the democratic nominee rather than waste a vote on the progressive candidate. Senator McCarthy visited Lowell a few weeks ago and expressed great confidence in his ability to pull off the nomination. As there are three candidates from the city of Cambridge the vote of that municipality will be split in all directions for Messrs. McCarthy and Walsh also expect support in the University City. Of all the democratic candidates, Sheriff Walsh is probably the best known in this city, having attended court here for many years.

Aftermath of Outing

Says the Cambridge Daily Standard: "A rumor reached the Standard office last evening to the effect that Patrick Mullen, who participated in the fast race of 50 yards or less at Lexington park on Saturday at the Middlesex democratic outing and who ended third in said race, claims he was fouled in the race by some ringer and thus robbed of the victory. As this rumor was heavily censored both before and after reaching the Standard office it may be believed that there is some foundation to the report.

This fat men's race was one of the features of the outing. The race was marred by a distressing accident, when Humphrey O'Sullivan fell in the course, tripping up a number of the runners who were unable to stop in time to avoid the spill. Just how many were spilled, and full details of the accident cannot be found at this time, as the intervening days have added to and detracted from the facts in the case. However, according to the present story, certain facts may be given credence.

First, it is claimed that Assessor Hogan got up steam and started before the signal was given. Second, Patrick Mullen and Peter J. Nolligan, who ended second, were delayed, impeded and otherwise obstructed in their course, and were forced to sand their tracks on several occasions. Therefore, it is claimed, that these two gentlemen are confident that they can walk off with the big assessor, and are willing, nay anxious, to meet him for a return match, Marquis of Queensbury rules, catch-as-catch-can, indoors or outdoors, at any time or in any place. It is understood that Assessor Hogan is a fine runner indoors. He is under all circumstances a fast man. He has had wide experience in running for office and running for assessments."

The Secret of Health is Elimination of Waste

Every business man knows how difficult it is to keep the pigeon holes and drawers of his desk free from the accumulation of useless papers. Every housewife knows how difficult it is to keep her home free from the accumulation of all manner of useless things. So it is with the body. It is difficult to keep it free from the accumulation of waste matter. Unless the waste is promptly eliminated the machinery of the body soon becomes clogged. This is the beginning of most human ills.

EUROPE'S MOST TALKED ABOUT WAR PERSONAGE, THE GERMAN KAISER, PICTURED FROM CHILDHOOD THROUGH THE YEARS TO THE PRESENT DAY

Kaiser Wilhelm, easily the most important single personage in the great European conflict, is fifty-five years old. These pictures show him at various ages, from five up to the present day. The German emperor, who is now in the twenty-sixth year of his reign, finds himself almost fighting the world alone. With Austria he is arrayed against Russia, France, England, Japan and Belgium, with the likelihood that Italy will throw her forces against him. Necessarily he is almost bitterly condemned and most warmly defended respectively by his enemies and by his friends. As the first "war lord" of Europe his people pin their faith in him and in his mighty fighting machine even against such tremendous odds. Will their faith be justified? What will the fates decree for this most powerful, resourceful and militant ruler who has risked the future of a great and prosperous empire and his own dynasty upon war?

GERMAN AMBASSADOR

Says the Messages From Berlin Have Brought Truth—Defends Zeppelin Airship Incident

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, conferred with Secretary Bryan today on the censorship of German-owned wireless stations. Secretary Bryan said afterward that the question still was unsettled.

The ambassador touching on the question of anti-German sentiment said he felt the American people must realize that although delayed and censored, messages from Berlin have brought the truth and that many reports from London have been disproved. Fairness, the ambassador said, he believed would result in an unprejudiced view. Fighting on the Russian border, the ambassador said, had merely been clashes of outposts. The country is open and unfortified, he explained; the towns reported captured by Russians are undefended and unimportant points. No Russian despatches, the count declared, had mentioned engagements with more than one of the Prussion army corps.

In reply to the charge of the allies of violation of the rules of warfare by Germany, the ambassador said that a French aeroplane flew over neutral Belgium on the first day of the declaration of war and before German soldiers had crossed the border bent on destroying the Rhine bridges; flew as far as Coblenz and dropped several bombs into the city.

In defense of the action of the Zeppelin airship in dropping bombs into Antwerp, Count Von Bernstorff declared that in Germany the presence of women and children in a fortress, unlike conditions in the city of Antwerp, was not permitted. Attack upon a fortress in modern warfare, he pointed out, may be carried on from the air as well as from the siege guns.

The ambassador said he would not discuss the future and he did not take up the diplomatic side of the European struggle. Before he entered the diplomatic ante room he inquired of a messenger if other diplomats were present. The messenger answered that the minister of Santo Domingo was waiting.

"Well, we're not at war with him," the ambassador remarked. "I can go in."

STORIES OF THE BATTLE

LONDON, Aug. 28.—3.20 a. m.—The Rouen correspondent of the Daily Mail in a despatch to his paper describes the arrival of British wounded there and gives their stories of the fight. He says the wounded, despite their injuries displayed a cheerful stoicism. They had all come from the fight in the neighborhood of Mons, where two French army corps had successfully held off the enemy on Sunday and Monday. The British, the correspondent says, had taken the field immediately upon their arrival after several days' march. They arrived just in time to stem the German onrush. Although sorely in need of rest, they behaved like fresh troops and held their ground with splendid courage, earning General Joffre's warm praise.

Not many of the British have bad wounds. Most of those who were able talked with picturesque profanity about their bad luck. One described how his regiment, ordered out of Mons Sunday morning, came under fire immediately. They had no trenches or cover of any kind and were obliged to lie down all day and pop up their heads occasionally to fire.

Another of the British wounded said:

"We marched into Mons Sunday about ten in the morning and were just about to be billeted when marching orders came and we were off again. We were to advance under cover of artillery fire but the enemy was doing a bit of artillery work, too, so we threw up trenches and snuggled down to wait for whatever might happen.

"We did not wait long. The German gunners were over a ridge two or three miles in front and their shells came whistling around us. I got my baptism of fire and at first did not like it. Fortunately most of their shells burst behind us and did no harm."

Some curious rumors are current in the British lines, the Mail's correspondent continues: One of the soldiers continued: Russians reached Berlin and were driving the Germans on to the British lines "so that we can crumple them up."

Some of the British soldiers are highly irritated because they did not see enough of fighting. One said: "I hardly saw a German. I came on one German infantryman while marching through a village and he began talking to me, saying 'Yah, Yah' or someing like that. What did I do? I ran my bayonet through him and would do so again."

A fusilier told the correspondent of the street fighting in a colliery town. He said: "It was mostly desultory fighting but there were stirring bayonet charges by the British. The Germans don't like that sort of thing. They quit the neighborhood as soon as it starts. One time we ran up within seeing distance of a huge mass of the enemy in close formation. Our machine guns did them up properly. When we catch them like that they don't ask for two helpings."

One of the hussars spoke enthusiastically of the work of the British artillery.

"There was one battery or rather half a battery in rather an exposed position," he said, "which was doing a lot of damage to the Germans, so they trained several of their batteries on it in an endeavor to silence. It was a fight between one David and a half a dozen Goliaths. One by one the guns were silenced until only a single gun and a single gunner remained. He went on doing the best he could, steadily and calmly and would have gone on until he dropped except that an officer called him back and he went back unwillingly."

FIRES IN OIL FIELDS

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 28—Heavy rains at Healdton last night aided in bringing under control the fire which started late yesterday in the oil fields near here. The burning oil destroyed practically everything within an area of two square miles. The loss is estimated at $200,000 with $150,000 insurance.

At Cushing where another oil fire burned for some time yesterday about $200,000 barrels of oil were destroyed before it was extinguished.

POSTOFFICE CLERK

Victor Turnquist Has Reason to Feel Deeply Interested in the European War Tragedies

The European war has as much personal interest, perhaps, for Victor Turnquist, a clerk at the local postoffice, as for any many in Lowell. Mr. Turnquist received a letter a few days ago stating that ships on which his father and brother were engaged had been captured by the Russians. The letter was from another brother and Mr. Turnquist said his brother did not go much into detail. His father and brother were both on Swedish vessels. Sweden is a neutral country and Mr. Turnquist does not understand why Russia should interfere with Swedish vessels. He thinks, perhaps, that the ships were simply detained for examination. He expects to hear the full details later on.

ENGLISH BUS CONVEYING SOLDIERS TO STATION FOR FRANCE

London is becoming more and more like a military camp. The busses have been commandeered and are being used to transport soldiers through the city to the railroad terminals, and they will also be used to take the wounded to the hospitals when they arrive from Belgium and France. Cambridge and Oxford universities have been turned into hospitals, awaiting the wounded. Other institutions have been closed to students and cots placed in the dormitories. England realizes that this is a serious war and that many lives will be sacrificed and many thousands wounded.

FIREMAN SUSPENDED

FOR FIVE DAYS FOR FAILURE TO OBSERVE RULES IN REGARD TO APPEARANCE ON STREET

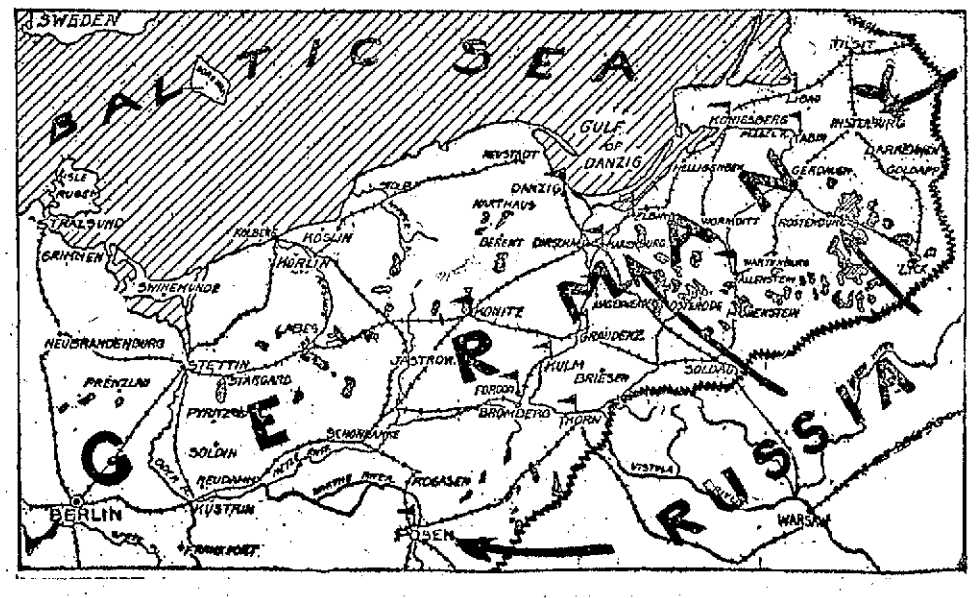

A lieutenant at the central fire station has the distinction of being the first man to be suspended for failing to live up to the requirements of article 27 of the rules and regulations of the department.

This article states that permanent members shall not be allowed to go outside their respective houses without being in uniform, and coat buttoned entire. The article provides that any man so reported shall be suspended one day without pay for each offence, except he is going to or from an alarm of fire or engaged in some special duty.

The lieutenant in question was suspended for five days and the charge against him was, it is stated, for appearing in the street in his shirt sleeves and also with his coat unbuttoned.

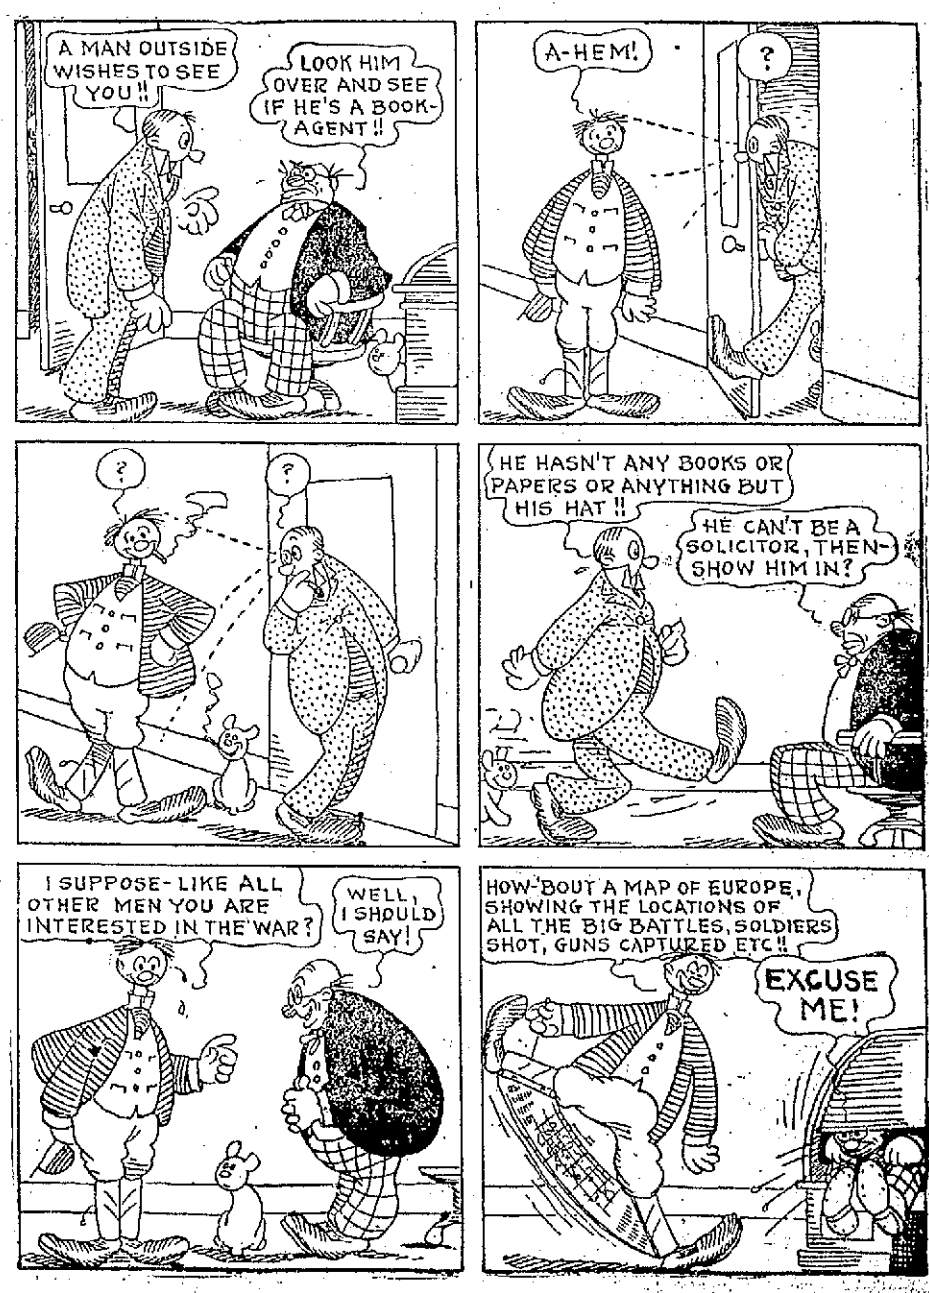

Asked if it were true that he had suspended, or had caused to be suspended for five days, a fireman who appeared in the street in uniform, and his coat unbuttoned, Chief Saunders said: "Yes, that is true. The man returned to work this morning after a suspension of five days. I had warned him several times not to appear in the street in his shirt sleeves or with his coat unbuttoned while on duty, but he ignored my instructions and I decided that the best way to make him mind was to suspend him under the rules. I do not wish to be hard on the firemen and I am sure I do not want to be finicky, but I propose that when, as chief of the fire department, I give an order to a member of the department, the order must be obeyed."

THE GOD OF BATTLES

To many in this country who are outside the horrible influences of the European war there is something almost blasphemous in the way some of the principals exultingly attribute victories to God, as though the Almighty Father could look approvingly on the spectacle of awful fratricidal strife among his puny children. The day has gone by when battle appeals to God sound convincing, and the myriads who bow to him in the name of a common Christianity no longer picture his might as it shone forth on the mountain of Sinai or as when it held the sun above the horizon to aid the hosts of Joshua. Kaisers, emperors and kings may have moments of mental exaltation during which they see the lord of creation leading on their hosts to victory but those whom war will affect more directly will not see it in the same light. Francis Joseph may wire to the Kaiser "Victory after victory! God is with you. He will be with us also," but the women of France and of Germany who weep at home for the sons who will never come back to harvest the vineyards, will raise their hands and hearts to the same God for aid in their awful trial.

There was a time when armies sallied out in a holy cause as in the old testament times of judges and kings and in the later times of the crusades and the battles against the Turks, but even then the name of the Lord of Hosts was used to shield many a crime against individuals and nations. Today, saintly men like Pius X cry out against the horrors of war and make no attempt to give it a holy significance. "Peace on earth" was the message of the angels to the shepherds of Galilee and the Christ whose churches dot the plains of Belgium, Germany and France taught the brotherhood of man and stood out as the highest ideal of peace, charity and patience which this world has seen. One who in imagination looks today on the farms of France, wasted, depopulated, torn up by fiery rains and fertilized by the decomposing bodies of sons, brothers, fathers and husbands, and compares it with the France of Millet's Angelus will feel that God is a God of peace and that all warfare must be at variance with His universal plan and His divine justice. It is far more pleasant to feel that God in His high heaven is too intently listening to the wails of the women of Europe to hear the impious claims of tyrant, emperor or king.

SEARCHING THE FUTURE

If all who are swindled in the course of a year by self-appointed prophets of the future were to bring the offenders to court the public would be astonished at the credulity of many otherwise sensible people. The nature of the fraud, however, prevents disclosures and so the dupes of the paraders of the occult hide their losses and the fakes move off to another locality to try their fortune on a new batch of subjects. Occasionally a case gets into the papers and serves as a warning to people who have some claim to common sense.

A particularly striking case was revealed a few days ago by the arrest of a "mental scientist" at Gardner, Mass., on the complaint of a confiding woman of Shelburne Falls, who had been defrauded out of $180 by the wily prophet. The accused had occupied an office for many months at Greenfield and had done a thriving business telling fortunes, varying disclosures on the past and future by side business tips that promised wonderful returns to the gullible. He promised Mrs. Pierce of Shelburne that if she gave him $180 he would reveal the location of a gold mine. She turned over the money and all she got in return was a well-defined feeling of disgust and disappointment. Luckily for the public she was not sensitive in the matter as are most victims and so she seeks to have the psychic crook punished. Incidentally the police discovered after his arrest that he has a long record and has worked various little games in all parts of the country.

The inconsistency of the fortune telling situation should impress itself on anybody with a scrap of intelligence and still many women and some men will troop to fakirs over and over again half in earnest but more seriously than they care to admit. Why do they not see that if the medium or other prophet can point out great business opportunities or sources of money they would avail of it themselves instead of telling fortunes at 50 cents or $1.00 per head? In some states such frauds are prohibited by law and a great many weak-minded people would be protected were this prohibition general.

NEEDLESS BARBARISM

It is to be regretted that the ethics of warfare have not progressed in the same degree as the terrible art itself, at least on the German side of the present conflict. The disregard of treaties and contempt for neutrality as exemplified by the invasion of Belgium have been followed by all manner of indignities, so glaring as to arouse a protest from some Americans in the consular service. Belgian farmers have been slaughtered in cold blood; outrages have been committed against women; children have in some instances been massacred. All of these things have been well substantiated and they point to a degree of needless cruelty which no exigency of war times will excuse. It may be that the superior officers do not approve of the doings of the common soldiery but Germany has been so well prepared in other things that she will not be pardoned for having neglected a few lessons in humanity. War at its best is diabolical but wars can be fought without some of the features that make such distressing reading at present. The world at large will unreservedly condemn barbarity whether it be resorted to by the Germans or by the allies and a victory gained through some of the published methods will be associated with the worst cruelty of the ages.

FIREMEN'S DAY OFF

In refusing the reasonable but untimely request of one day off in six by the committee representing the Lowell firemen, Commissioner Carmichael undoubtedly disappointed this important municipal body, but under the circumstances he could not have done otherwise. It was a matter that should have been acted on by the entire municipal council and it was entirely out of the question for Commissioner Carmichael to decide owing to the city's financial condition and to the decisive rejection of a similar proposition when submitted to the voters at the polls. Such a concession at the present time would be tantamount to adding to the ranks of the firemen a number of men equal to one-sixth of the present body, and Lowell cannot do this just at present. Undoubtedly the firemen's request will be granted at some future date, for to refuse it ultimately would be to invite the pernicious two-platoon idea which is gaining ground in Boston and elsewhere. The firemen must bide their time, confident that the public will soon approve of their request. The recent concession of one day off in fifteen to the police department does not make it any easier for the firemen to accept the adverse decision with good grace.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS

This country must look pretty good at present to the Americans stranded abroad or waiting for an opportunity to return, and as things are shaping it is most imperative that their return be not delayed any longer than is absolutely necessary. Immediately after the outbreak of hostilities an American committee was formed in London for the purpose of looking after the interests of our people. This committee has just issued a strong appeal to Americans to return as soon as possible, reminding them that tourists consume foodstuffs and increase the financial difficulties of the country in which they temporarily reside. Secretary Bryan has also issued a warning to Americans abroad to return home as soon as they may because of possibilities which may make it impossible for them to do so a little later. These appeals will undoubtedly be heeded by all tourists who read the ominous signs of the times. Should there be some important naval engagements, the safety of ocean travel even for neutral ships might be menaced, and the mobilization of Italian troops and sundry signs of disturbance around the Balkan belt indicate a possible spread of the war fires with hardship to travellers all over Europe. The American who is shaking the dust of Europe from his feet just now is a wise American.

THE CRAZY MILITANTS

If the British ministers have any time to think of domestic affairs they must be convinced that their dealing with the militants in the past was altogether too mild and was, therefore, an absolute failure, and if there are any reasonable women among the militants, they must be ashamed of the acts of the furies for the past few days. On Thursday—a day of critical tensity in government circles and of anxiety among the public—a group of fanatics strove to fight their way into the office of the home secretary, attracting the unwelcome notoriety of the world and arousing a very hostile attitude in the English mob. Among those who thus brought the militant body into the spotlight were some that had been unconditionally pardoned by King George when England declared war on Germany.

Now, if ever, the wild women of England have shown themselves to be as devoid of decency as they are unreliable, for they had pledged their word to refrain from acts against the government during the English crisis. They are supposed to be striving for the vote but if this is an example of their patriotism or loyalty, what use would they make of it? Creatures with such a slight sense of the proprieties should be kept from the functions of government, and they have more than ever displayed their fitness for confinement in some institution for the irresponsible. If there is any sincerity in their crazy emotionalism they must realize that by their treasonable conduct they have forfeited their chance to profit by the disturbances of their country.

OUR CAPABLE AMATEURS

The petty critics who waxed so cynical in their condemnation of the men appointed to American diplomatic positions abroad by the present administration are significantly silent since the beginning of hostilities, realizing that their superficial darts would fall harmless before facts. Out from the mass of contradictions and disturbing reports comes the strong assertion of efficiency and ability in the American embassies and consulates of England, Germany, France and elsewhere. The following, from a report of the British ambassador, refers to Ambassador Gerard specifically, but it is in accord with the testimony of all fair authorities regarding the men chosen by the present administration to represent America abroad:

"I should also like to mention the great assistance rendered to us all by my American colleagues, Mr. Gerard and his staff. Undeterred by the hooting and hissing with which he was often greeted by the mob on entering and leaving the embassy, His Excellency came repeatedly to see me to ask how he could help us and to make arrangements for the safety of stranded British subjects.

"He extricated many of these from extremely difficult situations, at some personal risk of himself. His calmness and savoir faire and his firmness in dealing with the imperial authorities gave full assurance that the protection of British subjects and interests could not have been left in more efficient and able hands."

MANY LOWELL RESIDENTS

DETAINED IN NORWAY AND SWEDEN AWAIT CHANCE TO RETURN

A number of Scandinavian-Americans who left this city during the summer months on a visit to Sweden or Norway, are now being detained in one of those two countries and they are awaiting an opportunity to return.

Many of them have returned to their former homes for the summer months while others took in the Baltic exposition at Malmo. Among those who have left this city are many who have purchased return tickets but they have been unable to return on account of ships being tied up in the Norwegian and Swedish ports, but it is expected that before the end of September they will all have returned.

The list of those who are away and their destinations is as follows:

Mrs. Edwin Stromberg, wife of Rev. Edwin Stromberg, pastor of the Swedish Methodist church, and her three sons, in the northern part of Sweden; Mrs. Gustaf Anderson and two sons, and Miss Ellen Karlson, province of Skane; Miss Agnes Brolin, Boras, in the province of Gotland; Miss Anna Anderson, Miss Nannie Palmquist and Miss Astrid Samuelson, in the province of Smaland; Mrs. Ulrike Gustafson, in the province of Skane; Miss Sigurd Larson and Miss Selma Anderson, in the province of Halland; Mrs. Anna Johnson, in the city of Skelleftea, province of Westnorrland; Mrs. Mathilda Zetteman and Miss Thelma Borg, in the province of Skane; Hilmar Larson, in the city of Skellfteo, province of Westnorrland; Konstan H. BABY IN RASH OVER HEAD AND BODY

Took Out All His Hair. Itched and Burned So Could Not Sleep. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eruption Healed.

Sherman Mains.—"When my baby boy was about three weeks old he broke out with a rash all over his head and body which took out all his hair and itched and burned so bad he could not sleep. It came in the form of water blisters and when he would scratch them they would make wet eruptions which continued to grow worse until they were all over his head and body. His clothes would chafe them so that I would have to keep him bandaged.

"I tried many different kinds of soap and remedies but it continued to grow worse until I obtained a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed him with the Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment. I could see that it helped him from the very first. The sore places had taken his hair all out but by the time I had used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment three weeks the eruptions were all healed and his skin is as clear and smooth as ever. He now has a fine head of hair and there has never been any sign of the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. John Collins, Feb. 10, 1914.

Lowell Club Has Come to Life Since the Big Shakeup

Mgr. Gray Has Strong Nucleus for Next Season's Outfit

But few of the fans who travel out to Spalding Park to the home games realize what a strenuous battle the Lowell club is making for a berth in the first division. It is Manager Gray's one ambition now and he is bending every energy toward accomplishing this feat.

Getting away to a poor start this season the Lowell club has gone badly from the first. Nothing seemed to break right. Although it is folly to claim that the locals would have been in the pennant hunt had they gotten the baseball breaks in the close games this year still they would now be in a far more advanced position under different conditions.

Second Base a Bugbear

Second base has proved the stumbling block to Lowell's defensive play this season. From the time that Burke was shifted to third there has been no proficient pivot sacker on the local club until the advent of McCleskey. An even half dozen second basemen were tried out by Gray with but poor results until Hughey Duffy allowed McCleskey to slip through his fingers.

If McCleskey had been with the local club all through the season it is safe to say that Lowell would be mighty close to the top today. Instead of being a team that has been battered and beaten throughout the season they would have more confidence induced by more pronounced ability to win.

Kelly and Ring

Kelly and Ring have been sold. Whether or not they make good in the big show will probably matter not a whit to Lowell for either of them are better than Class B ball players and neither one will drift back into the local camp, barring accidents.

Kelly is a first baseman who can give lessons to the majority of the first sackers in either the National or American league when it comes to covering his position. Especially is the local player strong on taking weird throws. He has no superior in any league in this department.

If the youngster can learn to sprint this winter and also pick up a little in his batting he will surely become a prominent figure in the national game. Kelly is certainly a wonderful first baseman but he stands no chance of making good with the Yankees unless he can run and bat.

As for Ring, this youngster is possessed of more "stuff" than many pitchers up there have ever had. Jimmy is only nineteen years, tall and husky, and ought to make good in fast company.

His spit ball is talked about by every club in this league. When it is breaking right it is practically unhittable. A good start seems to be all that Jimmy needs in order to remain a fixture with the Chancemen.

Stimpson a Valuable Man

Stimpson is another sterling ball player that Gray had the good fortune to grab last spring. Stimmy is one great outfielder and has proven his worth many times this season.

It is quite likely that Stimpson also will be recalled this year at the conclusion of the New England league season. As told in The Sun earlier in the season Stimmy received a letter of encouragement from Branch Rickey in which the St. Louis manager stated that he would take him back in the fall. The local left fielder, however, has heard no more since that time.

Stimpson is certainly too classy a ball player for this league or for any other Class B organization. He has a wonderful whip, can bat and field with the best of them and is a terror on the paths. Gray will be very lucky, indeed, if he retains Stimpson for another season.

Outlook for Next Season

As we have said before first division is the best that we can hope for this year, and it will mean a hard tussle to land a berth among the first four clubs. A look into the future, however reveals the fact that we have a mighty good nucleus for a successful ball club in this city next season.

In Fahey, Dee and McCleskey, the local club has three very good infielders. They are at least the equal of any three players filling corresponding positions on any club in the league today.

Behind the bat is Wacob. Pete got away to a very bad start this year but has worked himself into the foreground of New England catching by his splendid work during the last two months. As a substitute for him Greenhalge will also remain. Greenhalge's one capacity should be that of a pinch hitter.

Weaver, Zieser and Lohman will form a steady trio of pitchers for the season's start. There is small likelihood that either of these three men will be lost by draft or purchase.

Swayne is a Big Asset

Swayne in center field is another big asset which Lowell will have at the start of another season. This player is an exceptionally good outfielder and batter with nothing to hold him down except a poor throwing arm. Even with this defect Swayne is superior to the large majority of outfielders in the "little old league."

Therefore, from all appearances now this city bids fair to have a fast ball club in the field next season. Weakened as the leading teams in this year's race are sure to be by purchase or draft or both Lowell ought to be in the running from the tap of the gong when the 1915 season rolls around.

LATE WAR BULLETINS

BOTH ARMIES SLACKEN MARCH— LOSSES OF BOTH ARMIES APPALLING

PARIS, Aug. 29.—An official communication issued by the war department last night says:

"The situation on our front from the department of Somme, Northwest France, to the Vosges remains the same today as yesterday.

"The Germans forces appear to have slackened their march."

The apparent inaction of the armies, as indicated in the official statement, is explained by the frightful exhaustion on both sides, who for days have been fighting furiously.

The losses of both armies are appalling, particularly those of the Germans.

As an illustration of the losses sustained by the Germans, a prisoner relates that two German regiments, the 112th and 142d, were so cut down that they were made into one, and of that only 60 men now remain.

COMMANDER OF BRITISH TROOPS PRAISES KITCHENER

LONDON, Aug. 29.—1.15 a. m.—The official press bureau makes public the following bulletin sent by Sir John French, commander of the British troops in France to the war secretary:

"I shall be greatly obliged that you will tell the first lord of the admiralty how very much the army appreciates the kind messages and thoughts of the navy. Our warmest sympathy also is with our comrades in the royal navy in their trying and arduous vigil."

SAY GERMANS KILLED AMERICAN AND ENGLISH CLERGYMAN

LONDON, Aug. 29, 4.42 a. m.—A despatch to the Post from Terneusen, a seaport in the Netherlands describing the sack of Louvain from what it claims to be an authoritative source, says many citizens including women, were killed. Their nationality did not save one English and one American clergyman.

The despatch states that there will shortly start for the United States a delegation whose mission it will be to make public alleged German atrocities.

BOMBARDMENT OF AUSTRIAN FORTS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.32 a. m.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Milan says a report has reached there from Bari, Italy, that British and French warships, combined with Montenegrin guns resumed the bombardment of the Austrian forts at Cattaro on the night of Aug. 27. Two forts were demolished after six hours cannonading.

A small Austrian squadron attempted a sortie from its place of retreat at the island of Cherso but without success.

DENIES GERMAN TORPEDO BOAT SUNK

PEKING, Aug. 29.—After an inquiry at Tsing Tau the German legation denies that the German torpedo boat destroyer S-90 had been sunk.

A despatch from Che Foo, China, last night said that the British torpedoboat destroyer Welland had engaged and sunk the S-90.

FREIGHT CARS IN DEMAND

It's Easy to Peel Off Your Tan or Freckles

This is what you should do to shed a spoiled complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night; wash it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or discolored the complexion. The wax literally peels off the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, tanned, reddened, blotchy, pimpled or freckled skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

MAN FOUND DEAD

Unknown Man Believed to Have Resided in This City

LAWRENCE, Aug. 28.—The unknown man who was found dead Wednesday night by three campers at Shadow lake, beneath a canvas tent, had not been identified up to this morning. Medical Examiner L. G. Dearborn of Derry, N. H., and Dr. L. S. Soule of Salem, N. H., viewed the body and pronounced death due to cancer. It was stated this morning that the man's clothes will be searched today to find, if possible, any marks of identification.

The man is believed to have resided in Lowell. He was about 45 years old. He was at the farm of Charles Kelley at Salem, N. H., in search of his brother, to whom he said he wished to convey some property before he died.

He borrowed a pole and a piece of canvas and constructed a temporary tent Wednesday evening. Later in the evening he was discovered dead by the campers.

DARING ACT BY RUSSIAN COLONEL—CAPTURE OF GERMAN GUN

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.48 a. m.—A despatch from St. Petersburg to the Reuter Telegram Co. recites a daring act credited to Prinz Eristoff, a colonel in the horse artillery.

When the Germans were retreating from Stallupoehnen, a town of east Prussia, the prince ordered his men to unhitch their horses from their own guns, mount them and gallop after the Germans. Under a heavy fire the Russian cavalrymen went forward, captured the German guns and brought them back to their lines.

Emperor Nicholas has conferred the cross of St. George upon Prince Eristoff.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Ostend says that of the German war levy of $40,000,000 on the city of Brussels thus far only $200,000 has been paid, and the Germans declare that if the remainder is not made good they will seize the pictures and works of art in the museums.

In addition to the two torpedo boat destroyers and three cruisers many of the German torpedo boat destroyers were damaged.

AMERICANS AUTHORIZED TO VISIT BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—(Via London) 6.40 a. m.—The military authorities have authorized Henry S. Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war at Washington and some American officers and newspaper correspondents to visit Berlin.

GERMAN STEAMER CAPTAIN REPORTS FIERCE RIOTING AT DANZIG, GERMANY

LONDON, Aug. 29, 6.40 a. m.—A Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says the German steamer Derkid has arrived there from Danzig, Germany. The captain told of a terrible panic there owing to the fear of a Russian invasion. He said the inhabitants were in a desperate condition and that there had been fierce rioting.

BERLIN REPORTS DEFEAT OF RUSSIANS—AUSTRIANS ALSO PURSUING RUSSIANS

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—By wireless to the Associted Press via Sayville, L. I. —News of the defeat of five Russian army corps to the south of Allenstein is made public here today. It is regarded as encouraging and as greatly relieving the situation in East Prussia.

The Associated Press has been informed from official Austrian sources that the battles which have been in progress for several days past are expected to be decisive. Austrian troops are pursuing the Russians from Krasnik, about 20 miles north of the Galician frontier in the direction of Lubin.

There is no invading army between the river Bug and the river Wieprz. (These rivers are affluents of the Vistula and embrace a territory located to the east of Warsaw).

Austria, according to this same authority has invaded Russia and has occupied the region in front of Zamose.

The Austrians hold the regions to the west, north and southeast of Lemberg, Galicia, and have advanced toward the Dniester river against strong invading forces of the enemy.

No news was received here today concerning the situation on the French frontier beyond a special despatch to the Tage Zeitung declaring that the British defeat at St. Quentin was complete. The British losses were heavy and the routed British soldiers were forced to accept battle by the German cavalry, who were in masses on their line of retreat.

The location in the foregoing despatch of St. Quentin in the department of Aisne, France, as the point where the British troops were forced to retreat before the German attack, places the scene of this fighting considerably further within French territory than have previous reports.

Up to the present time the British line has been described as extending from Cambrai to Le Cateau, St. Quentin is 20 miles south of Cambrai and the same distance southwest of Le Cateau. It is within eight miles of the boundary of the department of Somme referred to in an official communication issued by the French war department last night as follows:

"The situation on our front from the department of Somme to the Vosges remains the same today as yesterday."

SAYS GERMANS, CONTRARY TO LAWS OF WAR, BOMBARDED UNDEFENDED TOWNS

LONDON, Aug. 29, 4.50 a. m.—The correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. at Rotterdam sends the following official statement:

"On Thursday the Germans, contrary to the laws of war, bombarded Malines, an open and undefended town.

"On Friday morning the town was partially occupied by German infantry, which withdrew toward the south in the afternoon and bombardment was renewed, four shells falling about each quarter of an hour.

"The enemy also bombarded the region about Heyst-op-Den-Berg, a town 17 miles southeast of Antwerp, an open locality not occupied by the military. The two operations had no less an object than to terrorize the civilian populations.

"The Germans have systematically bombarded the forts and gaps of Namur for 48 hours. The town itself suffered little. The enemy has invested the northeast portion of the place and is attacking the forts and gaps in that region. The Belgian division retired to the second line of defense, which was bombarded violently. In turn the Belgian and French troops made numerous counter-attacks.

"The Belgian division retired by way of the Sambre and the Meuse and the movement was accomplished in good order. Our troops have rejoined the French lines.

"Reconnaisances made in the neighborhood of Antwerp gave favorable results and showed the country unoccupied. Our security, therefore, is complete."

MANY KILLED AT MALINES—GERMANS PREPARE FOR ATTACK ON ANTWERP

LONDON, Aug. 29, 6.42.—A despatch to the Daily News from Rotterdam says that out of 60,000, inhabitants of Malines only 200 are now left in the town. Refugees state that many were killed by the bombardment and practically all of the remainder fled.

The Germans are bringing up heavy siege guns of a new pattern for use against Antwerp. These guns have also been used at Malines.

The Germans have ordered all able-bodied Belgians in Liege and Tongres and their vicinity to proceed at once to Germany to assist in harvesting. The news of this order is likely to swell greatly the numbers of Belgian refugees in southern Holland.

ARMIES PAUSE AFTER WEEK OF TERRIBLE FIGHTING—BURY DEAD—TREAT WOUNDED

LONDON, Aug. 29.—After a full week of terrible fighting the armies in Northern France have stopped for a momentary breathing spell. Great numbers of wounded are to be cared for, thousands of dead buried and supplies of all kinds replenished.

Yet, though the French war office last night announced a general discontinuance of the struggle along the front, there is every indication that the Germans are pushing their lines closer to the allies and preparing to deliver a sudden stroke on the west.

There is no longer any doubt but that the Germans are throwing their greatest strength against the left or west flank of the allied armies. They hope to break down the defence on the shortest road to Paris and to get between the capital and the main French army on the Lorraine frontier. It is what the Germans have themselves called the "Iron Ring."

Follow Plan That Brought Victory

This plan, in the reverse, was the one which worked out so successfully in the Franco-Prussian campaigns of 1870. Then, instead of coming in by way of Belgium, the Germans swung across the French border by way of Mainz and Strassburg, broke down the French defense on the right flank, marched rapidly upon Paris, and cut off the French armies near Metz and Sedan.

And in this new war there is every indication that the Germans are fast weakening the allies' lines in the west. The English contingent of about 700,000 men, which originally held a line somewhere between Conde, in France, and Mons, Belgium, has twice been forced back, once, it is believed, to the Valenciennes-Maubeuge line, and a second time to a line between Cambrai and LeCateau. The last two places are about 16 miles apart, and some 35 miles south of Lille and 25 from Valenciennes.

From Cambrai to Paris it is roughly 100 miles; from Nancy, on the Lorraine border, to Paris, is fully 150 miles; and should the Germans with a mighty stroke break through on the west and then swing toward the east they would threaten the existence of the French army on the Lorraine and Luxemburg borders.

May Force English to Abandon Base

It is not even certain that the English army is on the Cambrai-LeCateau line. Many believe that it has been beaten back still farther, and now is holding a position along the defensive line of Amiens, St. Quentin and LaFere, 25 miles in the rear.

Between the extreme left of the British and the seacoast of France are the French reserves, but military experts believe that they are already in retreat at many points, swinging around toward the rear in cadence with the retrograde movements of the English. If such is the case, the channel ports of Dunkirk and Calais will be uncovered and the English base will be transferred south to Dieppe or Havre.

Valenciennes Captured

At present the line of the allies in the west extends from Dunkirk to Lille, thence south to Arras, and west again through Cambrai, LeCateau and Hirson to Mezieres, on the Meuse river. From Mezieres the French army extends off to the east, to Nancy and the Vosges.

There is some question as to whether Lille is held by the French or by the Germans; but the present location of the English force, as announced officially here last night, makes it certain that Valenciennes is in German hands, and that Maubeuge is invested.

An unofficial despatch from Boulogne says that the Germans have broken through the allied lines near Arras, west of the English positions, but that the French moved up rapidly and that matters are now well in hand.

At Pont-a-Marcq and Marchiennes, both out in front of Arras, and about midway between Lille and Valenciennes, there was heavy fighting, the Germans all the while forcing themselves south and west to gain the flank of the allied armies.

It is known that in the recent fighting in that quarter of the battle line the casualties were very heavy, the British troops suffering especially.

Russia Has 10,000,000 Under Arms

The allies in France are looking eagerly to the east for relief at the hands of the Russians. East Prussia is now pretty well overrun by the czar's troops, and it is thought that within a few days they will be in front of the formidable line of defenses on the Vistula.

Many despatches from continental points forecast what is going to happen when the Russians cross to the west bank of the Vistula. But that river in its lower reaches is in some places fully a mile wide. Presumably its bridges will be destroyed long before the Russians come up to them, and the Russians will be obliged to lay pontoons, which under fire is ticklish business.

Yet the situation is a serious one for the Germans, as evinced by a despatch from Berlin to Rome, which states that Emperor William has telegraphed his council of ministers to take immediate steps toward the relief of the people of the Province of East Prussia.

Late reports from St. Petersburg set the Russian strength at 10,000,000 men. Those conversant with the situation cannot believe that Russia has nearly so many men in the field. There is the possibility that such a number of men may be under arms throughout the empire, but as garrisons must be maintained and the Siberian and far eastern stations watched, the effective field strength would be materially less.

Russians Advancing on Lemberg

On the Austrian frontier matters are also progressing favorably to Russia. The advance upon Lemberg in Galicia is persistent, and the battle for that place will be fought soon, if it is not even now in progress. Last night the Paris war office issued an announcement regarding the Austro-Russian situation, but when the London censors got through with it, it was merely an interesting puzzle. It read:

"In Galicia the Russians are taking a vigorous offensive. After successful engagements near (censored) they are marching on and are now only 200 miles from that town." The mysterious town may possibly be Lemberg itself, though military observers are inclined to believe it to be a more easterly point, possibly Krasne, 23 miles from the former city.

Fortifications About Vienna

The dispatch says the Austrian troops operating in the south, in Dalmatia and at Bosnian points, have been ordered to remain on the defensive, as a large number of troops have been withdrawn from Bosnia and sent to Galicia to oppose the Russians, "who are making alarming progress."

And from St. Petersburg comes the information that the Austrians have begun extensive works along the line of the Danube river, on the ground that it is necessary to relieve the needs of the populace by providing works."

In the midst of war a pathetic note is sounded. The orphaned children of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose assassination by a Servian was the spark that led to the present outbreak have been sent away from Vienna by Emperor Francis Joseph. They are now at Chateau Warting, on Lake Constance, Switzerland, in care of the Duke and Duchess of Para Roorschach, and will remain there until the war is over.

GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS CROSS RHINE

ROME, Aug. 29 (12.28 p. m.)—A despatch to the Giornale D'Italia from Basel, Switzerland, says three German army corps, two Austrian army corps and a great quantity of siege artillery have crossed the Rhine.

GERMAN TROOPS ADVANCING—BOULOGNE PREPARING FOR CAVALRY RAID

LONDON, Aug. 29.—4.12 a. m.—The correspondent of the Express at Boulogne wires that preparations are being made there in anticipation of a cavalry raid on the town. He says:

"The German troops are advancing in North France and Boulogne is making preparation for a cavalry raid on the town. A notice was posted this morning on the subprefectures and the headquarters of the gendarmerie stating that the troops had been withdrawn and calling on the inhabitants to remain calm, preserve order and make any sacrifices necessary for the good of their country.

"I am told the customs officials left Boulogne Friday morning and that the officials of the civil administration are ready to leave. Since Thursday night the town has been absolutely deserted by visitors. Some left by boat and others by land in the direction of Havre and Dieppe. Some of the inhabitants are leaving but as yet there has been no general exodus.

"The story is that Uhlans, who may be the vanguard of a large body of cavalry are within 30 miles of the town.

"The boat which left Boulogne Friday afternoon was filled with people, some of whom were British. The boat was unable to wait for the usual train for Paris, which was held up somewhere along the line. I am told that a number of British wounded are expected by this train.

"Several more wounded British soldiers left Boulogne Friday morning on the early boat for Folkestone. They included one airman who had both legs broken by a shot fired at him while he was in the air.

"The only vessels here are fishing boats. The usual four o'clock boat left Folkestone for Boulogne and up to a late hour at night no announcement had been made that cross channel service had been stopped."

PITCHED BATTLE WHEN AUSTRIANS ATTEMPTED TO SEIZE RUSSIANS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.34 a. m.—A St. Petersburg despatch to the Times says that the Austrians made a bold bid for the offensive today by trying to seize the left flank of the Russian position in Poland with the obvious intention of relieving the pressure on the German forces in northeastern Prussia. Two or three army corps advanced as far as Kielce, where they encountered a strong Russian force. A pitched battle was fought and resulted in the overthrow of the invaders who sustained heavy losses. It was here that the Eleventh Hungarian reserve met their fate.

Operations in eastern Galicia, according to the despatch, are developing fast and the Russian net is drawing around Lemburg. The German Allenstein army is in full retreat toward Elbing and Marienburg.

"The reported capture of Konigsburg is not confirmed," says the Times correspondent, "but I have the best of authority for stating that Konigsburg is completely surrounded."

The minister of finance has informed prominent temperance advocates that the sale of spirits would be forbidden throughout the war."

GERMANS BURN HISTORIC CITY

LONDON, Aug. 28, 7.25 p. m.—The Belgian foreign minister reports that the Belgian city of Louvain, in the province of Brabant, has been burned by the Germans.

The war information bureau announces:

"The Belgian minister of foreign affairs reports that on Tuesday a German army corps after receiving a check withdrew in disorder to the city of Louvain. The Germans on guard at the entrance of the city, mistaking the nature of this incursion, fired upon their countrymen, whom they mistook for Belgians.

"In spite of all the denials from the authorities, the Germans in order to cover their mistake pretended that it was the inhabitants who fired on them, whereas the inhabitants, including the police, all had been disarmed more than a week before.

"Without inquiry and without listening to any protest, the German commander announced that the town would be destroyed immediately. The inhabitants were ordered to leave their dwellings and some were made prisoners. The women and children were placed on trains, the destinations of which are not known, and soldiers furnished with bombs set fire to all parts of the city. The splendid Church of St. Peter, the university buildings, the library and scientific establishments were delivered to the flames.

"Several notable citizens were shot. The city, which had a population of 45,000 and was the intellectual metropolis of the low countries, is now nothing more than a heap of ashes."

BELGIAN MINISTER PROTESTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Formal protests against the burning of Louvain by German troops as a violation of international law and the laws of humanity was submitted to the state department late yesterday by Belgian Minister Havenith.

The minister was deply moved when he left Secretary Bryan's office, where for the last few weeks his visits have meant the record of pathetic history for his country.

"I bring this knowledge to the United States," said the minister sadly, "for it is not only Belgium who has to mourn. This thing concerns the whole world."

The loss of the old Church of St. Pierre was mentioned, and the destruction of the "jewel of Gothic art," the Hotel de Ville. In conclusion the message ran as follows:

"Americans, many of whom have followed courses at this illustrious alma mater, and have there received such cordial hospitality, cannot remain insensible to this outrage on the rights of humanity and civilization which is unprecedented in history."

Louvain, which lies in the famous province of Brabant, of which it was the capital in the 14th century, was the seat of the Duke of Brabant in the 11th century. The university, which is the finest in Belgium, was founded by Duke John IV. of Brabant in 1423.

The Church of St. Pierre, supposed to have been destroyed by the fire, is called by experts "the richest and most ornate example of pointed Gothic architecture in the country."

The latest advices do not state the exact amount of damage, and the German reports differ from the Belgian version.

BRITISH WAR OFFICE REPORTS ON SACKING OF TOWN OF LOUVAIN

LONDON, Aug. 29, 1.30 p. m.—The official information bureau in a statement regarding the sacking of the Belgian town of Louvain by the Germans and the German announcement that the inhabitants had fired on their troops, says:

"The assumption of the German commander was under the circumstances so wide of probability that it can only be supposed that in the desire to conceal the facts the first idea which occurred to him was seized upon as an excuse for an act without parallel in the history of civilized peoples.

"Louvain has been utterly destroyed by one of the emperor's commanders, in a moment of passion to cover the blunder of his own men."

APPEAL TO PRIZE COURT TO EXTEND TIME FOR AMERICAN CLAIMANTS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Robert P. Skinner, the American consul general in London, today appealed to the prize court to extend the period of time in which to make appearance before it for the benefit of American claimants. This period of time is now only eight days after the issue of the prize writ. He finds it difficult to inform in so brief a period the American owners of millions of dollars of goods seized aboard German ships.

BRITISH OFFICER TELLS HOW BRITISH CAVALRY SUFFERED THROUGH RUSE OF ENEMY

LONDON, Aug. 29, 3.21 a. m.—A private letter received here from a British officer at the front tells how a British cavalry regiment suffered severe loss through a ruse of the enemy.

The regiment, it seems, sighted a German battery not far off firing in a reverse direction and the British officer decided that the battery was unaware of their presence, whereupon he ordered a cavalry charge down into a valley which lay between them and the battery.

Unfortunately the bottom of the valley had been very very cleverly studded with concealed barbed wire into which a great portion of the regiment rushed before the rank could give warning. Immediately the German battery turned its guns around, inflicting heavy loss.

FIRST NATIVE TROOPS FROM NORTH AMERICA SAILED TODAY

WOMAN URGED FORHOUSE

MISS SHORES PROPOSED FROM CHICOPEE—PROGRESSIVES TO USE STICKERS IN HER BEHALF

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Some progressives of Chicopee are urging Miss Helen Shores to be a candidate for the house of representatives from the 8th Hampden district. No one has filed papers as a progressive candidate for the legislature from that district, but it is proposed to nominate Miss Shores by the use of stickers at the primaries on Sept. 22.

Miss Shores has not yet decided whether or not she will run. She is prominent in the movement for woman suffrage and is a member of the progressive state committee.

Although the state constitution does not permit women to vote, it does not in terms lay down the law that women shall not hold office. The constitution says: "Every representative, for one year at least preceding his election, shall have been an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen," etc.

Whether the use of the word "he" in that clause prohibits women from serving in the house is a question which may sometime be brought before the house itself or the supreme court.

It is said on indefinite authority that men who were not voters have been elected to the legislature in years past.

FOR STUBBORN CHILDREN

They Cannot be Cured by Scolding, Says Fr. Tierney—Way to Overcome the Abnormalities

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Stubbornness is the result of an abnormal will and cannot be cured by scolding, according to the Rev. Fr. Richard H. Tierney, S. J., of New York, who yesterday discussed the various forms of abnormal wills and their cure, before the Boston Catholic Teachers' institute in Boston college hall.

Fr. Tierney warned the teachers of the defects in a child's will power very thoroughly, and then told of the right and wrong ways to overcome the abnormalities and how to place the child on the plane with those who have normal wills.

"Eight teachers out of every 12 think that stubbornness shows strength of character," said Fr. Tierney. "This is not so for stubbornness is a sign of lack of character, and shows a great weakness of will. It is the result of an abnormal will.

"Stubbornness cannot be cured by scolding and teachers should be careful not to scold stubborn pupils. The best cure is to point out to the child some time when alone with him the folly of being stubborn. Tell the child that it shows a great defect in character. Tell him that he is vain and that he lacks strength of character. Keep at it continually. You probably will not succeed at first, but after a fashion you will notice that the child will get over being stubborn. I can remember in one case where it took me a whole year to cure a young man, but I finally succeeded.

"The ridiculousness of being stubborn will dawn on anyone if you continue to point it out. In children the best way to cure them is to arouse them to the foolishness of it. Don't shout at them or scold them, and they will soon overcome the abnormality.

"Sentimentality is another form of an abnormal will, but never let it worry you too much. It is easy to cure and will disappear itself if you will leave it alone. Every boy at some time in his life has a period where he is very sentimental and spends a great deal of time writing poetry about beautiful blue eyes. The same is true about girls, but like the boys they manage to outgrow it.

"An impetuous will is one of the hardest abnormalities to overcome in a child, and is the one we most frequently discover in the children. The best way to cure an impetuous will is to put the intellect to some task. See that it has something difficult to do and pay no attention to the child. You will find that the child will soon recover from it and become perfectly normal.

"A slow will is one that gives a teacher considerable trouble. It takes a child a long time to think, to grasp a situation, or to do anything. An excellent way to cure this sort of abnormal will is to set a time for the child to accomplish anything in. For instance give them some work to do that would ordinarily take an hour and five minutes and tell them to do it in one hour and they will soon pick up.

"Another excellent way to cure a slow will is to give it too much work and thereby arouse the interest. A slow will is generally the result of laziness and they should always be kept busy.

"A nervous will makes the children want to do one thing and then turn around and do something else. The cure for this as advocated by a number of prominent physicians throughout the country, is to assign the persons to do certain tasks at certain times so that they will eventually overcome their fault."

BATTLE OF MONS

Sergt. Loftus of British Army Tells of Victory for Allies

LONDON, Aug. 29.—2.40 a. m.—Sergeant Loftus, writing to his brother in England of the experiences of the British in the battle of Mons, says:

"It came unexpectedly at a time when we had given up hope of seeing any Germans. Just after reveille our cavalry pickets fell back, reporting the approach of the enemy in force.

"We lay in trenches as our artillery opened on them in fine style and soon they returned the compliment. We were a long time in finding the range.

"After about half an hour the infantry came into view. They were in solid squares, standing out sharply against the sky line. You couldn't help hitting them.

"We lay in our trenches without a sound and they crept nearer and nearer. Then our officers gave the word, a sheet of flame flickered along the trenches and a stream of bullets tore through the advancing mass. They seemed to stagger like a drunken man suddenly hit between the eyes and then they made a run at us. Half way across the open another volley tore through their ranks.

"By this time our artillery began dropping shells among them and then they broke into open formation, rushing like mad toward the trenches. On our left the Germans fell back in confusion and lay down wherever cover was available. We gave them no rest and soon they were again in flight.

"Then came more furious shelling of our trenches and another mad rush across the open on our front. This time they were strongly supported by cavalry who suffered terribly but came right up to our lines.

"We received them in the good old way, the front ranks with the bayonet and the rear ranks keeping up an incessant fire and after a hard tussle they retired hastily. Just as they thought themselves safe our mounted men swooped down on them, cutting right and left.

"This sort of thing went on through the whole day without bringing the Germans any nearer to shifting us.

"After the last attack we lay down to sleep in our clothes but before sunrise were told to abandon our position. Nobody knew why we had to, but we obeyed without a murmur.

"The enemy's cavalry, evidently misunderstanding our action, came down on us again in force but our men behaved very well and the Germans gave it up as a bad job."

REP. DETTRICK ASKS SEC. DANIELS TO HAVE CHAINMAKERS AND HELPERS REINSTATED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Representative Dietrick yesterday took up with Sec. Daniels expressed hope that the difficulty soon might be adjusted.

Pepperell Mills of Biddeford and York Mills of Saco Closed for Two Weeks

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 29.—The Pepperell mills in this city and the York mills in Saco closed today for two weeks. Both companies announce they will resume again at the end of that period. The shutdown involves 6100 operatives. The York manufactures colored goods, but is not as yet affected by the dyestuff situation.

"HUMAN FLY" SWATTED

RODMAN LAW STOPPED BY POLICE WHILE SCALING BUILDING

BOSTON, Aug. 29—Several thousand people stood with bated breath yesterday morning at the corner of Essex and Washington streets and watched Rodman Law, the daring young man who recently scaled the wall of the Flatiron building in New York, endeavor to do his "Human Fly" act up the side of the Bacon department store building. Law got as far as the cornice on the third floor and while he was struggling to get a foothold on the coping, the police of the Lagrange street station made their way to the third floor and appeared at the window where Law was standing and ordered him to quit under the threat of arrest.

The stage was set for a rather extraordinary thrill when the police appeared. The fire escapes on the building directly opposite on Washington street were crowded with moving picture operators and newspaper photographers who were ready to record the ascent in film.

In the crowd that watched was Miss Ruth Bancroft Law, a sister of the "Professional Nut," who is to operate the Wright biplane from which Rodman is to make a parachute jump at an altitude of 3000 feet and while the machine is traveling 60 miles an hour, each day at Rockingham fair next week.

CONFESSED AT TRIAL

"DOCK" SMITH SAYS HE SHOT SHERIFF IN KENTUCKY ON HEARING OF MURDER FUND

WINCHESTER, Ky., Aug. 29.—Just before the state rested yesterday in the trial of "Red Tom" Davidson, who is charged with complicity in the assassination of Edward Callahan, former sheriff of Breathitt county, "Dock" Smith confessed on the witness stand that he was one of the men who fired the shots that killed Callahan.

He testified that Davidson told him of a murder fund raised to pay the men who killed Callahan. After the opening of the defense Davidson took the witness stand and denied all the charges made by Smith.

It is expected the jury will get the case today.

LINER ADRIATIC ARRIVES

CREPT INTO NEW YORK PORT IN DARKNESS—1702 PASSENGERS ON BOARD

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—With six-in. guns mounted fore and aft, with every port-hole blanketed and all lights extinguished, the White Star liner Adriatic crept into port in the darkness of early morning today. She had on board 1762 passengers, nearly all Americans who were in England at the outbreak of hostilities.

Not for a moment during the long voyage from Liverpool from which the Adriatic cleared on Aug. 20, were the passengers permitted to forget that Europe was at war. By night, the steamer traveled without lights; by day her decks were thronged with her officers and sailors, practicing their gun drill for hours. It is said the vessel will go with little delay from here to Halifax to help carry Canadian volunteers across the sea.

The Adriatic's batteries consist of four six-inch rifles, two mounted on the bow and two on the stern. They were placed in position at Liverpool. On Aug. 27 the French liner France was sighted and the two vessels exchanged signals.

SIASCONSET, Aug. 29.—Steamer St. Paul, Liverpool for New York, will dock 8 a. m. Sunday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—Arrived: Steamer Olympic from Liverpool.

BRITISH CRUISER ARRIVES WITH GERMAN PRISONERS

LONDON, Aug. 29 (3.23 p. m.)—A British cruiser arrived in the Nore today with 200 German prisoners on board, chiefly from the German cruiser Mainz, which was sunk by a British fleet in the recent naval engagement off Cuxhaven.

AMERICANS AT GHENT IN NEED OF MONEY

LONDON, Aug. 29 (1.32 p. m.)—The American embassy up to the present time has been unable to get into communication with certain Americans marooned in Ghent, Belgium, who are in need of money.

The news of the plight of these travelers reached London through the state department at Washington, which received its information from the American consul at Ghent, who succeeded in making his way to Antwerp. The embassy is unable to get into communication with either Antwerp or Ghent.

ALBANIA RULER TO VACATE

LONDON, Aug. 29 (1.41 a. m.)—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., from Rome, says:

"An authentic message received here from Durazzo, Albania, states that as both Italy and Austria have withdrawn their financial support from Albania, the intention of the Albanian ruler, Prince William of Wieg, to vacate the throne in the near future, is officially confirmed."

ROME, Aug. 29 (Via London) 3.20 a. m.—The Avlona, Albania, correspondent of the Tribuna, confirms a report that Prince William of Wieg, the Albanian ruler, has left Durazzo.

PARIS WAR OFFICE SAY GERMAN LOSSES ARE HEAVY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—An official despatch from the foreign office in Paris dated yesterday follows:

"On Aug. 27 the French troops took the offensive in the Vosges and in the region between the Vosges and Nancy and their offensive has been interrupted but the German loss has been considerable.

"Our forces found near Nancy on a front of three kilometres, 2500 dead Germans and near Vitrimont on a front of four kilometres, 4500 dead.

"Longwy, where the garrison consisted of only one battalion, has capitulated after a siege of 14 days.

"In the north the English army was attacked by a superior force and after brilliant resistance moved back a little.

"In East Prussia the German troops are retiring on Allenstein. In Galicia the Russians are only 30 kilometres from Lemberg. The general army headquarters of Servia have moved forward to Zalievo."

AS TO STATE PRIMARIES

Movement to Have Polls Open Same Hours as Election Day—Views of Questions Presented

There is a movement on foot to have the hours for the holding of the state primaries changed to correspond with the hours that the polls are open on election day.

Section 115 of the laws relating to primaries, caucuses and elections, provides that the polls at every state primary shall be open during such hours, not less than nine in cities or two in towns, as may be designated by the board of election commissioners in Boston, the aldermen in other cities, and the selectmen in towns.

The city clerk, on Sept. 8, will put in the call for elections to the municipal council and it will be up to the council to say at what hours the polls shall open and close.

While it may not be advisable to open the polls for the primaries at 6 a. m., yet it is deemed altogether advisable that the polls should open as early at least as 10 a. m., instead of 11 a. m., as has been the custom in the past. There seems to be no argument in favor of keeping the polls open after 7 p. m.

It has been stated that only candidates who have something they want to "pull off" favor darkness at the polls, but be that as it may the fact remains that it would be better for all concerned to close the polls as early at least as 7 p. m. A great many hold to the opinion that the polls should open and close at the primaries at the same hours as they open and close on election day. On election day the polls open at 6 a. m., and close at 4 p. m. The argument advanced against this proposition is that closing at 6 o'clock would not give the mill operatives sufficient opportunity to vote, but this argument cannot be advanced as against the proposition to close the polls at 7 o'clock.

"I believe," said a man who has been a precinct officer for several years, "that the polls should close earlier than 8 o'clock. As a precinct officer I do not understand why they should remain open later than 7 o'clock and as a matter of fact I do not believe it necessary to keep them open later than 6 p. m.

"It has been my experience that the number of voters appearing at the polls after 6 o'clock has been very small and I do not think it would work a hardship on one to close the polls at that hour. But if there is objection to that there certainly cannot be any wise objection to closing the polls at 7 o'clock.

"I presume there are candidates who like the dark because it gives their henchmen a better opportunity to work, but I think such candidates are few and far between. I do not know why the custom of keeping the polls open until 8 o'clock at the primaries was adopted. There isn't any occasion for it.

"When it gets around 6 or 7 o'clock in the evening the precinct officers are pretty tired and to delay the counting of the ballots until 8 o'clock is a hardship and a useless one. And there is another very unsatisfactory side to the late hour at the polls. As a rule men don't drink very much during the day and if the polls closed earlier a great many more men would vote before visiting the barrooms. As a matter of fact, I think the saloons ought to be made to close at the primaries as well as on election day. But that is not part of this argument. I claim that there isn't any sound argument against closing the polls as early at least as 7 p. m. It very often happens that men active at the polls get "too much aboard" in the late evening as has been too often reflected in the count. I am certainly very strongly in favor of an earlier closing of the polls at the state primaries and the city primaries, too, as far as that goes."

IN POLICE COURT

Some Pitiful Cases Before Judge Enright—Raid in Billerica

This morning's session of police court might well be termed "Ladies' Day," for the list of female offenders outnumbered the men in the dock.

On the long bench in front of the dock sat, or partially reclined, seven members of the fair sex, some in an attitude of dejection, several of the more hardened characters in a rather jocular mood, while the two young girls on the extreme ends of the line displayed an almost total nervous collapse.

Clara Belanger and Delia Burke were arrested last night on a charge of leading a disorderly life. The Belanger girl was in terrible shape this morning and could not rise when her case was called until assisted to her feet by Court Officer Dwyer.

When placed under arrest last night she became hysterical and tried to break away from the officer and throw herself into the canal. These two cases were continued until Monday morning for trial.

Annie Dufour wept continually until her case was called, her low moans of anguish reaching the heart of everyone in the court room. Officers Petrie, Clark and Sheridan testified to many incidents in the girl's life which were not contradicted.

In spite of her lapses from grace, however, Judge Enright decided to give the sad faced little girl another chance. Her case was continued for sentence for a month. The mother of the girl took her erring daughter into her arms as soon as the trial was concluded and together they left the court room, the girl still crying as though her heart would break. It was a sad scene, even for a police court.

Liquor Nuisance Alleged

Acting upon complaints which had been made to him by several Billerica residents, Sheriff Stiles collected a posse consisting of Warren Simmons and Officer John Leighton, and swooped down upon the domicile of James and Christina Zecchini. The search warrant was issued by the local court.

Sheriff Stiles dug up enough evidence so that the Zecchini couple appeared in court charged with the illegal sale of liquor and also of maintaining a liquor nuisance. The case was continued until Sept. 5. Melvin Rogers, Esq. appeared for the prosecution.

An assault and battery case which occurred last May on East Merrimack street was brought to light today when Antoini Kososki was called for trial.

The complainant was a blonde little lady who waved aside the interpreter with a superior air and announced that she could speak "the English."

According to her story the defendant assaulted her while they were both in the house of a mutual friend. Antoni attempted to convince the court that the little blonde lady was very, very drunk at the time but his story proved unconvincing to the court. Antoni was taxed $10.

Very Sad Case

A sad case was brought to light, when Mary Guerin pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. The police testified that the woman has been intoxicated quite regularly for some time.

The woman's husband is sick and is being cared for at the City hospital and a three-year-old child is dependent upon her. In spite of a full knowledge of this fact she seems wholly unable to break away from the drink habit. The only course which seemed open to the court was confinement for the unfortunate woman, and she was led away to serve a month's sentence in the Lowell jail.

Timothy F. Donahue was in court this morning to answer to a charge of drunkenness. He had been released earlier in the day upon bail. His case was put over.

Held for Grand Jury

A marked $10 bill was the big factor in the larceny case in which John Cleconece was accused of stealing $162 from George Monstakos in police court today.

The case hinged upon the number on the bill. One of the government's witnesses testified that he took the number of the bill while it was in possession of the complainant and that later the defendant passed him the same. Judge Enright held the defendant for the grand jury. James E. O'Donnell, Esq., appeared for the defendant.

BISCUIT MEN'S OUTING

The "Uneeda" Company Gives Two Days' Outing at Nantasket—Trip By Train and Steamship

The local office of the National Biscuit company is closed today, and the reason for the suspension of work is that all employes have gone to Nantasket beach, where they will be the guests of the company for two days. This is an annual outing and it is being held for the employes of the company in 18 different offices of the state.

The Lowell delegation left shortly after 8 o'clock, each one bearing a large card inscribed "Uneeda Biscuit." The trip to the Hub was made by train and from there a steamship conveyed the excursionists to the summer resort, where an excellent program was carried out. This included bathing, baseball, tug-of-war and other events and at noon a shore dinner was enjoyed at a prominent hotel.

The guests will remain at the seashore until tomorrow evening, at the expense of the company and undoubtedly Sunday will be spent in a most enjoyable manner. Several officials of the company are expected to participate in the amusements provided for the salesmen, bookkeepers and teamsters.

THE BATTLE OF TOURNAI

Should Go Down in British History—Germans the Victors at Terrible Price

LONDON, Aug. 29, 3.30 a. m.—The Daily Mail's Boulogne correspondent, writing of the battle of Tournai, says:

"The battle of Tournai should go down in British history beside Rokes Drift and Magersfortein as a revelation of the prowess of the British army.

"At Tournai a German cavalry force of 5000 overwhelmed a British force of 700, who hourly expected relief which never appeared.

"The Germans were victors at a terrible price and only after their own ranks had been sadly thinned. The British stood their ground until all hope was lost and only 300 remained. Then they retired, calmly and coolly, carrying their wounded and harassing their pursuers all the way.

"The story of this last stand is somewhat beclouded by the British charge that the Germans finally turned the tide of battle by mounting quick firers in Red Cross wagons. The British survivors fell back on Wednesday afternoon, the fight having lasted from 11.30 in the morning. Here is the story of Tournai in brief:

"On Wednesday morning our troops had taken position slightly to the rear of the town of Tournai upon high ground. Our artillery fired effectively at first upon the German advance, but later lost the range. Toward one o'clock our position became critical.

"As every vital moment slipped by anxious eyes looked back for the promised help that was never to come. Even at the terrible disadvantage of more than ten to one, the infantry and artillery were holding their own when hordes of Uhlans seemed to suddenly swoop down from nowhere.

"Through the town they galloped with amazing disregard for themselves and up to the very muzzles of our field guns. Their losses were appalling, but survivors claim they stood their ground until armed ambulances, at least three in number, made their appearance with rapid fire guns mounted on them. Towards 2 o'clock the 300 survivors began to retire."

ARMORY A BUSY PLACE

No Chance for Letting to Outside Parties Under New Law—Annual Outing of Co. G Today

Captain Walter R. Jeyes, armorer at the local armory, when interviewed by a Sun reporter in reference to the new act of the legislature that allows for a greater use of armories for public purposes than has heretofore been possible, said: "This new bill will not affect us in the least in Lowell, for the armory is one of the busiest places in the city and with the exception of the vacation season every evening and Sunday is being taken up by military affairs."

The armorer said there is not a chance for outsiders to hold reunions of any kind at the local armory unless some of the companies agree to give up their drill or reunion dates and that is optional with the officers. He said the new act might affect some of the armories in small cities or towns but in Lowell it will bring no change.

Capt. Jeyes said it is recognized in this new act that the main purpose of an armory is for military use and every other purpose to be secondary in character and any letting of the armory is to be in a way that will not interfere with its military use, and he said this is plain for anybody. "In Lowell," he said, "the armory is being taken up every night and even Sunday forenoon and afternoon with military affairs, so it is safe to say that at no time, with the exception of the vacation season, will the armory be available to outside parties."

On Sunday morning Tabor's Sixth regiment band holds its weekly rehearsal and on Sunday afternoon a school is held for the non-commissioned officers. On Monday evenings athletics and recruit drills by the regular army sergeant or company sergeant is held.

The other evenings are taken up as follows: Tuesday, Company M's drill; Wednesday, Company C's drill; Saturday, bowling and athletics. It is expected that this fall the armory will be much more utilized for it is believed a battery section will be formed in Lowell and a Machine Gun company will take up its quarters in the state building.

The Lowell armory is recognized as the busiest of its kind in the state and it would be very difficult to let the place to other than military organizations. Besides the companies conduct social gatherings and according to the act all military affairs have precedence.

Annual Outing

Although the weather is not very favorable, the annual outing of the members of Company G is being held today at Company C's camp in Tyngsboro. The again will last two days and will be brought to a close tomorrow evening. The members of the company left this afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock and went to the camp on the shores of the Merrimack river, where a most enjoyable afternoon was spent despite the rain.

A varied list of sporting and athletic events has been arranged for the occasion and it is safe to say that keen rivalry was shown in every contest. The rules were so arranged that one man is entitled to but one prize. In the latter part of the afternoon a dainty luncheon was served, and many of the boys will spend the night at the camp. Tomorrow afternoon another list of sports will be carried out and a feature of the program will be the tub race in the river. It is expected if the weather is favorable a large number of friends of the militiamen will journey to the neighboring town tomorrow and enjoy the day out with the members of the company. The guests of the boys at the camp consist of the commissioned officers and those of the non-commissioned staff. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of the following: Sergt. Barnes, Corp. Barry, chairman; Private Carlson, Private Shaughnessey, Private McClellan.

SALEM FIRE SUFFERERS

CARROL DEVOLL WILL SUPERINTEND DISTRIBUTION OF $200,000

SALEM, Aug. 29.—Carrol A. Devoll of the quartermaster's department of the army conferred today with the committee in charge of relief work among the persons made homeless or destitute by the fire of June 25.

General Devoll will superintend the distribution of the $200,000 appropriated by congress for the relief of the fire sufferers.

Only 326 families, comprising 1206 individuals, are now being supplied with food. It was announced by the sub committee on food supplies. This is a decrease of over 150 persons since last week.

It was also stated that 40 men, whose expenses will be paid by the relief committee, will leave tomorrow for Chatham, where they will be employed in harvesting the cranberry crop on Cape Cod.

MAN STRUCK BY BOTTLE

ARGUMENT OVER POOL GAME WOUND UP FATALLY LAST NIGHT

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 29.—Joseph Makewic, aged 34, was killed during a row in a saloon on Huntington avenue last night. Makewic, with several other men, was playing pool. An altercation started and one of the party threw a pint bottle, striking Makewic over the appendix. He fell to the floor, tried to get up, but fell back again dead.

Medical Examiner Longfellow called his death "due to violence from a blow" and ordered an autopsy, which was held today. The police are searching for his assailant.

The date has not been set, but it probably will be October 13. Should the convention be held here it will be the first in Springfield since the famous "pink ticket" affair of 1907.

Mr. Fairburn was born in Lancashire, Eng. He came to this city in 1880 and secured employment with S. P. Pike in whose employ he remained two years. Later he opened another market on East Merrimack street.

THE LATE GEORGE FAIRBURN

A couple of years ago Mr. Fairburn gave up the store in East Merrimack street and when the Page building was erected he removed his business to the Runels building, where he opened one of the finest equipped grocery and provision stores north of Boston.

MISS OWEN'S PARTY HEARD FROM TODAY

Cable Despatch From Italy Says Party Will Arrive in New York About Middle of September

The latest definite information received in this city concerning the whereabouts of Miss Owen's party arrived here this morning in the form of a cable message. In the party were Miss Flora A. Owen, Miss Carrie J. Bailey, Miss Sara M. Deane, Miss Ellen A. Stillings, Miss Doris H. Kerr and Mrs. Sophie W. Wing. The cable message was received by Miss Kerr's father, Mr. John Kerr of the Hamilton Mfg. Co.

The message was dated Venezia, August 29, and stated that the party would sail on the steamer Athene from Italy, arriving in New York about the middle of September.

Miss Owen's party left Lowell, July 11, sailing on that day from Boston on the S. S. Canopic of the White Star line, for Naples. Their itinerary included Naples, Rome, Florence and Venice, in Italy; Brieg, Montreux and Lucerne, in Switzerland; Baden-Baden, Mainz and Cologne, in Germany; Amsterdam and the Hague, Holland; Paris, France; London and Leamington, England. Their calculations, however, were badly crippled by the war which broke out while they were in Italy, where they were obliged to remain. Mr. Kerr received a letter from his daughter in the latter part of July, and did not hear from her again until today.

4 KILLED AT CROSSING

Train Going a Mile a Minute Crashed Into Auto—Other Auto Fatalities and Casualties

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The Long Island railroad's heavy Amagansett express crashed into an automobile containing four persons, near here late yesterday, killing all of them, and carrying three of the bodies on the front of the locomotive for a half-mile.

The train was east-bound from New York, carrying week-end commuters toward suburban Long Island, and was said to be travelling nearly a mile a minute. The victims of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Suydam and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wilson, all of Brooklyn.

Wilson's body was carried for many yards and then fell at the trackside. He was a salesman. Suydam conducted a livery business in Brooklyn and was well known there.

The accident happened between the towns of Farmingdale and Central Park, Long Island, at what is described as one of the railroad's most dangerous crossings. The highway twists through hilly grounds on approaching the tracks, so that the view of the railroad is obstructed. A bell is the only warning to automobilists when trains are nearing the highway.

KILLED NEAR HOME

Geo. Giles, Aged 90, Run Down By Auto Driven By Woman in West Foxboro Yesterday Afternoon

FOXBORO, Aug. 29.—George Giles, aged 90, was killed in front of his home on Main street in West Foxboro yesterday afternoon by an auto driven by Mrs. Malcolm Campbell of 129 Lyman street, Woonsocket.

When Mrs. Campbell first saw Mr. Giles he was walking along the street carrying a pail of water. She brought the machine down to slow speed and sounded the whistle sharply. It is thought Mr. Giles did not hear the whistle. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell said Mr. Giles suddenly turned around, saw the approaching auto and then started to run across the street directly in its path. The machine had almost stopped when it struck the man.

AUTO STRIKES BOY

Arnold Berry of Arlington Probably Fatally Injured—William Viano of North Lexington Arrested

ARLINGTON, Aug. 29.—Arnold Berry aged 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Berry of Thorndike street, was probably fatally injured yesterday when an automobile, driven by William Viano of Bedford street, North Lexington, struck him.

The accident happened on Massachusetts avenue, near the Cambridge line, and but a short distance from the lad's home. The little fellow, in company with his brother, was crossing the street. The brother succeeded in getting over all right, but the little fellow was not so fast and was struck. He was rendered unconscious. The boy was placed in the machine and rushed to the Cambridge hospital, where it was found that he had a double fracture of the skull and his name was placed on the dangerous list. Mr. Viano was arrested and furnished $300 bond.

Stephen Jacyshyn, Motorcyclist, is Killed in Collision With Automobile in Amherst

AMHERST, Aug. 29.—Stephen Jacyshyn, aged 19, was killed last night when his motorcycle was in collision with the automobile of Dwight M. Billings, who turned his car out of the roadway in a vain effort to avoid the accident.

The motorcycle struck the axle of the car, throwing Jacyshyn against the mudguard, fracturing his skull.

COLLISION IN GLOUCESTER

Mrs. Dr. W. E. P. Emerson of Boston Slightly Bruised When Runabout and Trolley Car Come Together

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 29.—While Dr. and Mrs. W. E. P. Emerson of Boston were returning from a trip up the North Shore at 7 last evening, their runabout was in collision with an outbound electric car for Essex on Western avenue. The right side of the auto was demolished, Mrs. Emerson sustained a slight bruise on the face, but was not thrown out. She was taken to the hotel at East Gloucester where the Emersons are staying this summer. Dr. Emerson escaped without injury.

SHREWSBURY WOMAN HURT

Mrs. Louise Moore Thrown Into Street When Auto of Dr. F. A. Story Strikes Carriage

WORCESTER, Aug. 29.—An automobile, owned and driven by Dr. Francis A. Story of Natick, was in collision with a light carriage containing Mrs. Louise Moore and her two children of Shrewsbury at Front and Church streets today, and Mrs. Moore was thrown into the street, landing on her head. Mrs. Moore suffered a contusion of the scalp and a severe shaking up, but the children were not hurt. After treatment by Police Surgeon Richard J. Shannahan, Mrs. Moore was taken to her home. The shafts and one wheel of the carriage were broken. At the time of the accident the carriage was standing by the curb, and Dr. Story, in attempting to pass between the carriage and a pile of stones and earth left by workmen repairing the street railway, ran into it.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED

Sister, Happening Along Road, Identifies Albert McKenzie of This City at Ivoryton, Conn.

IVORYTON, Conn., Aug. 29.—In rounding a sharp curve in this village yesterday, Albert McKenzie, aged 22, of Boston, was instantly killed when his motorcycle skidded and crashed into a telephone pole. McKenzie was catapulted to the hard road and his skull was fractured.

He came here Thursday to visit his sister, Mrs. George G. Ingalls. He had been to a garage for supplies and had started west to her home. At Bulls Crossing there is a sharp curve and McKenzie's speed was so great that he failed to negotiate it successfully.

There were no witnesses to the accident, but workmen nearby saw McKenzie unconscious and bleeding. The injured man was unknown to them, but as they were examining him Mrs. Ingalls came along and cried as she saw the face, "It's my brother!"

STATE INSANE HOSPITAL

STARTS OUT-PATIENT DEPARTMENT FOR THOSE WHO FEAR MENTAL DISEASE

WORCESTER, Aug. 29.—Worcester state hospital is to establish a new feature in its work Tuesday night, Sept. 1. It is an out-patient department, which will be open every Tuesday night from 7 to 9 o'clock for consultation by people who are suffering from nervous breakdowns or worry and who may have a fear they are to be afflicted with a mental disease.

Dr. Ernest V. Scribner, superintendent of the hospital, is at the head of the movement, and the benefits of the department will be extended to residents of cities and towns for which the Worcester hospital is responsible.

The services of the department are free. People who are suffering from nervousness, depression and other ailments, which may lead them to think that a mental disease will eventually develop, will be at liberty to present themselves for examination and treatment, and former patients of the hospital and of other institutions will be permitted to receive the benefits of the innovation by visiting the hospital and talking over their condition and getting advice.

SALEM FUND NOT SPENT

WAR DEPARTMENT, AT SUGGESTION OF SENATOR WEEKS, CONSIDERING MATTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—On a reminder from Senator Weeks that congress had appropriated $200,000 for the relief of sufferers from the Salem fire, the war department yesterday took steps to ascertain the manner in which the money might be disbursed for the greatest benefit of the greatest number.

Gen. Devol of the quartermaster's corps has been sent to Salem to study the situation and to learn from the people themselves how best they can be helped. Although the appropriation was made some time ago, the expenditure of the money was not considered promptly and in time the war department actually "forgot" that it had such a relief fund in its care.

Senator Weeks then took up the subject with Sec. Garrison, who in turn held a conference with President Wilson, and Uncle Sam's contribution to the relief of the stricken city now may be made of use.

REFERENDUM ON REFERENDUM

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—The following question will be submitted at the state election next November to the voters in many representative districts in the state:

"Shall the representative from this district be instructed to support the initiative and referendum, so as to give the voters the power to accept or reject at the polls measures that have been proposed by petition?"

Papers for the submission of this question are being distributed from the democratic state headquarters. The paper must be signed by 200 voters in a representative district in order to insure the printing of the question on the ballot. There is little doubt that the required number of signatures will be secured in many, perhaps most, of the districts in the state.

AMERICAN REFUGEES

ON BOARD HOLLAND-AMERICAN LINER ROTTERDAM WHICH SAILED TODAY

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 29.—The Holland-American liner Rotterdam sailed from this port early today for New York bearing more than 2400 passengers, of whom 1550 were American refugees from the continent. There were 1410 of the first cabin passengers, 720 of the second class and 300 steerage. Soren Listoe, American consul general here inspected the emergency first cabin accommodations and expressed himself as satisfied. Although these quarters are located in the freight hold they are quite comfortable. There are four berths to each cabin. Special culinary arrangements were made for the passengers in this section. Officers of the steamship company assured Consul Listoe that the comfort of everybody would be given first consideration. Most of the passengers expressed satisfaction with the arrangements, although some were not altogether pleased.

Henry Van Dyke, American minister, to Holland came to Rotterdam from The Hague to bid the party godspeed. In a short address he requested that they bear in mind the times and exercise patience if their eggs happen to be boiled two seconds too long. He asked the passengers to pray that the open door to Holland be kept ajar.

ANOTHER BICYCLE STOLEN

From Front of Marks' Tailor Shop on Central Street Yesterday

Bicycle thieves are busy around town and quite a few wheels have been stolen of late. The latest case happened only yesterday. Herbert Cartwright, who is employed by Marks the Tailor, in Central street, left his bicycle standing outside the store. He entered the establishment, and was gone but a few minutes, when upon returning he found his bicycle missing. He immediately notified the police who set to work upon the case. Bicycle dealers around the city have received numerous callers of late who wanted to dispose of bicycles, but as most of the dealers have been stung at one time or another, they are naturally cautious.

VALUE OF AEROPLANES

AVIATORS SAFE AT 1000 YARDS—FRENCH CLAIM AERIAL SUPERIORITY

PARIS, Aug. 29.—The value of aeroplanes in scouting work is the subject of discussion among technical observers.

"Our military aviators are rendering invaluable services," says the Temps, quoting an authority on aviation whose name is omitted for military reasons. The paper continues:

"Our aerial forces are infinitely superior to those of Germany. Besides some hundreds of military aviators all our best civilian airmen are in the service. Brindejono des Moulnais, Roland Garros, Eugene Gilbert and Jules Vedrines are all at the front. Vedrines has just completed a raid with an apparatus of extraordinary power. Something more will be heard of this later.

"The experiences of our air people shown that an aeroplane is safe from bullets when 1000 yards high, and at 2000 yards an aviator still can observe accurately with the naked eye. As our flyers can guide a machine with one hand and use glasses with the other, the masses of the enemy cannot escape observation. The most difficult thing is to determine commands by discriminating among the uniforms.

"One danger to the French airmen is from our own soldiers, who have not learned to distinguish our aeroplanes from those of the enemy. I would suggest that we do not fire upon aircraft at all unless absolutely sure that we know their identity.

The Journal de Main-et-Loire at Angiers publishes a letter from one of the French frontier fortresses, in which the writer complains of the loneliness of the life there. It would seem that the only sport of the garrison is to watch for German aeroplanes and fire upon them. Three German airships have been brought down while the aviators were throwing bombs.

THE EMERALD ASSOCIATES

BEACHMONT SOCIETY, WITH REV. JAS. L. McGUINNESS IN CHARGE, ENJOYED TRIP TO LOWELL

The Emerald Associates of Beachmont, in charge of Rev. James L. McGuinness, formerly of Lowell, enjoyed a trolley ride to this city yesterday and after visiting all the points of interest agreed with the popular young clergyman, that Lowell is some city.

During Fr. McGuinness' stay in Lowell he made many friends and when he was assigned to the Beachmont church he told his parishioners of the many advantages of Lowell and also of the hospitality of its people. So anxious were the residents of the beach town to come to Lowell that when an outing was proposed all expressed their desire to trolley to the City of Spindles Yesterday was the day selected and the associates turned out in large numbers. Father McGuinness directed them to all the interesting places down town and then took them to Lakeview. Here they had supper and enjoyed the roller coasters, dancing and other diversions. Early in the evening they boarded their special car for home and all were loud in their praise of Lowell and congratulated Fr. McGuinness for his efficient management and averred that this year's outing was the "best ever."

GERMAN DYES COMING

WILL BE DESPATCHED TO THIS COUNTRY IN DUTCH SHIPS—REPORTED TO METZ OF NEW YORK INFORMED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—A brief cible message announcing hat Rotterdam and the chemical works along the Rhine in Germany were in communication and that the German plants would ship dyes and chemicals to Rotterdam for dispatch to America by Dutch ships was received yesterday by Representative Metz of New York.

"This means," Representative Metz said, "that the chemical industry of the United States is in touch with the German chemical factories and that they are willing to relieve the emergency that has threatened not only the chemical industry of the United States, but the textile interests and other industries which use dyes and other products of the German factories.

"It's the best news the chemical industry has received in many days, but of course it remains to be seen just what and how much the German plants now have in stock."

Mr. Metz discussed the situation today with Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and with state department officials. The question of sending Mr. Metz to Germany as a representative of the United States in the effort to open up the German sources of the world's chemical supply is held in abeyance. Ambassador Bernstorff has promised Germany's support in every way possible to facilitate shipment of chemicals for America.

One great obstacle now is the interruption of the cable to Germany.

St. Petersburg Denies Reported Defeat by Germans

London Admits That Situation is Critical For Allies

PARIS, AS VIEWED FROM EIFFEL TOWER

Thousands Were Killed in the Bombardment of Malines—Germans Prepare to Bombard Antwerp—Fierce Rioting in Danzig—Germans are Advancing in Northern France—Train Service Between Paris and Boulogne Suspended

PARIS IS READY FOR BATTLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Paris is ready for war, said Eugene N. Robinson of New York, a passenger on the Adriatic, which docked here today. The great steel skeleton of the Eiffel tower, he said, had been heavily fortified with aeroplane guns on top and a circle of forts at the base. Large numbers of German spies were being arrested in Paris daily, he asserted.

BRITISH VICTORY ON SEA CONFIRMED

What little definite war news escaped the censors today reflected chiefly the situation in East Prussia, where the operations are assuming daily a greater importance. These reports are conflicting. At Berlin it is officially announced that five Russian army corps have been defeated by the Austrians and Germans south of Allenstein, 60 miles south of Koenigsburg.

Newspaper despatches from St. Petersburg on the other hand declare that Allenstein has been occupied by the Russians who are investing Koenigsburg. From the same source comes the statement that the Russians are drawing a net around Lemberg, the capital of Galicia.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts declared today that Great Britain would require hundreds of thousands of men for the present conflict.

Berlin has received a report of the defeat of the British at St. Quentin, France. If this is true it places the Germans 23 miles south of Cambrai, the scene of the recent German success.

A despatch from Paris says that train service between Paris and Boulogne has been suspended.

According to a report from Copenhagen, Germany is rushing troops from her west front to reinforce her army and that of Austria in the east.

The British foreign office announces that East Prussia is being rapidly over-run by the Russians, said to be within 20 miles of Lemberg, Austrian Galicia.

The German ambassador to the United States, Count Von Bernstorff, denied today stories of German cruelty and that Zeppelin airships had attacked anything but fortifications.

The Princess Patricia Canadian light infantry, 1000 strong, sailed from Montreal today.

ENGLAND ALARMED—MUST RUSH TROOPS TO FRANCE

LONDON, Aug. 29 (10.46 a. m.)—A Daily Mail editorial concerning the concentration of the Germans in immense strength to crush the British expeditionary force says:

"The Germans have brought the stupendous odds of three to one against the British soldiers, of whom we may well feel proud; but the situation is most critical. France has done everything in her power. Russia cannot help except by indirect pressure. Great Britain alone can find more men and find them she must. The nation must prepare on a collosal scale and must send every man and every gun that can be spared here and now to the decisive point in France."

EDWARD CUSHING

Lowell Man Buys Lynn Hotel, But Can't Get License

It was reported this afternoon that Edward T. Cushing, former manager of the Richardson hotel in this city, had purchased the Hamilton hotel in Lynn.

It seems that while Mr. Cushing has completed the hotel purchase he is experiencing some difficulty in having the license turned over to him. The license commissioners, it appears, will not allow him to have the license although Mr. Cushing is prepared to pay cash for it. They want the original owners of the license to stand pat, or words to that effect, on the ground that it is the policy of the board that none but Lynn men shall have the privilege of doing business there under a Lynn license. Mr. Cushing does not want any partner or partners in the business.

Commenting upon this phase of the situation the Lynn News makes the following editorial comment:

It seems to the Lynn News that the license commission is rather stubborn in its insistence upon a set rule regardless of all conditions surrounding their action.

A settled policy is a very fine thing in the conduct of any body, when that policy is right, but there can be exceptions to all rules to fit conditions.

For instance, the transfer of the property of one of the local hotels is held up by reason of the settled policy of the license board that no one but Lynn men shall have the privilege of doing business here under the license privilege. In itself that rule is good, and the commissioners are to be commended for their actions thus far taken. The regulation was made to conserve the interests of Lynn men. The action the commissioners now take in this most recent case seems to be against the interests of Lynn men, for if the hostelry in question is not allowed to be disposed of and conducted as the new manager says it will be conducted, by him, with care and discrimination, then these Lynn men who have money tied up in the place will lose what they have put in. They are mechanics and tradesmen, who can ill afford to lose this money. In insisting upon a rule to regard Lynn interests it seems in this case would work directly against Lynn interests.

If it was the case that the choice was between a Lynn man and one from outside who was coming here to exploit the hotel business at the expense of Lynn people, that would be one thing. The fact that no Lynn parties could be found who would take over the enterprise is another. The situation seems to be changed from what it was at the time when the grants under the license regime were first made. The rule, therefore, does not seem to apply. At least, it does not seem so from the standpoint of a disinterested observer of local events.

THREE BROKE JAIL

Lowell Men Cut Prison Bars at Sweetsburg, Que., and Escaped—Believed to Be on Their Way to Lowell

After sawing away one of the bars in the jail windows at Sweetsburg, Que., where they were serving time, three Lowell young men and another whose residence is unknown, made good their escape and it is believed the four jail birds are on their way to this city.

The young men are William Hewitt, residence unknown; Alfred St. Onge, Joseph Harkins and Robert Jones, the last three of Lowell. Harkins was serving a year sentence for the larceny of $100, while his companions had been sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment for vagrancy.

According to the sheriff of the jail, the quartet who were kept in a large room on the third floor of the jail, managed to saw the steel bars in the windows and escaped by lowering themselves to the ground by means of a rope. One of the quartet, Jones of this city, it is claimed stole the bicycle of the sheriff's son in order to make a hasty exit. The police of the surrounding cities of Sweetsburg, especially those along the road to the states have been notified of the escape and they are keeping a keen eye on all roads for the culprits.

GIRL STUCK TO HER POST

PARIS, Aug. 29.—4.13 p. m.—An eighteen year old girl, the sole occupant of the telephone depot in a small town 18 miles of Verdun, stuck to her post this morning while German Uhlans and artillery attacked the town. For several hours she kept in touch with the Verdun office, describing the fighting which was going on in the streets. Finally communication was cut off, just after the girl had announced that a bomb had exploded in the building.

AMONG THE TOILERS

Miss Anna Duplessis of the U. S. Cartridge Co., is spending two weeks at Lynn beach.

William Jarvis of the Silesia Worsted Co., has returned from a vacation trip to New York City.

It is said that a certain young lady employed at the U. S. Bunting Co., is somewhat anxious over a ring.

John McLean of the Tremont & Suffolk mills will spend the next week in Haverhill with relatives.

John McMahon of the U. S. Bunting Co. has returned after spending two weeks at the Glendale camp.

Michael Spillane of the Merrimack Mfg. Co. will spend the next week with relatives in Holyoke, Mass.

Fred Porter of the American Safety Tread Co. will spend today and Sunday at his camp at Long pond.

Steve Hessian of the John Pilling Shoe Co. will make the trip by boat to Provincetown tomorrow. He will be accompanied by a large party.

This year gives great promise of being a year of money making for the respective employes of the mills and factories of Lowell. Reports to textile magazine from manufacturers are quite encouraging.

Hugh Boyle of the Saco-Lowell shops has returned from an extended trip to Scotland. He reports a delightful trip with no distressing incidents on leaving. He made the trip six years ago.

Quite a gathering of young men headed by Amos Turner of the Saco-Lowell shops will spend most of their time next week fishing. They have plans arranged to stop at their camp at Crystal lake.

Another game of baseball was played at Shedd Park yesterday afternoon between young men employes of the local mills and factories, who are now enjoying their annual vacations. The game was close and exciting and was won by the Hillsides. Score: 8 to 6.

Walter Miller who has been installing machinery at the Lancaster mills, Clinton, Mass., for the Saco-Lowell shops, has left Clinton for Waterville, Me., where he has been transferred.

The Buckhorn club are holding forth in their spacious rooms in South Whipple street every evening, and judging from reports they are having a splendid time. In compliance with the rules, each and every member has had his hair cut in "teddy bear" fashion. The baseball team that represents the club is doing wonderfully well on the diamond this year.

Business Agent Roscoe Hall of the Machinists' union is making quite an extended stay in this city, and every day he makes more friends. He certainly is a gentleman well met.

The Saco-Lowell shops closed its plant this noon not to reopen until Sept. 8. This will throw about 2000 men out of work.

Next week, thousands of operatives will be thrown out of work, owing to the closing of local industries. The shut-down will be a welcome one, however, as it will be the annual vacation period for the employes of the respective plants. The beaches will no doubt catch many of them while Rockingham fair will draw a large crowd every day. The mills will reopen Sept. 8, and a new era of prosperity is looked forward to. The shutdown will also help to instill confidence in the people.

Heinze Electric Co.

Business at the Heinze Electric Co. is good and all departments are running. Rumors to the effect that the company would begin night operations has caused many unemployed to ask for work. No night work is contemplated at the present time. The plant will close next Saturday all day in order that the employes may enjoy their annual trolley ride to Revere.

Silesia Worsted Co.

Business at the Silesia Worsted Co. is rushing and a large quota of help is steadily employed. Many of the departments are running nights, but this cannot be laid to prosperity as a result of the war, as this company has had an unusually prosperous season.

Lowell Textile Co.

Business at the Lowell Textile Co. is booming and night work will be started in a few weeks. A number of old hands will be employed on the night work, and but few, if any, new help will be employed. This plant is situated in North Chelmsford.

Union Webbing Co.

The Union Webbing company, which occupied a building in Thorndike street has moved its machinery to a part of the Howard Bradding company's plant in East Providence, R. I., where operations will be resumed.

Mill Men Held Meeting

The Millmen's union held its regular meeting in Carpenters' hall in the Runels building last evening. Routine business of an important nature was transacted. Several applications for membership were received and will be acted upon at the next regular meeting. Speeches on the good of the union were made by many of the members. The secretary reported the union to be making progress.

Electrical Workers Held Meeting

Members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers gathered in their hall in the Fiske building last evening and held their regular weekly business session. A grist of important business was transacted and two new members were admitted. Communications from many sources were read at the meeting and properly referred. Reports of various committees were accepted. The secretary's report showed the union to be in a good financial condition.

Lawrence Manufacturing Co.

It is good textile opinion that sooner or later the hosiery and underwear mills of New England will experience a boom as the result of the European war that will overshadow any registered in recent years. It is probable that for months to come the menace of the "made in Germany" label will be eliminated.

If any mill in particular were likely to feel this the big Lawrence Manufacturing company of Lowell should be the one, for it is essentially a hosiery and knitting proposition. The good fortune, too, if it materializes will be doubly welcome, for Lawrence manufacturing has been having a hard row to hoe this year. The low Underwood tariff has been letting in a constantly increasing stream of foreign importations necessitating a curtailment as high as 50 per cent. several months ago.

Last year, however, was one of good earnings for Lawrence Manufacturing. In the fiscal period from the end of April to the end of April it rolled up profits of rising $200,000, equivalent to close to 17 per cent. on the stock, or over twice the dividend requirements. This compares with indicated earnings of only 8 1-2 per cent. the year before that. The last year, in fact, eclipsed the splendid 1908 showing.

Including the newly established "depreciation account" Lawrence has a reserve aggregate of $1,136,000, equivalent to nearly $91 per share—a strong dividend bulwark, especially is this so in view of its liquid condition, net quick assets footing up to over $142 a share.

For years from the standpoint of intrinsic value and market price Lawrence has been an anomaly. With $142 a share in "net quick," $50 would cover the market appraisal of its big Lowell plants, a basis of about $3.40 a spindle against a recognized replacement value of six to seven times that sum. On a net basis the Lawrence capitalization is only about $1.30 a spindle. Figuring in the equipment of 1750 knitting machines it is nearly true that the Lawrence properties are completely unexpitalized.

Of course, on an income basis 8 per cent., Lawrence, around 170, sells high—a 4.7 per cent. yield. The 8 per cent. rate has, however, been in force since 1906 in the second half of which the 6 per cent. rate was increased after remaining stationary since 1906. The ten-year average of disbursements is 7 1-2 per cent. But purchasers of Lawrence figure on the inevitable readjustment of capital to property worth, having in mind the distribution of two shares for three held as an extra dividend back in 1900.—Fibre and Fabric.

SALISBURY BEACH IMPROVEMENT

Salisbury beach is likely to have a modern sewerage system and a complete rehabilitation of the water system, if the plans that are now being considered by the Artesian Water Co. are consumated. A conference between the representatives of the company and the selectmen of Salisbury was held at the beach Thursday and many phases of the plans were discussed.

It is understood that the company plans to rebuild a large part of the sewerage system of the beach and put in an up-to-date network of pipes that will care for all the demands of the beach. An important feature of the plans calls for the installation of hydrants at close intervals along the beach from the state line to the jetties.

The selectmen of the town of Westford have made up their minds to rid the town of the vegetable thieves who have been purloining in that district for some time and for this purpose they have appointed Harry Saxon of Whiddon's corner, a constable, and it is Mr. Saxon's intention to devote his time running down the thieves and he predicts that Westford will be spotless a very short time.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The newest theatrical policy will be given its initial presentations at the B. F. Keith theatre, on Labor day, Sept. 7. This was definitely determined yesterday by Manager Benjamin J. Pickett.

The policy of novelty will be probably the most versatile entertainment combination ever put forth on a local stage. It will consist of four high class vaudeville acts and four specially picked motion pictures, this show to completely change on Every Thursday. This will mean that every week eight vaudeville acts and eight motion pictures will be shown. Again, on Sundays, there will be another change.

The policy has been given a thoroughly satisfactory test in the larger cities of the country, as well, as in cities of Lowell's size and general character, like Portland, Me., and Lawrence, and it has been decided to extend this in Lowell.

The prices will be 10 and 20 cents for the afternoon and 10, 15 and 25 cents for evenings, with two performances every evening, the first to begin at 7 o'clock, and to conclude about 8 o'clock. Only the best of vaudeville acts will be secured, and so far as possible the acts to be shown will be those which afford the greatest contrast to the silence of the motion pictures, instrumentalists, singers, comedians, sketches and dancers will be among those selected. The Keith management is in a position to secure the very cream of motion pictures, as was exemplified during the supplementary season, and undoubtedly several of the masterpieces will be given.

The theatre has been cleaned and re-painted throughout, and the handsome entrance is more attractive than ever. New scenery has been painted, and several new drops have been secured, among them a most artistic moonlight one. The orchestra of the theatre will strike the very high level of past seasons, and the major portion of the theatre staff will remain as heretofore. Announcement of the bills to be presented will be made later.

LAKEVIEW DANCING PAVILION

The Lakeview Dancing Pavilion was visited by a large number of people last evening and all greatly enjoyed an evening of dancing under ideal surroundings. "The music is grand," one young lady was heard to remark as she passed the reviewing stand, as the spacious promenade around the hall is called. Her assertion was unanimous for the orchestra at the lake has an enviable reputation for perfect accompaniment and exact playing. Next week several of the latest song hits direct from New York will be introduced, while of course all of the old favorites will still hold forth. The floor is in perfect condition, being waxed every day, under the supervision of an expert. All other details are carefully attended to, and those who patronize this popular dancing emporium are assured of a most enjoyable evening among congenial environment.

LAKEVIEW PARK

Tabor's Sixth Regiment band, B. F. Tabor, leader, will give two concerts at Lakeview park Sunday. The afternoon program will be as follows:

Overture, Sehauspiel.
Solo for Trombone,
Mr. William Kinghorn.
Selection, "Alma."
Popular Medley, B. M. C.
Selection, Lucia Di Lammermoor.
Solo for piccolo, Meadow Lark,
Mr. Z. J. Bissonnette
Tit Bits:
(a) My Creamy Melody.
(b) Night Time in Burgundy.
(c) On Their Way to Mexico.
Finale, Naval Reserve.

The evening program will be as follows:
March, Minstrel Days.
Overture, Templewelke.
Solo for cornet, Rebecca of Sunnybrook.
Selection from High Jinks.
Tid Bits:
() That Wonderful Demoiza Strain.
b) Trombonum (new).

Remick's Big Song Revue of 1914.
Finale: Little Traveler.

THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Last call to witness the new Varieties Show at the Academy of Music will be sounded today. The entire personnel of the program, including the pictures, will undergo a complete change for the new "Pop" Sunday concert idea to be inaugurated tomorrow.

To those who have not yet been to see the big vaudeville and picture show that is holding the boards of the Academy of Music for the week-end, a word on the merits of this show might not be out of place. In addition to a fine program of guaranteed exclusive motion pictures the program includes a number of the very best vaudeville acts ever shown in Lowell.

The inimitable Jimmy Green easily takes first place on this all-star bill. He is a character comedian a little different from the ordinary. If laughing makes you sick, you'd better bring a doctor when you come to see Jimmy Green.

Then there is Pritzgow and Blanchard, a man and woman who have a novelty act that is far and away above the average. It really must be seen to be fully appreciated and any description of its many novel surprises here would be unfair both to the act and the audience. If you want to sit up and take notice, don't miss Pritzgow and Blanchard.

The Rogers Sisters, a duo of dainty, pulchritudinous "Flappers" round out a program that hasn't got a weak spot in its entire make-up. The sisters have a routine of the very latest musical numbers now being sung and whistled in all the large cities and they know just how to "put them over." This act alone is worth twice the price of admission.

Tomorrow, the entire bill will undergo a complete change. New feature pictures, including a rip-snorting Keystone comedy and a complete new vaudeville program will make the first "Pop" concert here one long to be remembered. Fred Weber, the extraordinary yodler, Nichols and Sherwood, entertainers of class, and The Famous Artistic Trio, a novel musical offering, are but a few of the many new features to be introduced tomorrow.

There will be no advance in prices for this big show.

For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the attraction will be Jeanette Dupre and her own big show. Miss Dupre is the only woman in the world who produces and manages her own show and she has surrounded herself with a bevy of dazzling beauties selected from the many big New York musical comedy productions.

The prices for the first half of the week have been revised to suit all pocketbooks. There will be the usual ladies' bargain matinees every afternoon at ten cents and the evening prices will include 500 of the very best seats at fifty cents with a selected few at 75 cents. Other good seats will be sold at 35 cents.

THE OWL THEATRE

Ferocious lions are seen dashing upon a ball-room floor in the twelfth episode of "The Perils of Pauline," which attracted two big audiences at yesterday's performances at the Owl. Other pictures on the program today besides this feature are "Shorty and the Ardsville Terror" in two parts, a Keystone comedy, "Our Mutual Girl" in her weekly offering, and many others, all new to Lowell. The requests have been so frequent and numerous, that the management has decided to book the film of "Tess of the Storm Country" in which Miss Mary Pickford, and the Frohman Famous Players are seen to such advantage. Grace Miller White's beautiful story of a woman's unconquerable faith has made such a hit in Lowell, that theatre-goers are awaiting another chance to see this motion-picture masterpiece, and their chance will come next Monday and Tuesday. Vocal selections every day.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Owen Davis' famous play "What Happened to Mary," adapted from the world renowned "Mary" stories that have charmed millions of readers will be the attraction in which the Merrimack Square Theatre Stock company will be seen in the coming week. Alan Dale has pronounced it the greatest comedy drama since "Shore Acres" and declares it's a play full of the joy of living. So what further guarantee can one ask. It is a play that makes no pretense to solve any industrial or social problem, exploit any new system or theory—a play that deals with simple people and simple things, one of those rare gems compelling in its interests and winsome in its charm.

To describe the plot is hardly necessary, since perhaps nine out of every ten theatre-goers have read the story. And the play follows closely along the lines of the story. As might be imagined Miss Eva Marsh, the company's popular leading lady, will be seen in the title role. Further guarantee that it will be cleverly portrayed is not necessary. Miss Marsh has made many friends since coming to Lowell, some being patrons who have personally met the little lady, but for the most part, others who have watched her work from an orchestra chair. These have been charmed by her clever acting and charming personality, and these same qualities can be relied upon to make the role of Mary the coming week, one that will in all ways be perfectly satisfactory. Mr. Sam A. McGarry who will play the opposite leading character will also be seen to especially fine advantage and other members of the company who have been allotted prominent parts the coming week are: Marjorie Rendal, May D. Hurst, Wm. Freeman, Ted Brackett, Robert Lee, Kenneth Fleming, Eugene Desmond, Jos. Thayer, Mr. Walter Woods who personally looks after the directing and staging of all the plays has arranged some beautiful stage settings.

Special attention is called to the time of starting. The matinee first act curtain rises promptly at 2 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Seats are on sale one week in advance, and the subscription list for those who desire any particular seats reserved for them each week is still open. For week commencing Monday, Sept. 7 that smashing comedy success, "Officer 666" is announced as the attraction.

CANOBIE LAKE

This evening will give amusement seekers their last opportunity to witness the eighth edition of the Homan's Musical Revue which has caused so much favorable comment among the patrons of Canobie Lake Park theatre the past three days. It is another big show of wide variety that cannot fail to please anybody and certainly the tremendous applause shows the appreciation of the audiences.

Sunday will bring a host of extra attractions to Canobie and undoubtedly the attendance will be even greater than on last Sunday for there will be a reason. From 3 until 5 o'clock there will be a free band concert at the theatre by the crack Haverhill Military band, Herbert W. W. Downes, director, and the following program will be rendered: March, "The Diplomat;" music from "The Spring Maid;" overture, "The Jolly Robbers;" grand American fantasia, tone pictures of the north and south; waltz, "The Skaters;" grand selection from "Faust;" "The Lost Chord," (the melody performed by the cornets, trumpets and trombones); popular melodies (announced); selection from the opera "Maritana;" "March of the Sheridan Sabres."

From 6 until 10 o'clock there will be a special program of feature motion pictures at the theatre and in addition to the regular big program there will be shown the moving pictures taken at Canobie Lake last Sunday when thousands of people managed to get within range of the camera. Tomorrow will give these people their opportunity, and in many cases the first one, to see themselves in motion pictures and for that reason tremendous crowds are expected. The pictures, too, will be exceptionally interesting, showing as they do all of the important attractions of the park including the swimming pool where a number of amusing scenes were caught by the camera as the bathers enjoyed themselves. Among the other features in pictures to be offered will be the latest Pathe Weekly which includes more interesting scenes taken in Belgium during the terrible fighting between th armies of Germany and the allies.

Monday the Homan's Musical Revue company will offer the ninth edition of their big musical show with new songs, dances and comedy farces.

Tires at Before-War Prices

Yet We Never Got Choicer Rubber
We Never Built Better Tires

There exists now a new reason—most compelling—for buying Goodyear Tires. It results from war conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

Due to Quick Action

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed suddenly closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cabled them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber.

And we paid about June prices.

Now Inferior Grades Cost Double

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off-rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyears. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

Be Careful Now

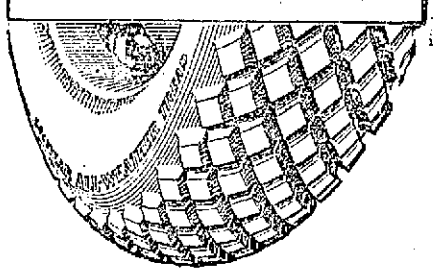

In Goodyears we pledge you the same-grade fire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

Tenants Rush to Street—Huntington Ave. Apartment Ruined—Near Panic

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—A fire last evening that illuminated the sky for miles around and caused a genuine scare in the immediate vicinity ruined the 5½-story apartment house in course of construction at 491 Huntington avenue. Feeding on lathing and other woodwork the flames spread with such alarming rapidity that four alarms were sounded, the first at 7.14 and the second being skipped five minutes later. The loss will probably be not more than $25,000.

Thousands rushed to the scene and had a rare pyrotechnic display. The apartment house was a veritable furnace. Construction had only reached the stage where the plastering was to begin. The roof, wooden floors and lathes were in place, providing admirable fuel for the fire. The windows of the 40 apartments were not in yet and there was plenty of draft.

The building was one of three now building in the block bounded by Huntington avenue, Museum road, Ruggles street and the Fenway. "The Durban," the only occupied house in the block and containing 40 suites, most of them occupied, was threatened and the occupants made a very quick exit. They were greatly scared for a short time, but soon returned to the house.

Museum School in Danger

The Museum of Fine Arts school is directly across from the burned structure on Museum road, and shortly after the arrival of the first apparatus Supt. W. W. McLean of the museum had the firemen direct several streams over the one-story school structure. The main buildings of the museum were farther away, and at no time did the flames threaten to spread to them.

When Chief McDonough arrived, he said the entire building from cellar to roof was a glowing, leaping mass, with flames breaking out from practically all the window openings. On the outside a staging of timbers had been built. Although the walls themselves were completed, the staging had been retained in order to clean the bricks. These outside timbers also caught fire, and at intervals one would topple to the ground, sending up a great shower of sparks.

After several streams had played into the building from the Huntington avenue side from deck guns mounted on the hose wagons, the firemen were seen to fall back to the other side hurriedly. Then, with a great crash, one entire section of the brick wall crumbled and fell in.

This section of wall was directly above what was to be the main entrance to the apartment house and it is extended from the street floor clear up to the roof. In toppling, most of the bricks fell inside the building. Sufficient warning had been given, however, and no one was injured.

Only the Walls Left

When the flames were finally drowned out only the brick walls, except the section that fell, remained standing. The building is owned by Specter & Segal, neither of whom could be found at the fire.

The adjoining buildings at 499 Huntington avenue and that at 14 Museum road, both practically completed, are owned by Jacob Nason and Charles Kolodny, respectively. That the fire spread to neither of these was considered fortunate.

The fire was discovered by Arthur Gillis, a 15-year-old boy, living at 466 Parker street, who was on his way up Huntington avenue to Conant street on an errand. He chanced to look across the street and saw the entire inside of the building in flames.

He rang the alarm at Parker and Ruggles streets, then raced back to "The Durban" and notified Henry Robillard, the janitor. The latter aroused all his occupants and amid scenes of great confusion and excitement they left their apartments. One, Mrs. I. J. Breed, a cripple, had to be assisted out.

Supporting Wall Missed

The absence of any supporting wall in the middle of the building, considering its length of about 100 feet, was noted by a number at the fire. Chief McDonough expressed surprise that such a long building did not have a supporting wall in the middle and it was just where such a wall would be that the outer wall section fell in.

Mr. Kolodny, who is constructing the adjoining apartment house at 14 Museum road, was asked if the building laws required such a wall. He said that as the building department had inspected and passed on the building, it must have been all right.

The only accident reported was that Howard S. Black, 38 years old, of 6 Greenville street, Roxbury, in running to the fire was struck at the corner of Whittier and Ruggles streets by an automobile owned and driven by Raymond Mondell of 37 Westland avenue. His right arm was fractured and he was removed to the City hospital.

REAL ESTATE and BUILDING NEWS

Building activity is dropping down in this city and many claim the banks are responsible for the lack of work, for it is said that the money market is so tight that proprietors cannot get money except at a very high rate of interest.

It was predicted a few months ago that this season would be the worst in years for the building industry, but up to a couple of weeks ago, workmen of the different crafts were kept busy despite the prediction. However, the building business has felt the effect of the war. Many building projects have been abandoned because of the difficulty of obtaining money.

The scarcity of money is being felt all over the states and on account of this many large enterprises had to be given up at least temporarily. It is believed, however, that this tightness of the money market will not last very long and before the cold weather sets in work will be started on several large buildings in this city. A number of jobs that were started a month or so ago are being pushed along and it is the hope of the workmen that before they get through with the jobs on hand something else will turn up.

High School Annex

Superintendent Francis A. Connor of the public building department is rushing the job of converting the Varnum property recently purchased by the city into a school building. Mr. Connor has 12 men at work and he hopes the building will be ready for occupancy by Sept. 14, the date of the opening of the public schools. The heating system will not be taken care of until after the opening of the building.

New Building

D. J. Ring is having a residence erected at 40 Tyler park at a cost of between $4500 and $5000. The house will be of wood and will contain ten rooms, the dimensions of the building to be 40 by 32 feet. A hot water heating system will be installed.

Dr. Sparks has men at work on the building of a sleeping porch at his property, 291 Wilder street.

Carpenters are busy erecting a seven-room dwelling house for William England at 112 Upham street. The building will be steam-heated and will cost about $2500.

I. W. Flagg is making alterations in his building numbered 243-245 Fletcher street in the line of two bath rooms.

In Billerica

The Billerica Garden Homes, Inc., which recently purchased a large tract of land in the neighboring town, is getting things in shape and will soon start the construction of several dwelling houses. Under the direction of Contractor Kearney a large force of men are laying a street through the tract, building operations will soon be started. Contractor Wiggin of this city has a number of men at work on removing some of the old houses. The tenement buildings in Faulkner street have been moved back to the old T. R. & T. baseball grounds, while the houses occupied by Charles Cook and Mr. Potter have been moved to a position in the rear of Mr. Preston's home.

Fire Damage

A small gang of carpenters are busy repairing the fire damage in the Buttrick building in Middle street. The burned partitions were torn down and the wood work has been started. No changes are contemplated in the building and only the fire damage will be repaired.

Middlesex Mill

Work on the construction of a new storehouse for the Middlesex company in Warren street is progressing and a part of the outside walls have been put up. An innovation in the construction of this new building will be the utilizing of cement bricks, which are manufactured by a Lowell company in North Chelmsford. These bricks are of the same dimensions as the earthen bricks and are given a 90,000 pound pressure test before being placed on the market.

The new parish house of St. John's Episcopal church, the residence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bancroft, is now ready for the painters. Although not large, it is a very pretty and attractive dwelling. When painted it will be one of the finest single dwellings in that locality. The garage in the basement is approached from the Rogers street side and the lawn and flower garden is enclosed by an ornamental wire fence. Rev. Mr. Bancroft has given very close attention to the work of construction which is first class throughout. The house is shingled with slated roof and has all the modern improvements.

THE SPELLBINDER

The Perpetual Care and John Davis trust funds continue to remain intact, but the statements in the Courier-Citizen, of a week ago Wednesday, attributed to Mayor Murphy relative to those funds, are far from remaining intact, having been punctured on Monday of this week by Acting Mayor Carmichael who manfully and courageously has placed the responsibility just where it belonged. From the statements attributed to Mayor Murphy that appeared in the Courier-Citizen, one would infer that His Honor had no previous knowledge of the attempt to turn over the Perpetual Care fund to the city in anticipation of taxes and the mayor is quoted as saying that Commissioner Brown formulated the scheme and consulted only with Commissioner Donnelly and City Treasurer Stiles in relation thereto.

Col Carmichael in his statement on Monday said:

"The mayor and all the rest of us looked upon it with favor until informed by the attorneys of the First National Bank of Boston that the transaction was not a legal one."

Col. Carmichael referring to the proposition to take the trust fund to bolster up the city finances also said:

"I don't know who was the first to suggest it but the authority of course rested with the city treasurer. The commissioner of finance, the city treasurer, the city solicitor and I think, the mayor, talked the matter over before the other members of the council were called in. The matter was gone over pretty thoroughly and we were a unit in declaring that we would approve of the transaction providing it was legal. There are people who are trying to lay the blame on certain members of the government and I want to state that that is absolutely unfair. If any blame attaches, each member should bear his share of it. No one member or two members of the council were responsible AND NO ONE MEMBER PREVENTED THE LOAN."

The Courier- Citizen quotes Mayor Murphy as follows:

"Commissioner of Finance Brown then formulated the plan of utilizing the cemetery trust funds amounting to $84,450, which was on deposit in seven savings banks. He placed the plan before Commissioner Donnelly and the city treasurer. These commissioners both believed the plan would be feasible. At this time it developed that the savings banks were discussing the plan of placing the 60 day notice rule on the withdrawal of deposits, so at the suggestion of Mr. Brown, City Treasurer Stiles made a hurried circuit of the banks and withdrew nearly all the fund from six of them."

Farther along the Courier Citizen says:

"Mayor Murphy, in discussing the whole transaction declared that he did not believe it good form or good business for the city to borrow its own trust funds and that he would not consent to such use of the money but would prevent it to the best of his ability."

And now comes Col Carmichael with the statement that Mayor Murphy had previously discussed the matter with the other commissioners and had agreed with them that the proposition should go through, if legal.

Col. Carmichael's manly statement of facts is decidedly refreshing in these days when political self-preservation cares little for facts and less for fairness.

It might be added that the $12,500 of the Davis fund that was going into the general treasury fund also remains intact. While the commissioners agreed to transfer the perpetual care fund, in a conference, the proceedings of which did not become matters of public record, the library trustees, of which the mayor is a member, are on record as having voted in meeting to loan a portion of the Davis' fund to the city.

But nobody can deny the fact recently set before the public that Mayor Murphy saved the city $175 per year rental by abolishing the old crematory in Plain street. This fact remains incontrovertable.

Missing Trust Funds

And still there's more borrowing ahead.

In its efforts to keep the tax rate down—that honest tax rate—the municipal council at the beginning of the year quietly passed by section 634 of the acts of 1913 entitled: "An act to provide for the payment of outstanding demand notes and the restoration of trust funds by cities and towns."

Chapter 634 reads in part as follows:

"During the year 1914 every city and town which has at the time that this act takes effect outstanding notes payable on demand, or which has expended for the general expenses of the city or town, trust funds which have not been restored, shall provide for the payment of such notes and for the restoration of such trust funds IN THE TAX LEVY FOR THE YEAR 1914 where such provision is reasonably practicable, but where it would be unreasonably burdensome to provide for such payment or restoration in the tax levy of 1914, such city or town may provide for such payment and restoration as is provided in section two of this act.

"Section two: For the purpose of paying any notes of a city or town payable on demand and outstanding, when this act takes effect, and also for the purpose of restoring any trust funds which were received by a city or town and subsequently expended by it for the general expense of such city or town, and not thereafter restored, any such city or town is hereby authorized to borrow outside the limit of indebtedness fixed by law for such city or town, a sum of money not exceeding in the aggregate the amount required for paying such demand notes and for the restoration of such trust funds, etc."

What Rex Discovered

When Mr. Rex came to town and looked over the city's books sometime ago he discovered that the Huntington hall insurance fund, $40,500, the Jonathan Tyler fund, $10,000 and two Thomas Nesmith funds, one $25,000 and the other, $1000, had disappeared and existed only on paper, having been spent for the general expenses of the past. Of these perhaps the Huntington hall fund cannot properly be called a trust fund and therefore it is gone beyond recall. But the other funds, amounting to $36,000, are trust funds and the legislature of 1913 enacted a law to compel cities and towns that have been careless with their trust funds to restore them and to do it within the year 1914, providing for two ways in which such restoration is to be made. Thus the missing $36,000, which these trust funds aggregate must be restored at the expense of the taxpayers within the next few months. After all their talk about a low and honest tax rate during the past campaign, some members of the municipal council found themselves obliged either to give up the low tax rate proposition or the honest tax rate slogan and the latter is abandoned by omitting to provide for the restoration of the trust funds in this year's tax levy, thus giving a tax rate of $21.90 when the honest tax rate would have been $22.30, an increase of 40 cents. Now it must borrow the $36,000 before Dec. 1, and with a war on in Europe it will have to pay a much higher rate of interest than it would have at the beginning of the year, if it succeeds in borrowing any money at all, which is a matter of doubt.

Paying Big Interest

It was announced within a week that the city had succeeded in borrowing $30,000 at 5 per cent. for the addition to the high school and $90,000 for the water works at 6 per cent., and the war in Europe is held responsible for the increased rates of interest. The school board and the municipal council knew months ago that they would be obliged to borrow for the school addition, but they did not take action until a few weeks before the opening of the school, and after the rates of interest had gone up, while the municipal council instead of borrowing $90,000 in the first place attempted to borrow $225,000 and was turned down. The directors of the New Haven road have nothing on our municipal council when it comes to high financiering.

The Band Concerts

It has been announced that two more band concerts will conclude the year's series of municipal concerts, and the musicians and those of the public who have stopped to consider the matter are wondering. At the beginning of the year the city appropriated $1000 for band concerts. The entire series includes nine concerts, of which three cost $100 each and six, $62.50 each, making a total of $675. Thus the concert appropriation has a balance of $325. What has become of the balance, or what is to become of it, or if the municipal council intended spending only $675 on band concerts, why did it appropriate $1000?

The Contagious Hospital

Last year or early this year the state board of health was waving a mandamus, or a decree of some other terrible thing at the city of Lowell threatening all sorts of dire happenings if the city didn't proceed at once to construct and maintain a contagious disease hospital. The hospital hasn't been constructed as yet and the state board has subsided. And it's a lucky thing, too, for if the municipal council is obliged to do much more borrowing it will be necessary to have the experts of the First National bank move up here and give their entire time to keeping us in straight financial running order.

The Gallagher Case

The school board appears to have gotten itself into an interesting mixup as the result of the "throw down" of John F. Gallagher, a teacher in the vocational school. In June the school committee elected Mr. Gallagher, it is claimed, for one year, but at its meeting on Tuesday evening it rescinded its action and elected in his place Herbert L. Carragher. The school board offers no explanation of this action other than the statement that Principal Fisher of the vocational school recommended the change. Both Messrs. Gallagher and Carragher are said to be competent young men, in every way eligible to the position. But having elected Mr. Gallagher for one year it would seem that the school board should have some good reason for summarily removing him before the end of the year and hence it is not surprising to learn that Mr. Gallagher will protest against his removal and will report for duty at the opening of school. He will call for a hearing to begin with, and to which it would seem he is entitled and which he should have been given before being voted out of a job. Removing a man from a school position, without warning, just prior to the opening of the school season is unfortunate for the man removed even if the removal were justified for it is now too late to look with any hope of success for a school position for the coming season, all having been filled by this time. It is expected that Principal Fisher's reasons will be brought out later. The position is not worth fighting over except as a stepping stone to something higher.

Officer Crowe's Shift

A correspondent, who from the tone of his communication evidently thinks he "has something" on the writer of this column, writes to ask why The Spellbinder has not stated the cause of the removal of Officer Martin Crowe from Merrimack square, intimating that there is a reason that is being kept from the public. Just why Officer Crowe was removed, I know not. The correspondent, undoubtedly is hinting at the story going the rounds to the effect that a few evenings before his removal, Officer Crowe having learned that a man wanted by the police was in a down-town barroom sent for the patrol wagon and entering the saloon placed the man under arest at the bar and then took him out to the sidewalk where the patrol wagon was in waiting. As perversity would have it something went wrong with the wagon and it was stalled for quite a few minutes in front of the barroom to the intense indignation of the saloonkeeper who refusing to accept Officer Crowe's explanation or apology, whichever it was, threatened dire vengeance and made good his threat by making a complaint to Mayor Murphy or Supt. Welch. A local paper then commented on the case prematurely, stating that in the old days a police officer who had the temerity to interfere with the business of a liquor dealer would have fared badly, but happily such could not be the case under the present administration. Immediately afterward came the announcement that Officer Crowe had been changed to a route on the late night shift. Whether the liquor dealer's complaint or some other reason was responsible for the removal of the officer can best be ascertained by applying to Mayor Murphy or Supt. Welch. There is no doubt that Mr. Crowe is removed to a beat where the atmosphere is not so strongly contaminated with the odor of liquor.

The County Commissionership

At the Middlesex county democracy's outing last Saturday about all of the candidates for county commissioner on the democratic ticket, with the exception of Deputy Sheriff Walsh, of South Framingham, were present, and his absence was explained by friends who said that he was conducting an auction that could not be postponed, the sheriff evidently doing business like our own auctioneers, "sale will take place, rain or shine, without limit or reserve, etc." Senator Charlie McCarthy was the big noise among the commissioner candidates, umpiring the ball game and with the assistance of several energetic rooters, being made acquainted with about everyone present. While there are five or six candidates in the field, judging from the talk heard at the outing, the two favorites are Senator McCarthy and Deputy Sheriff Walsh. The latter spent a few hours in Lowell early in the week looking over the situation and from what he said he intends to give considerable attention to this end of the district. Sheriff Walsh stated that the vote of Lowell in his opinion will decide the nomination and that he is out to get that vote. He believes that the democratic candidate, provided he can get the support of the entire democracy on election day, can be elected. He states that the defection in the republican party is greater than has appeared on the surface and that the dissatisfied ones to assure a change in conditions will vote for the democratic nominee rather than waste a vote on the progressive candidate. Senator McCarthy visited Lowell a few weeks ago and expressed great confidence in his ability to pull off the nomination. As there are three candidates from the city of Cambridge the vote of that municipality will be split in all directions for Messrs. McCarthy and Walsh also expect support in the University City. Of all the democratic candidates, Sheriff Walsh is probably the best known in this city, having attended court here for many years.

Aftermath of Outing

Says the Cambridge Daily Standard: "A rumor reached the Standard office last evening to the effect that Patrick Mullen, who participated in the fast race of 50 yards or less at Lexington park on Saturday at the Middlesex democratic outing and who ended third in said race, claims he was fouled in the race by some ringer and thus robbed of the victory. As this rumor was heavily censored both before and after reaching the Standard office it may be believed that there is some foundation to the report.

This fat man's race was one of the features of the outing. The race was marred by a distressing accident, when Humphrey O'Sullivan fell in the course, tripping up a number of the runners who were unable to stop in time to avoid the spill. Just how many were spilled, and full details of the accident cannot be found at this time, as the intervening days have added to and detracted from the facts in the case. However, according to the present story, certain facts may be given credence.

First, it is claimed that Assessor Hogan got up steam and started before the signal was given. Second, Patrick Mullen and Peter J. Neiligan, who ended second, were delayed, impeded and otherwise obstructed in their course, and were forced to sand their tracks on several occasions. Therefore, it is claimed, that these two gentlemen are confident that they can walk off with the big assessor, and are willing, nay anxious, to meet him for a return match. Marquis of Queensbury rules, catch-as-catch-can, indoors or outdoors, at any time or in any place. It is understood that Assessor Hogan is a fine runner indoors. He is under all circumstances a fast man. He has had wide experience in running for office and running for assessments."

The Secret of Health is Elimination of Waste

Every business man knows how difficult it is to keep the pigeon holes and drawers of his desk free from the accumulation of useless papers. Every housewife knows how difficult it is to keep her home free from the accumulation of all manner of useless things. So it is with the body. It is difficult to keep it free from the accumulation of waste matter. Unless the waste is promptly eliminated the machinery of the body soon becomes clogged. This is the beginning of most human ills.

EUROPE'S MOST TALKED ABOUT WAR PERSONAGE, THE GERMAN KAISER, PICTURED FROM CHILDHOOD THROUGH THE YEARS TO THE PRESENT DAY

Kaiser Wilhelm, easily the most important single personage in the great European conflict, is fifty-five years old. These pictures show him at various ages, from five up to the present day. The German emperor, who is now in the twenty-sixth year of his reign, finds himself almost fighting the world alone. With Austria he is arrayed against Russia, France, England, Japan and Belgium, with the likelihood that Italy will throw her forces against him. Necessarily he is almost bitterly condemned and most warmly defended respectively by his enemies and by his friends. As the first "war lord" of Europe his people pin their faith in him and in his mighty fighting machine even against such tremendous odds. Will their faith be justified? What will the fates decree for this most powerful, resourceful and militant ruler who has risked the future of a great and prosperous empire and his own dynasty upon war?

DROPPED BY THE SCORE

Soldier Declared He Was One of 30 Survivors of British Company of 2000

LONDON, Aug. 29, 2.31 a. m.—The Chronicle's Boulogne correspondent sends the personal story of a wounded soldier who has arrived there and who declared he was one of 30 survivors of a British company of 2000 troops who were practically wiped out by the German artillery. His story follows:

"We were five solid days in the trenches and moved backwards and forwards all that time with the varying tide of battle.

"It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when the end came. Things had got quieter and our officers came along the line and told us to get a snack of sleep. We were preparing to obey when a light or something gave us away so we found ourselves in a fieldful of bullets. We couldn't do anything. Down on us the shrapnel hailed and we dropped by the score. Practically at the same time, the German maxims opened up. We were almost without shelter when we were caught and we crawled along in front to find cover. 'Leave everything and retire!' was the order and we obeyed. I didn't know how long it lasted, but when the sun had peeped over the hills I could see no more than 30 men left in the various sections of the field.

"Thirty at the most were left out of 2000. I wandered away from the others and eventually found myself at ——— with a single pal. That was the first time the German artillery really got to us. As a rule their gunfire was mighty poor."

In the above story the censor has deleted the name of the town near which this fighting occurred.

OPPOSE WAR MEETINGS

PROTEST AGAINST ASSEMBLIES IN BEHALF OF NATIONS AT WAR MADE TO GOV. WALSH

BOSTON, Aug 29—Formal protest against the holding of public meetings in any city or town in the state in behalf of any of the nations at war in Europe was made to Gov Walsh today by Edward E. Chapman of Ludlow, master of the State grange, and Albert G. Bryant, an official of the World Peace Foundation, who appeared as an individual only.

Objection to the holding of such meetings was made on the ground that they would be in violation of the neutrality proclamation, recently issued by President Wilson and also because they might lead to similar meetings throughout the country.

PLAYGROUND EXHIBIT

Will Be Provided at the Aiken Street Grounds Monday—Programs at Other Playgrounds Also

On Monday afternoon the parents and friends of the boys and girls who attend the Lawrence Mfg. Co.'s playgrounds in Aiken street, will be given an opportunity to inspect the work done by the little ones during vacation time. The exhibit which consists of various pieces of industrial work was scheduled to be held this forenoon in the Cheever street school, but on account of the inclement weather the affair was postponed till Monday afetrnoon.

The closing exercises of the playgrounds which had been postponed from Friday afternoon to this forenoon, were again continued till Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Each playground has arranged for an individual program, but it is believed that next year the exercises will be general, so that all the children of the various places of amusement will gather at one place and engage in a general program. This plan is being approved by the Middlesex Women's club and the College club, two organizations that are contributing to the care and welfare of the playgrounds.

HIGH FOOD PRICES IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 29.—The government issued a decree yesterday calling on all grocers to submit to the federal authorities an inventory of their stock and their price list. Failure to comply with this order will mean confiscation of the goods. The measure was made necessary because of the famine prices prevailing, which are causing distress and discontent among the populace.

A decree will be issued today demanding that every inhabitant deliver any firearms which he may have to the military authorities within 48 hours.

The senate also confirmed the nomination of Thomas W. Gregory to be attorney general.

TELLS OF FALL OF NAMUR

BELGIAN GUARD SAYS ALL FORTS BOUND TO FALL TO IMPROVED ENGINES OF WAR USED

LONDON, Aug. 29.—4.56 a. m.—A Belgian civic guard named Duquet who left Namur shortly after the Germans reached that fortress has arrived in London. He heard the story of the fall of that fortress from French officers after their retreat and tells this story, as follows:

"At last accounts five forts were still holding out, though they are bound to succumb to the improved engines of war with which the Germans are now equipped.

"These new style siege guns have been posted out of the range of the forts and they played enormous shells over the defenses. The shells burst with such force that they tore gaps ten yards deep in the cupolas and speedily put the fort's guns out of action.

"As soon as the first forts fell, an army of Germans swarmed in, overwhelming the small French and Belgian force, which was compelled to retire.

"Five thousand Belgians from Namur were subsequently surrounded by the Germans at Denee. The Belgians tried to force their way through the German cordon with the bayonet but only 17 got through. Their remainder were either killed or were made prisoners."

BAD BOOZE IS SOLD

ATTENTION OF LICENSE COMMISSION AND POLICE DEPARTMENT CALLED TO THE FACT

The attention of the license commission for the city of Lowell is respectfully called to an act relative to the analyzing of intoxicating liquors. The number of delirium tremens cases developing at the Chelmsford Street hospital, the jail, the police station and other places, has given added color to the statement that a very dangerous brand of booze is being sold in Lowell. The stuff is bad at its best, but there is some difference between good whiskey, so called, and rank poison.

The act referred to became operative last May and is contained in chapter 484 of the Acts and Resolves for 1914. It reads as follows:

Section 1. The state board of health shall hereafter analyze all samples of intoxicating liquors submitted to it for that purpose by any licensing authority, board of health, or police department of any city or town. Such analysis shall be made for the purpose of ascertaining the presence of any poisons, drugs or other substances dangerous to health.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage. (Approved May 5, 1914). Nuff sed.

CANAL SENTRY KILLED

BOY SOLDIER ON DUTY NEAR MONTREAL SHOT BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

MONTREAL, Aug. 29.—Sixteen-year-old Gordon Betts, private in the 5th Royal Highlanders, was shot in the eye and killed yesterday by an unseen assailant while on sentry duty at the canal at Soulanges.

Since the outbreak of the war a guard has been placed over all canals in the Dominion, to prevent their being injured by dynamite. Soldiers at Soulanges, guarding the canal, have been fired on repeatedly in the last few days.

Soulanges is about 30 miles west southwest of Montreal, at the rapids of the St. Lawrence river.

HOBLY STILL LEADER

Of American League Batters—Erwin Leads National—Other Averages

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Ross Erwin's .348 keeps him in the lead of the National league batters, according to figures published here today but another Brooklyn player, Dalton, who has played in 99 games, is the real pace setter with .334. Connolly of Boston is eighth with .309. Brooklyn with .270 heads the clubs in batting. Manager Herzog of Cincinnati leads in stolen bases with 39. Dick Hoblitzel of Boston leads the American league batters with .366 and Speaker of Boston is seventh with .328. Philadelphia with .269 leads in team hitting. Maisel, New York, with 48 is ahead in stolen bases.

The three leaders among the National league pitchers whose total won and lost games number more than ten are: James, Boston, 18 and 6; Doak, St. Louis 17 and 5; Rudolph, Boston, 18 and 7. In the American league the leaders are Bender, Philadelphia, 12 and 2; Plank, Philadelphia, 13 and 3, and Leonard, Boston, 10 and 4.

BRITISH VICTORY AT SEA

Official Report of Naval Battle Off Cuxhaven Claims British Wiped Out German Fleet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The following official report of the naval battle off Cuxhaven in which the British fleet was victorious was received here today at the British embassy. It was dated last night in London.

"Early this morning a concerted operation of some consequence was attempted against the German fleet off Heigoland Bight. A strong force of destroyers, followed by light cruisers and battle cruisers and working in conjunction with submarines intercepted an attack by German destroyers and cruisers guarding the approaches to the German coast. According to information which has reached the admiralty so far, the operation has been fortunate and fruitful.

"The British destroyers have been heavily engaged with the enemy's destroyers and all the British destroyers are reported afloat and returning in good order. Two German destroyers were sunk and many damaged.

"The enemy's cruisers engaged the British cruisers. Battle cruisers of the first light cruiser squadron sank the Mainz, receiving only slight damage. The first battle squadron sank one cruiser of the Koln class and another disappeared in the mist on fire and in a sinking condition.

"All the German cruisers engaged were thus disposed of. The battle cruiser squadron, although attacked by submarine and floating mines successfully evaded them and is not damaged. The light cruiser squadron suffered no casualties.

"The flotilla cruiser Amethyst and the destroyer Laertes are damaged but no other vessels are seriously injured. The British loss of life was not heavy.

"The commanding officers concerned in this skilfully handled operation were Rear Admirals Beatty, Moore and Christian and Commodores Keyes, Tyrwhitt and Goodenough."

FRANCE FORMS NEW ARMY

Reports That 250,000 French Troops Will Take the Offensive Against German Right

LONDON, Aug. 29.—4.30 p. m.—Exhaustion on the part of the German troops and the consequent necessity of momentarily slackening their forward movement is offered in some quarters today as an explanation of the absolute silence which has veiled all the operations in northern France since the desperate struggle of Wednesday when a quarter of a million of German soldiers tried to hack their way through the British lines held by less than half that number. Just as many other people, however, are convinced that the battle which Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the continent said on Wednesday was impending, is now in progress, and that the commanders are awaiting a decisive outcome before permitting anything to be made public.

Since last Wednesday both British and French troops have had time to entrench themselves and their artillery has been able to find the ranges over the zone the Germans must traverse in the next fighting.

France Forms New Army

Reports that France has formed a new army of 250,000 to take the offensive against the German right have aroused much interest; they have not, however, been confirmed.

A telegram from Basel, Switzerland, declaring that five German and Austrian army corps are marching on Belfort, France, has not been authenticated nor has any report that the Germans have been obliged to withdraw a portion of their forces in the west to meet the Russian advance in the east.

The advance movement of the Muscovites in the eastern theatre of the war seems uninterrupted. In eastern Prussia, they have completely invested Koenigsberg, while in Galicia they would appear to be drawing the net tighter around Lemberg.

The source of the floating mines which have sunk so many small craft in the North sea during the past few days seems to be indicated in a request to shipping to keep a look out for a "trawler painted black, with white numbers on her funnel," and when seen to notify the authorities immediately.

Fired by the news that the Indian army is coming to participate in this war the Basutos of South Africa have petitioned that in the event of an attempted invasion of South African territory they be allowed to "cast a few stones at the enemy."

GERMAN ATTACK

"Were on Us Like Peas Emptied from Sack," Says British Officer

LONDON, Aug. 29—4.15 p. m.—"They were on us like peas emptied from a sack," this was the phrase used by a British officer home from the front, in describing the overwhelming force of the German attack in the recent fight. Further he refused to discuss the battle.

"We have been pledged," he said, "not to recount even our personal experiences to our own friends until 14 days have elapsed."

AMERICANS REACH PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 29.—7.31 p. m.—Among the 500 refugees from Switzerland who arrived in Paris tonight are Supreme Court Justice Vernon Davis of New York, Rear Admiral Winburne and Dewitt Poole, an American consular official.

The arrival of the 500 Americans from Switzerland caused little confusion because of the splendid arrangements made by the ambassador's committee.

MORE AMERICANS LEAVE BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 29—2.31 p. m.—(via London)—The special train for Americans which left today was not fully occupied. The next train will start on August 30.

LATE WAR BULLETINS

NAVAL BATTLE LASTED EIGHT HOURS

LONDON, Aug. 29 (6 p. m.)—The naval engagement between the British and Germans off Helgoland lasted about eight hours during which the fighting was sharp and terrible, according to a despatch to the Evening News from Harwich. The correspondent says that this description of the fight was given by crews of the British destroyers which took part in the engagement and have arrived at Harwich.

54 PERISHED WHEN STEAMER STRUCK MINE

LONDON, Aug. 29 (6.40 p. m.)—A despatch from Nikolayev says that the small passenger steamer Express from Odessa for Nikolayev struck a mine on August 27 and was destroyed. Fifty-four persons perished but the bulk of the passengers and crew were picked up by other steamers.

FRENCH WAR OFFICE SAYS GERMANS IN RETREAT

PARIS, Aug. 29 (5.10 p. m.)—The French war office gave out the following official statement this afternoon.

"Russian army has completely invested Koenigsberg and occupied Allenstein, both in East Prussia. The Germans continue to retreat."

WAR CLOSES WAKEFIELD MILLS—1000 IDLE

WAKEFIELD, Aug. 29.—The Harvard Knitting mills, employing over 1000 hands, mostly women and girls, closed today for a month. A notice posted by the company announced that inability to obtain materials from abroad on account of the war necessitated the closing. The knitting department which employs about six hundred will be closed for six weeks, the announcement stated.

BERLIN REPORTS GERMANS HAVE CROSSED RUSSIAN FRONTIER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—A despatch from Berlin to the German embassy says:

"German forces in East Prussia commanded by General Von Hindeburg have defeated in a three days' battle near Gilgenburg and Ortelsburg the Russian army which was proceeding from the river Narew—five army corps and three cavalry divisions strong. The German forces, in pursuit of the defeated Russians, crossed the Russian frontier."

400 AMERICANS FROM SWITZERLAND ARRIVED IN LONDON TODAY

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A party of 400 Americans from Switzerland arrived in London today. They came from Paris by way of Boulogne. Their arrival is regarded here as disproving the rumor that the Germans have cut the line of railroad communications between Paris and Boulogne.

The foregoing despatch was sent from London at 2.12 this afternoon. The announcement from Paris that train service between Paris and Boulogne had been suspended was sent out at 1 p. m. It is possible that the announcement of the suspension of traffic on the Paris-Boulogne line has not yet been received in London.

3000 MORE AMERICANS REACHED NEW YORK FROM EUROPE

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Three thousand more Americans reached New York today from England aboard the White Star liners Olympic and Adriatic, the latter reaching port with an armament of four six-inch rifles mounted two on her bow and two on her stern.

Both ships made the trip without unusual incidents. No lights were shown at night on the Adriatic; the Olympic showed only her running lights. Passengers aboard were largely from England. Very few came from the continent. All said they fared well on the way across.

GERMAN PAPERS REFER TO JAPANESE AS BLACKMAILERS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—4.49 a. m.—Wild indignation is manifested in German newspapers reaching this city over the action taken by Japan in support of Great Britain. Editorially most of the newspapers refer to the Japanese as blackmailers. The Germans, however, seem resigned to the loss of Kiao Chow, comforting themselves with the reflection that its ultimate fate will be decided on European battlefields.

The newspapers remind their readers that Kiao Chow has already cost Germany nearly $40,000,000 besides the immense sums spent on railroads and mines.

All the newspapers lament the situation of the unemployed and call on the government for measures to alleviate the distress which the Vorwaels calls "the flood of misery which is slowly and surely inundating the empire."

Discussing the treatment of prisoners of war, the Post says it is absurd to treat the prisoners any other way than as enemies, while the Tage-Zeitung urges that all Russian officers who are captured should be retained as hostages for the good behavior of the Russian army and shot if the Russians conduct themselves badly.

PEOPLE OF ANTWERP FEAR ANOTHER VISIT BY ZEPPELIN DIRIGIBLES

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 29.—5.13 p. m.—The Nieu Courant says the people of Antwerp fear another visit not merely by one but by many Zeppelin dirigibles. The inhabitants of houses in the vicinity of the royal palace have left their homes and that locality is closely guarded. At the first sign of trouble the queen and princes will be taken to England, the paper states.

SAY FALL OF LONGWY IS NO DISGRACE TO THE FRENCH ARMS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—4.33 p. m.—The Post's Paris correspondent considers the fall of Longwy no disgrace to the French arms. It was a fortress of the second rank, its heavier guns having been taken away some years ago. Therefore, he considers, it is very creditable that it resisted the German attack for over three weeks.

The correspondent says it is stated half the garrison was killed or wounded and that under these circumstances their resistance was a brilliant feat of arms.

WOMEN ON PARADE

THOUSANDS DRESSED IN BLACK MARCH THROUGH NEW YORK—TO URGE PEACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Thousands of sombre clad women marched down Fifth avenue this afternoon to the beat of muffled drums to signify their opposition to war. Nearly all wore black dresses and black hats and at the head of the procession marched a standard bearer with a large white flag inscribed in black with the word "Peace." Dark rain clouds added to the melancholy atmosphere which the women sought to create and the leaders declared that should rain fall before the parade finished they would nevertheless march on. There were no racial divisions. Women of Teutonic, Slav and Gallic extraction marched side by side as evidence of the solidarity of those opposed to the cruelties of war.

COMPANY K REUNION

Of Old Sixth Regiment Held at Drucut Centre Today — Twenty-five "Vets" Attended

Twenty-five veterans of the 83 members of Co. K, Sixth regiment, M. V. M., who responded willingly to their country's call in 1862 in the great war for Independence, responded with the same willingness this afternoon at the Drucut Centre church, and in company with many of the wives and friends of the comrades, sat down to a sumptuous repast, which was served by the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

The Sixth regiment was recruited in Lowell, but Company K was recruited in the surrounding towns, hence the large number of visitors attending. Franklin Jaquith was the toastmaster of the day. The speakers were as follows: John Colburn, Amos French, Daniel P. Byam, Rev. Mr. E. C. Bartlett and Rev. Mr. E. Victor Bigelow, former rector of the Elliot church.

THE GOD OF BATTLES

To many in this country who are outside the horrible influences of the European war there is something almost blasphemous in the way some of the principals exultingly attribute victories to God, as though the Almighty Father could look approvingly on the spectacle of awful fratricidal strife among his puny children. The day has gone by when battle appeals to God sound convincing, and the myriads who bow to him in the name of a common Christianity no longer picture his might as it shone forth on the mountain of Sinai or as when it held the sun above the horizon to aid the hosts of Joshua. Kaisers, emperors and kings may have moments of mental exaltation during which they see the lord of creation leading on their hosts to victory but those whom war will affect more directly will not see it in the same light. Francis Joseph may wire to the Kaiser "Victory after victory! God is with you. He will be with us also," but the women of France and of Germany who weep at home for the sons who will never come back to harvest the vineyards, will raise their hands and hearts to the same God for aid in their awful trial.

There was a time when armies sallied out in a holy cause as in the old testament times of judges and kings and in the later times of the crusades and the battles against the Turks, but even then the name of the Lord of Hosts was used to shield many a crime against individuals and nations. Today, saintly men like Pius X cry out against the horrors of war and make no attempt to give it a holy significance. "Peace on earth" was the message of the angels to the shepherds of Galilee and the Christ whose churches dot the plains of Belgium, Germany and France taught the brotherhood of man and stood out as the highest ideal of peace, charity and patience which this world has seen. One who in imagination looks today on the farms of France, wasted, depopulated, torn up by fiery rains and fertilized by the decomposing bodies of sons, brothers, fathers and husbands, and compares it with the France of Millet's Angelus will feel that God is a God of peace and that all warfare must be at variance with His universal plan and His divine justice. It is far more pleasant to feel that God in His high heaven is too intently listening to the wails of the women of Europe to hear the impious claims of tyrant, emperor or king.

SEARCHING THE FUTURE

If all who are swindled in the course of a year by self-appointed prophets of the future were to bring the offenders to court the public would be astonished at the credulity of many otherwise sensible people. The nature of the fraud, however, prevents disclosures and so the dupes of the paraders of the occult hide their losses and the fakes move off to another locality to try their fortune on a new batch of subjects. Occasionally a case gets into the papers and serves as a warning to people who have some claim to common sense.

A particularly striking case was revealed a few days ago by the arrest of a "mental scientist" at Gardner, Mass., on the complaint of a confiding woman of Shelburne Falls, who had been defrauded out of $180 by the wily prophet. The accused had occupied an office for many months at Greenfield and had done a thriving business telling fortunes, varying disclosures on the past and future by side business tips that promised wonderful returns to the gullible. He promised Mrs. Pierce of Shelburne that if she gave him $180 he would reveal the location of a gold mine. She turned over the money and all she got in return was a well-defined feeling of disgust and disappointment. Luckily for the public she was not sensitive in the matter as are most victims and so she seeks to have the psychic crook punished. Incidentally the police discovered after his arrest that he has a long record and has worked various little games in all parts of the country.

The inconsistency of the fortune telling situation should impress itself on anybody with a scrap of intelligence and still many women and some men will troop to fakirs over and over again half in earnest but more seriously than they care to admit. Why do they not see that if the medium or other prophet can point out great business opportunities or sources of money they would avail of it themselves instead of telling fortunes at 50 cents or $1.00 per head? In some states such frauds are prohibited by law and a great many weak-minded people would be protected were this prohibition general.

NEEDLESS BARBARISM

It is to be regretted that the ethics of warfare have not progressed in the same degree as the terrible art itself, at least on the German side of the present conflict. The disregard of treaties and contempt for neutrality as exemplified by the invasion of Belgium have been followed by all manner of indignities, so glaring as to arouse a protest from some Americans in the consular service. Belgian farmers have been slaughtered in cold blood; outrages have been committed against women; children have in some instances been massacred. All of these things have been well substantiated and they point to a degree of needless cruelty which no exigency of war times will excuse. It may be that the superior officers do not approve of the doings of the common soldiery but Germany has been so well prepared in other things that she will not be pardoned for having neglected a few lessons in humanity. War at its best is diabolical but wars can be fought without some of the features that make such distressing reading at present. The world at large will unreservedly condemn barbarity whether it be resorted to by the Germans or by the allies and a victory gained through some of the published methods will be associated with the worst cruelty of the ages.

FIREMEN'S DAY OFF

In refusing the reasonable but untimely request of one day off in six by the committee representing the Lowell firemen, Commissioner Carmichael undoubtedly disappointed this important municipal body, but under the circumstances he could not have done otherwise. It was a matter that should have been acted on by the entire municipal council and it was entirely out of the question for Commissioner Carmichael to decide owing to the city's financial condition and to the decisive rejection of a similar proposition when submitted to the voters at the polls. Such a concession at the present time would be tantamount to adding to the ranks of the firemen a number of men equal to one-sixth of the present body, and Lowell cannot do this just at present. Undoubtedly the firemen's request will be granted at some future date, for to refuse it ultimately would be to invite the pernicious two-platoon idea which is gaining ground in Boston and elsewhere. The firemen must bide their time, confident that the public will soon approve of their request. The recent concession of one day off in fifteen to the police department does not make it any easier for the firemen to accept the adverse decision with good grace.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS

This country must look pretty good at present to the Americans stranded abroad or waiting for an opportunity to return, and as things are shaping it is most imperative that their return be not delayed any longer than is absolutely necessary. Immediately after the outbreak of hostilities an American committee was formed in London for the purpose of looking after the interests of our people. This committee has just issued a strong appeal to Americans to return as soon as possible, reminding them that tourists consume foodstuffs and increase the financial difficulties of the country in which they temporarily reside. Secretary Bryan has also issued a warning to Americans abroad to return home as soon as they may because of possibilities which may make it impossible for them to do so a little later. These appeals will undoubtedly be heeded by all tourists who read the ominous signs of the times. Should there be some important naval engagements, the safety of ocean travel even for neutral ships might be menaced, and the mobilization of Italian troops and sundry signs of disturbance around the Balkan belt indicate a possible spread of the war fires with hardship to travellers all over Europe. The American who is shaking the dust of Europe from his feet just now is a wise American.

THE CRAZY MILITANTS

If the British ministers have any time to think of domestic affairs they must be convinced that their dealing with the militants in the past was altogether too mild and was, therefore, an absolute failure, and if there are any reasonable women among the militants, they must be ashamed of the acts of the furies for the past few days. On Thursday—a day of critical tensity in government circles and of anxiety among the public—a group of fanatics strove to fight their way into the office of the home secretary, attracting the unwelcome notoriety of the world and arousing a very hostile attitude in the English mob. Among those who thus brought the militant body into the spotlight were some that had been unconditionally pardoned by King George when England declared war on Germany.

Now, if ever, the wild women of England have shown themselves to be as devoid of decency as they are unreliable, for they had pledged their word to refrain from acts against the government during the English crisis. They are supposed to be striving for the vote but if this is an example of their patriotism or loyalty, what use would they make of it? Creatures with such a slight sense of the proprieties should be kept from the functions of government, and they have more than ever displayed their fitness for confinement in some institution for the irresponsible. If there is any sincerity in their crazy emotionalism they must realize that by their treasonable conduct they have forfeited their chance to profit by the disturbances of their country.

OUR CAPABLE AMATEURS

The petty critics who waxed so cynical in their condemnation of the men appointed to American diplomatic positions abroad by the present administration are significantly silent since the beginning of hostilities, realizing that their superficial darts would fall harmless before facts. Out from the mass of contradictions and disturbing reports comes the strong assertion of efficiency and ability in the American embassies and consulates of England, Germany, France and elsewhere. The following, from a report of the British ambassador, refers to Ambassador Gerard specifically, but it is in accord with the testimony of all fair authorities regarding the men chosen by the present administration to represent America abroad:

"I should also like to mention the great assistance rendered to us all by my American colleagues, Mr. Gerard and his staff. Undeterred by the hooting and hissing with which he was often greeted by the mob on entering and leaving the embassy, His Excellency came repeatedly to see me to ask how he could help us and to make arrangements for the safety of stranded British subjects.

"He extricated many of these from extremely difficult situations, at some personal risk of himself. His calmness and savoir faire and his firmness in dealing with the imperial authorities gave full assurance that the protection of British subjects and interests could not have been left in more efficient and able hands."

MANY LOWELL RESIDENTS

DETAINED IN NORWAY AND SWEDEN AWAIT CHANCE TO RETURN

A number of Scandinavian-Americans who left this city during the summer months on a visit to Sweden or Norway, are now being detained in one of those two countries and they are awaiting an opportunity to return.

Many of them have returned to their former homes for the summer months while others took in the Baltic exposition at Malmo. Among those who have left this city are many who have purchased return tickets but they have been unable to return on account of ships being tied up in the Norwegian and Swedish ports, but it is expected that before the end of September they will all have returned.

The list of those who are away and their destinations is as follows:

Mrs. Edwin Stromberg, wife of Rev. Edwin Stromberg, pastor of the Swedish Methodist church, and her three sons, in the northern part of Sweden; Mrs. Gustaf Anderson and two sons, and Miss Ellen Karlson, province of Skane; Miss Agnes Brolin, Boras, in the province of Gotland; Miss Anna Anderson, Miss Nannie Palmquist and Miss Astrid Samuelson, in the province of Smaland; Mrs. Ulrike Gustaffson, in the province of Skane; Miss Sigurd Larson and Miss Selma Anderson, in the province of Halland; Mrs. Anna Johnson, in the city of Skelleftea, province of Westnorrland; Mrs. Mathilda Zetterman and Miss Thelma Berg, in the province of Skane; Hilmar Larson, in the city of Skellfteo, province of Westnorrland; Konstan H. Lundberg, province of Smaland; John Olvist, Skelleftea; Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmar Magnuson, province of Oland; Miss Amelia V. Johnson, Skelleftea, and Miss Selma Anderson, Norway.

BABY IN RASH OVER HEAD AND BODY

Took Out All His Hair. Itched and Burned So Could Not Sleep. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eruption Healed.

Sherman Mains.—"When my baby boy was about three weeks old he broke out with a rash all over his head and body which took out all his hair and itched and burned so bad he could not sleep. It came in the form of water blisters and when he would scratch them they would make wet eruptions which continued to grow worse until they were all over his head and body. His clothes would chafe them so that I would have to keep him bandaged.

"I tried many different kinds of soap and remedies but it continued to grow worse until I obtained a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed him with the Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment. I could see that it helped him from the very first. The sore places had taken his hair all out but by the time I had used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment three weeks the eruptions were all healed and his skin is as clear and smooth as ever. He now has a fine head of hair and there has never been any sign of the trouble since." (Signed) Mrs. John Collins, Feb. 19, 1914.

Lowell Club Has Come to Life Since the Big Shakeup

Mgr. Gray Has Strong Nucleus for Next Season's Outfit

But few of the fans who travel out to Spalding Park to the home games realize what a strenuous battle the Lowell club is making for a berth in the first division. It is Manager Gray's one ambition now and he is bending every energy toward accomplishing this feat.

Getting away to a poor start this season the Lowell club has gone badly from the first. Nothing seemed to break right. Although it is folly to claim that the locals would have been in the pennant hunt had they gotten the baseball breaks in the close games this year still they would now be in a far more advanced position under different conditions.

Second Base a Bugbear

Second base has proved the stumbling block to Lowell's defensive play this season. From the time that Burke was shifted to third there has been no proficient pivot sacker on the local club until the advent of McCleskey. An even half dozen second basemen were tried out by Gray with but poor results until Hughey Duffy allowed McCleskey to slip through his fingers.

If McCleskey had been with the local club all through the season it is safe to say that Lowell would be mighty close to the top today. Instead of being a team that has been battered and beaten throughout the season they would have more confidence induced by more pronounced ability to win.

Kelly and Ring

Kelly and Ring have been sold. Whether or not they make good in the big show will probably matter not a whit to Lowell for either of them are better than Class B ball players and neither one will drift back into the local camp, barring accidents.

Kelly is a first baseman who can give lessons to the majority of the first sackers in either the National or American league when it comes to covering his position. Especially is the local player strong on taking weird throws. He has no superior in any league in this department.

If the youngster can learn to sprint this winter and also pick up a little in his batting he will surely become a prominent figure in the national game. Kelly is certainly a wonderful first baseman but he stands no chance of making good with the Yankees unless he can run and bat.

As for Ring, this youngster is possessed of more "stuff" than many pitchers up there have ever had. Jimmy is only nineteen years, tall and husky, and ought to make good in fast company.

His spit ball is talked about by every club in this league. When it is breaking right it is practically unhittable. A good start seems to be all that Jimmy needs in order to remain a fixture with the Chancemen.

Stimpson a Valuable Man

Stimpson is another sterling ball player that Gray had the good fortune to grab last spring. Stimmy is one great outfielder and has proven his worth many times this season.

It is quite likely that Stimpson also will be recalled this year at the conclusion of the New England league season. As told in The Sun earlier in the season Stimmy received a letter of encouragement from Branch Rickey in which the St. Louis manager stated that he would take him back in the fall. The local left fielder, however, has heard no more since that time.

Stimpson is certainly too classy a ball player for this league or for any other Class B organization. He has a wonderful whip, can bat and field with the best of them and is a terror on the paths. Gray will be very lucky, indeed, if he retains Stimpson for another season.

Outlook for Next Season

As we have said before first division is the best that we can hope for this year, and it will mean a hard tussle to land a berth among the first four clubs. A look into the future, however reveals the fact that we have a mighty good nucleus for a successful ball club in this city next season.

In Fahey, Dee and McCleskey, the local club has three very good infielders. They are at least the equal of any three players filling corresponding positions on any club in the league today.

Behind the bat is Wacoh. Pete got away to a very bad start this year but has worked himself into the foreground of New England catching by his splendid work during the last two months. As a substitute for him Greenhalge will also remain. Greenhalge's one capacity should be that of a pinch hitter.

Weaver, Zieser and Lohman will form a steady trio of pitchers for the season's start. There is small likelihood that either of these three men will be lost by draft or purchase.

Swayne is a Big Asset

Swayne in center field is another big asset which Lowell will have at the start of another season. This player is an exceptionally good outfielder and batter with nothing to hold him down except a poor throwing arm. Even with this defect Swayne is superior to the large majority of outfielders in the "little old league."

Therefore, from all appearances now this city bids fair to have a fast ball club in the field next season. Weakened as the leading teams in this year's race are sure to be by purchase or draft or both Lowell ought to be in the running from the tap of the gong when the 1915 season rolls around.

LATE WAR BULLETINS

BOTH ARMIES SLACKEN MARCH— LOSSES OF BOTH ARMIES APPALLING

PARIS, Aug. 29.—An official communication issued by the war department last night says:

"The situation on our front from the department of Somme, Northwest France, to the Vosges remains the same today as yesterday.

"The Germans forces appear to have slackened their march."

The apparent inaction of the armies, as indicated in the official statement, is explained by the frightful exhaustion on both sides, who for days have been fighting furiously.

The losses of both armies are appalling, particularly those of the Germans.

As an illustration of the losses sustained by the Germans, a prisoner relates that two German regiments, the 112th and 142d, were so cut down that they were made into one, and of that only 60 men now remain.

COMMANDER OF BRITISH TROOPS PRAISES KITCHENER

LONDON, Aug. 29.—1.15 a. m.—The official press bureau makes public the following bulletin sent by Sir John French, commander of the British troops in France to the war secretary:

"I shall be greatly obliged that you will tell the first lord of the admiralty how very much the army appreciates the kind messages and thoughts of the navy. Our warmest sympathy also is with our comrades in the royal navy in their trying and arduous vigil."

SAY GERMANS KILLED AMERICAN AND ENGLISH CLERGYMAN

LONDON, Aug. 29, 4.42 a. m.—A despatch to the Post from Terneusen, a seaport in the Netherlands describing the sack of Louvain from what it claims to be an authoritative source, says many citizens including women, were killed. Their nationality did not save one English and one American clergyman.

The despatch states that there will shortly start for the United States a delegation whose mission it will be to make public alleged German atrocities.

BOMBARDMENT OF AUSTRIAN FORTS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.32 a. m.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Milan says a report has reached there from Bari, Italy, that British and French warships, combined with Montenegrin guns resumed the bombardment of the Austrian forts at Cattaro on the night of Aug. 27. Two forts were demolished after six hours cannonading.

A small Austrian squadron attempted a sortie from its place of retreat at the island of Cherso but without success.

DENIES GERMAN TORPEDO BOAT SUNK

PEKING, Aug. 29.—After an inquiry at Tsing Tau the German legation denies that the German torpedo boat destroyer S-90 had been sunk.

A despatch from Che Foo, China, last night said that the British torpedoboat destroyer Welland had engaged and sunk the S-90.

WRITES 280 WORDS A MINUTE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 24.—Charles H. Requa of Brooklyn was chosen president of the National Shorthand Reporters' association and San Francisco was selected as the place for next year's convention at annual meeting here yesterday. Nathan Behrens of New York was declared the winner of the speed contest, the last to be held under the auspices of the association. He wrote 280 words a minute for five minutes.

FREIGHT CARS IN DEMAND

READING, Pa., Aug. 24.—Because of better demand for freight cars and general improvement in business the Reading Railway yesterday ordered its car shops here and at several other places along its system on 55 hours a week instead of 40. Nearly 2,000 employes are affected.

It's Easy to Peel Off Your Tan or Freckles

This is what you should do to shed a spoiled complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night; wash it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or discolored the complexion. The wax literally peels off the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store: one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, tanned, reddened, blotchy, pimpled or freckled skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

MAN FOUND DEAD

Unknown Man Believed to Have Resided in This City

LAWRENCE, Aug. 28.—The unknown man who was found dead Wednesday night by three campers at Shadow lake, beneath a canvas tent, had not been identified up to this morning. Medical Examiner L. G. Dearborn of Derry, N. H., and Dr. L. S. Soule of Salem, N. H., viewed the body and pronounced death due to cancer. It was stated this morning that the man's clothes will be searched today to find, if possible, any marks of identification.

The man is believed to have resided in Lowell. He was about 45 years old. He was at the farm of Charles Kelley at Salem, N. H., in search of his brother, to whom he said he wished to convey some property before he died.

He borrowed a pole and a piece of canvas and constructed a temporary tent Wednesday evening. Later in the evening he was discovered dead by the campers.

LATE WAR BULLETINS

DARING ACT BY RUSSIAN COLONEL—CAPTURE OF GERMAN GUN

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.48 a. m.—A despatch from St. Petersburg to the Reuter Telegram Co. recites a daring act credited to Prinz Eristoff, a colonel in the horse artillery.

When the Germans were retreating from Stallupoehnen, a town of east Prussia, the prince ordered his men to unhitch their horses from their own guns, mount them and gallop after the Germans. Under a heavy fire the Russian cavalrymen went forward, captured the German guns and brought them back to their lines.

Emperor Nicholas has conferred the cross of St. George upon Prince Fristoff.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Ostend says that of the German war levy of $40,000,000 on the city of Brussels thus far only $200,000 has been paid, and the Germans declare that if the remainder is not made good they will seize the pictures and works of art in the museums.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—It is announced that the British fleet has sunk two German cruisers and two German torpedo boat destroyers off Helgoland, in the North sea.

A third cruiser was set afire and was left sinking.

It is announced that no British ships were lost in the naval battle and that the British loss of life was not very heavy.

In addition to the two torpedo boat destroyers and three cruisers many of the German torpedo boat destroyers were damaged.

AMERICANS AUTHORIZED TO VISIT BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—(Via London) 6.40 a. m.—The military authorities have authorized Henry S. Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war at Washington and some American officers and newspaper correspondents to visit Berlin.

GERMAN STEAMER CAPTAIN REPORTS FIERCE RIOTING AT DANZIG, GERMANY

LONDON, Aug. 29, 6.40 a. m.—A Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says the German steamer Derkid has arrived there from Danzig, Germany. The captain told of a terrible panic there owing to the fear of a Russian invasion. He said the inhabitants were in a desperate condition and that there had been fierce rioting.

BERLIN REPORTS DEFEAT OF RUSSIANS—AUSTRIANS ALSO PURSUING RUSSIANS

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—By wireless to the Associted Press via Sayville, L. I.—News of the defeat of five Russian army corps to the south of Allenstein is made public here today. It is regarded as encouraging and as greatly relieving the situation in East Prussia.

The Associated Press has been informed from official Austrian sources that the battles which have been in progress for several days past are expected to be decisive. Austrian troops are pursuing the Russians from Krasnik, about 20 miles north of the Galician frontier in the direction of Lubin.

There is no invading army between the river Bug and the river Wieprz. (These rivers are affluents of the Vistula and embrace a territory located to the east of Warsaw).

Austria, according to this same authority has invaded Russia and has occupied the region in front of Zamose.

The Austrians hold the regions to the west, north and southeast of Lemberg, Galicia, and have advanced toward the Dniester river against strong invading forces of the enemy.

No news was received here today concerning the situation on the French frontier beyond a special despatch to the Tage Zeitung declaring that the British defeat at St. Quentin was complete. The British losses were heavy and the routed British soldiers were forced to accept battle by the German cavalry, who were in masses on their line of retreat.

The location in the foregoing despatch of St. Quentin in the department of Aisne, France, as the point where the British troops were forced to retreat before the German attack, places the scene of this fighting considerably further within French territory than have previous reports.

Up to the present time the British line has been described as extending from Cambrai to Le Cateau. St. Quentin is 20 miles south of Cambrai and the same distance southwest of Le Cateau. It is within eight miles of the boundary of the department of Somme referred to in an official communication issued by the French war department last night as follows:

"The situation on our front from the department of Somme to the Vosges remains the same today as yesterday."

SAYS GERMANS, CONTRARY TO LAWS OF WAR, BOMBARDED UNDEFENDED TOWNS

LONDON, Aug. 29, 4.50 a. m.—The correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. at Rotterdam sends the following official statement:

"On Thursday the Germans, contrary to the laws of war, bombarded Malines, an open and undefended town.

"On Friday morning the town was partially occupied by German infantry, which withdrew toward the south in the afternoon and bombardment was renewed, four shells falling about each quarter of an hour.

"The enemy also bombarded the region about Heyst-op-Den-Berg, a town 17 miles southeast of Antwerp, an open locality not occupied by the military. The two operations had no less an object than to terrorize the civilian populations.

"The Germans have systematically bombarded the forts and gaps of Namur for 48 hours. The town itself suffered little. The enemy has invested the northeast portion of the place and is attacking the forts and gaps in that region. The Belgian division retired to the second line of defense, which was bombarded violently. In turn the Belgian and French troops made numerous counter-attacks.

"The Belgian division retired by way of the Sambre and the Meuse and the movement was accomplished in good order. Our troops have rejoined the French lines.

"Reconnaisances made in the neighborhood of Antwerp gave favorable results and showed the country unoccupied. Our security, therefore, is complete."

MANY KILLED AT MALINES—GERMANS PREPARE FOR ATTACK ON ANTWERP

LONDON, Aug. 29, 6.42.—A despatch to the Daily News from Rotterdam says that out of 60,000 inhabitants of Malines only 200 are now left in the town. Refugees state that many were killed by the bombardment and practically all of the remainder fled.

The Germans are bringing up heavy siege guns of a new pattern for use against Antwerp. These guns have also been used at Malines.

The Germans have ordered all able-bodied Belgians in Liege and Tongres and their vicinity to proceed at once to Germany to assist in harvesting. The news of this order is likely to swell greatly the numbers of Belgian refugees in southern Holland.

ARMIES PAUSE AFTER WEEK OF TERRIBLE FIGHTING—BURY DEAD—TREAT WOUNDED

LONDON, Aug. 29.—After a full week of terrible fighting the armies in Northern France have stopped for a momentary breathing spell. Great numbers of wounded are to be cared for, thousands of dead buried and supplies of all kinds replenished.

Yet, though the French war office last night announced a general discontinuance of the struggle along the front, there is every indication that the Germans are pushing their lines closer to the allies and preparing to deliver a sudden stroke on the west.

There is no longer any doubt but that the Germans are throwing their greatest strength against the left or west flank of the allied armies. They hope to break down the defence on the shortest road to Paris and to get between the capital and the main French army on the Lorraine frontier. It is what the Germans have themselves called the "Iron Ring."

Follow Plan That Brought Victory

This plan, in the reverse, was the one which worked out so successfully in the Franco-Prussian campaigns of 1870. Then, instead of coming in by way of Belgium, the Germans swung across the French border by way of Mainz and Strasburg, broke down the French defense on the right flank, marched rapidly upon Paris, and cut off the French armies near Metz and Sedan.

And in this new war there is every indication that the Germans are fast weakening the allies' lines in the west. The English contingent of about 700,000 men, which originally held a line somewhere between Conde, in France, and Mons, Belgium, has twice been forced back, once, it is believed, to the Valenciennes-Maubeuge line, and a second time to a line between Cambrai and LeCateau. The last two places are about 15 miles apart, and some 35 miles south of Lille and 25 from Valenciennes.

From Cambrai to Paris it is roughly 100 miles; from Nancy, on the Lorraine border, to Paris, is fully 180 miles; and should the Germans with a mighty stroke break through on the west and then swing toward the east they would threaten the existence of the French army on the Lorraine and Luxemburg borders.

May Force English to Abandon Base

It is not even certain that the English army is on the Cambrai-LeCateau line. Many believe that it has been beaten back still farther, and now is holding a position along the defensive line of Amiens, St. Quentin and LaFere, 25 miles in the rear.

Between the extreme left of the British and the seacoast of France are the French reserves, but military experts believe that they are already in retreat at many points, swinging around toward the rear in cadence with the retrograde movements of the English. If such is the case, the channel ports of Dunkirk and Calais will be uncovered and the English base will be transferred south to Dieppe or Havre.

Valenciennes Captured

At present the line of the allies in the west extends from Dunkirk to Lille, thence south to Arras, and west again through Cambrai, LeCateau and Hirson to Mezieres, on the Meuse river. From Mezieres the French army extends off to the east, to Nancy and the Vosges.

There is some question as to whether Lille is held by the French or by the Germans; but the present location of the English force, as announced officially here last night, makes it certain that Valenciennes is in German hands, and that Maubeuge is invested.

An unofficial despatch from Boulogne says that the Germans have broken through the allied lines near Arras, west of the English positions, but that the French moved up rapidly and that matters are now well in hand.

At Pont-a-Marcq and Marchiennes, both out in front of Arras, and about midway between Lille and Valenciennes, there was heavy fighting, the Germans all the while forcing themselves south and west to gain the flank of the allied armies.

It is known that in the recent fighting in that quarter of the battle line the casualties were very heavy, the British troops suffering especially.

Russia Has 16,000,000 Under Arms

The allies in France are looking eagerly to the east for relief at the hands of the Russians. East Prussia is now pretty well overrun by the czar's troops, and it is thought that within a few days they will be in front of the formidable line of defenses on the Vistula.

Many despatches from continental points forecast what is going to happen when the Russians cross to the west bank of the Vistula. But that river in its lower reaches is in some places fully a mile wide. Presumably its bridges will be destroyed long before the Russians come up to them, and the Russians will be obliged to lay pontoons, which under fire is ticklish business.

Yet the situation is a serious one for the Germans, as evinced by a despatch from Berlin to Rome, which states that Emperor William has telegraphed his council of ministers to take immediate steps toward the relief of the people of the Province of East Prussia.

Late reports from St. Petersburg set the Russian strength at 16,000,000 men. Those conversant with the situation cannot believe that Russia has nearly so many men in the field. There is the possibility that such a number of men may be under arms throughout the empire, but as garrisons must be maintained and the Siberian and far eastern stations watched, the effective field strength would be materially less.

Russians Advancing on Lemberg

On the Austrian frontier matters are also progressing favorably to Russia. The advance upon Lemberg in Galicia is persistent, and the battle for that place will be fought soon, if it is not even now in progress. Last night the Paris war office issued an announcement regarding the Austro-Russian situation, but when the London censors got through with it, it was merely an interesting puzzle. It read:

"In Galicia the Russians are taking a vigorous offensive. After successful engagements near (censored) they are marching on and are now only 200 miles from that town." The mysterious town may possibly be Lemberg itself, though military observers are inclined to believe it to be a more easterly point, possibly Krasne, 28 miles from the former city.

Fortifications About Vienna

The dispatch says the Austrian troops operating in the south, in Dalmatia and at Bosnian points, have been ordered to remain on the defensive, as a large number of troops have been withdrawn from Bosnia and sent to Galicia to oppose the Russians, "who are making alarming progress."

And from St. Petersburg comes the information that the Austrians have begun extensive works along the line of the Danube river, on the ground that it is necessary to relieve the needs of the populace by providing works."

In the midst of war a pathetic note is sounded. The orphaned children of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose assassination by a Servian was the spark that led to the present outbreak have been sent away from Vienna by Emperor Francis Joseph. They are now at Chateau Wartingy, on Lake Constance, Switzerland, in care of the Duke and Duchess of Parma Roorschach, and will remain there until the war is over.

GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS CROSS RHINE

ROME, Aug. 29 (12.28 p. m.)—A despatch to the Giornale D'Italia from Basel, Switzerland, says three German army corps, two Austrian army corps and a great quantity of siege artillery have crossed the Rhine.

GERMAN TROOPS ADVANCING—BOULOGNE PREPARING FOR CAVALRY RAID

LONDON, Aug. 29.—4.12 a. m.—The correspondent of the Express at Boulogne wires that preparations are being made there in anticipation of a cavalry raid on the town. He says:

"The German troops are advancing in North France and Boulogne is making preparation for a cavalry raid on the town. A notice was posted this morning on the subprefectures and the headquarters of the gendarmerie stating that the troops had been withdrawn and calling on the inhabitants to remain calm, preserve order and make any sacrifices necessary for the good of their country.

"I am told the customs officials left Boulogne Friday morning and that the officials of the civil administration are ready to leave. Since Thursday night the town has been absolutely deserted by visitors. Some left by boat and others by land in the direction of Havre and Dieppe. Some of the inhabitants are leaving but as yet there has been no general exodus.

"The story is that Uhlans, who may be the vanguard of a large body of cavalry are within 30 miles of the town.

"The boat which left Boulogne Friday afternoon was filled with people, some of whom were British. The boat was unable to wait for the usual train for Paris, which was held up somewhere along the line. I am told that a number of British wounded are expected by this train.

"Several more wounded British soldiers left Boulogne Friday morning on the early boat for Folkestone. They included one airman who had both legs broken by a shot fired at him while he was in the air.

PITCHED BATTLE WHEN AUSTRIANS ATTEMPTED TO SEIZE RUSSIANS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—11.34 a. m.—A St. Petersburg despatch to the Times says that the Austrians made a bold bid for the offensive today by trying to seize the left flank of the Russian position in Poland with the obvious intention of relieving the pressure on the German forces in northeastern Prussia. Two or three army corps advanced as far as Kielce, where they encountered a strong Russian force. A pitched battle was fought and resulted in the overthrow of the invaders who sustained heavy losses. It was here that the Eleventh Hungarian reserve met their fate.

Operations in eastern Galicia, according to the despatch, are developing fast and the Russian net is drawing around Lemburg. The German Allenstein army is in full retreat toward Elbing and Marienburg.

"The reported capture of Konigsburg is not confirmed," says the Times correspondent, "but I have the best of authority for stating that Konigsburg is completely surrounded."

The minister of finance has informed prominent temperance advocates that the sale of spirits would be forbidden throughout the war."

GERMANS BURN HISTORIC CITY

LONDON, Aug. 28, 7.25 p. m.—The Belgian foreign minister reports that the Belgian city of Louvain, in the province of Brabant, has been burned by the Germans.

The war information bureau announces:

"The Belgian minister of foreign affairs reports that on Tuesday a German army corps after receiving a check withdrew in disorder to the city of Louvain. The Germans on guard at the entrance of the city, mistaking the nature of this incursion, fired upon their countrymen, whom they mistook for Belgians.

"In spite of all the denials from the authorities, the Germans in order to cover their mistake pretended that it was the inhabitants who fired on them, whereas the inhabitants, including the police, all had been disarmed more than a week before.

"Without inquiry and without listening to any protest, the German commander announced that the town would be destroyed immediately. The inhabitants were ordered to leave their dwellings and some were made prisoners. The women and children were placed on trains, the destinations of which are not known, and soldiers furnished with bombs set fire to all parts of the city. The splendid Church of St. Peter, the university buildings, the library and scientific establishments were delivered to the flames.

"Several notable citizens were shot. The city, which had a population of 45,000 and was the intellectual metropolis of the low countries, is now nothing more than a heap of ashes."

BELGIAN MINISTER PROTESTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Formal protests against the burning of Louvain by German troops as a violation of international law and the laws of humanity was submitted to the state department late yesterday by Belgian Minister Havenilit.

The minister was deply moved when he left Secretary Bryan's office, where for the last few weeks his visits have meant the record of pathetic history for his country.

"I bring this knowledge to the United States," said the minister sadly, "for it is not only Belgium who has to mourn. This thing concerns the whole world."

The loss of the old Church of St. Pierre was mentioned, and the destruction of the "jewel of Gothic art," the Hotel de Ville. In conclusion the message ran as follows:

"Americans, many of whom have followed courses at this illustrious alma mater, and have there received such cordial hospitality, cannot remain insensible to this outrage on the rights of humanity and civilization which is unprecedented in history."

Louvain, which lies in the famous province of Brabant, of which it was the capital in the 14th century, was the seat of the Duke of Brabant in the 11th century. The university, which is the finest in Belgium, was founded by Duke John IV, of Brabant in 1423.

The Church of St. Pierre, supposed to have been destroyed by the fire, is called by experts "the richest and most ornate example of pointed Gothic architecture in the country."

The latest advices do not state the exact amount of damage, and the German reports differ from the Belgian version.

BRITISH WAR OFFICE REPORTS ON SACKING OF TOWN OF LOUVAIN

LONDON, Aug. 29, 1.30 p. m.—The official information bureau in a statement regarding the sacking of the Belgian town of Louvain by the Germans and the German announcement that the inhabitants had fired on their troops, says:

"The assumption of the German commander was under the circumstances so wide of probability that it can only be supposed that in the desire to conceal the facts the first idea which occurred to him was seized upon as an excuse for an act without parallel in the history of civilized peoples.

"Louvain has been utterly destroyed by one of the emperor's commanders in a moment of passion to cover the blunder of his own men."

APPEAL TO PRIZE COURT TO EXTEND TIME FOR AMERICAN CLAIMANTS

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Robert P. Skinner, the American consul general in London, today appealed to the prize court to extend the period of time in which to make appearance before it for the benefit of American claimants. This period of time is now only eight days after the issue of the prize writ. He finds it difficult to inform in so brief a period the American owners of millions of dollars of goods seized ahoard German ships.

BRITISH OFFICER TELLS HOW BRITISH CAVALRY SUFFERED THROUGH RUSE OF ENEMY

LONDON, Aug. 29, 3.21 a. m.—A private letter received here from a British officer at the front tells how a British cavalry regiment suffered severe loss through a ruse of the enemy.

The regiment, it seems, sighted a German battery not far off firing in a reverse direction and the British officer decided that the battery was unaware of their presence, whereupon he ordered a cavalry charge down into a valley which lay between them and the battery.

Unfortunately the bottom of the valley had been very very cleverly studded with concealed barbed wire into which a great portion of the regiment rushed before the rank could give warning. Immediately the German battery turned its guns around, inflicting heavy loss.

FIRST NATIVE TROOPS FROM NORTH AMERICA SAILED TODAY

MONTREAL, Aug. 29.—The Princess Patricia, Canadian light infantry, first native troops from North America to leave for the European war, sailed 1000 strong, aboard the White Star liner Megantic, amid gala scenes today, for a secret destination.

WOMAN URGED FORHOUSE

MISS SHORES PROPOSED FROM CHICOPEE—PROGRESSIVES TO USE STICKERS IN HER BEHALF

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Some progressives of Chicopee are urging Miss Helen Shores to be a candidate for the house of representatives from the 8th Hampden district. No one has filed papers as a progressive candidate for the legislature from that district, but it is proposed to nominate Miss Shores by the use of stickers at the primaries on Sept. 22.

Miss Shores has not yet decided whether or not she will run. She is prominent in the movement for woman suffrage and is a member of the progressive state committee.

Although the state constitution does not permit women to vote, it does not in terms lay down the law that women shall not hold office. The constitution says: "Every representative, for one year at least preceding his election, shall have been an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen," etc.

Whether the use of the word "he" in that clause prohibits women from serving in the house is a question which may sometime be brought before the house itself or the supreme court.

It is said on indefinite authority that men who were not voters have been elected to the legislature in years past.

FOR STUBBORN CHILDREN

They Cannot be Cured by Scolding, Says Fr. Tierney—Way to Overcome the Abnormalities

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Stubbornness is the result of an abnormal will and cannot be cured by scolding, according to the Rev. Fr. Richard H. Tierney, S. J., of New York, who yesterday discussed the various forms of abnormal wills and their cure, before the Boston Catholic Teachers' institute in Boston college hall.

Fr. Tierney warned the teachers of the defects in a child's will power very thoroughly, and then told of the right and wrong ways to overcome the abnormalities and how to place the child on the plane with those who have normal wills.

"Eight teachers out of every 12 think that stubbornness shows strength of character,' said Fr. Tierney. "This is not so for stubbornness is a sign of lack of character, and shows a great weakness of will. It is the result of an abnormal will.

"Stubbornness cannot be cured by scolding and teachers should be careful not to scold stubborn pupils. The best cure is to point out to the child some time when alone with him the folly of being stubborn. Tell the child that it shows a great defect in character. Tell him that he is vain and that he lacks strength of character. Keep at it continually. You probably will not succeed at first, but after a fashion you will notice that the child will get over being stubborn. I can remember in one case where it took me a whole year to cure a young man, but I finally succeeded.

"The ridiculousness of being stubborn will dawn on anyone if you continue to point it out. In children the best way to cure them is to arouse them to the foolishness of it. Don't shout at them or scold them, and they will soon overcome the abnormality.

"Sentimentality is another form of an abnormal will, but never let it worry you too much. It is easy to cure and will disappear itself if you will leave it alone. Every boy at some time in his life has a period where he is very sentimental and spends a great deal of time writing poetry about beautiful blue eyes. The same is true about girls, but like the boys they manage to outgrow it.

"An impetuous will is one of the hardest abnormalities to overcome in a child, and is the one we most frequently discover in the children. The best way to cure an impetuous will is to put the intellect to some task. See that it has something difficult to do and pay no attention to the child. You will find that the child will soon recover from it and become perfectly normal.

"A slow will is one that gives a teacher considerable trouble. It takes a child a long time to think, to grasp a situation, or to do anything. An excellent way to cure this sort of abnormal will is to set a time for the child to accomplish anything in. For instance give them some work to do that would ordinarily take an hour and five minutes and tell them to do it in one hour and they will soon pick up.

"Another excellent way to cure a slow will is to give it too much work and thereby arouse the interest. A slow will is generally the result of laziness and they should always be kept busy.

"A nervous will makes the children want to do one thing and then turn around and do something else. The cure for this as advocated by a number of prominent physicians throughout the country, is to assign the persons to do certain tasks at certain times so that they will eventually overcome their fault."

BATTLE OF MONS

Sergt. Loftus of British Army Tells of Victory for Allies

LONDON, Aug. 29.—2.10 a. m.—Sergeant Loftus, writing to his brother in England of the experiences of the British in the battle of Mons, says:

"It came unexpectedly at a time when we had given up hope of seeing any Germans. Just after reveille our cavalry pickets fell back, reporting the approach of the enemy in force.

"We lay in trenches as our artillery opened on them in fine style and soon they returned the compliment. We were a long time in finding the range.

"After about half an hour the infantry came into view. They were in solid squares, standing out sharply against the sky line. You couldn't help hitting them.

"We lay in our trenches without a sound and they crept nearer and nearer. Then our officers gave the word, a sheet of flame flickered along the trenches and a stream of bullets tore through the advancing mass. They seemed to stagger like a drunken man suddenly hit between the eyes and then they made a run at us. Half way across the open another volley tore through their ranks.

"By this time our artillery began dropping shells among them and then they broke into open formation, rushing like mad toward the trenches. On our left the Germans fell back in confusion and lay down wherever cover was available. We gave them no rest and soon they were again in flight.

"Then came more furious shelling of our trenches and another mad rush across the open on our front. This time they were strongly supported by cavalry who suffered terribly but came right up to our lines.

"We received them in the good old way, the front ranks with the bayonet and the rear ranks keeping up an incessant fire and after a hard tussle they retired hastily. Just as they thought themselves safe our mounted men swooped down on them, cutting right and left.

"This sort of thing went on through the whole day without bringing the Germans any nearer to shifting us.

"After the last attack we lay down to sleep in our clothes but before sunrise were told to abandon our position. Nobody knew why we had to, but we obeyed without a murmur.

"The enemy's cavalry, evidently misunderstanding our action, came down on us again in force but our men behaved very well and the Germans gave it up as a bad job."

REP. DIETRICK ASKS SEC. DANIELS TO HAVE CHAINMAKERS AND HELPERS REINSTATED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Representative Dietrick yesterday took up with Sec. Daniels the subject of the chainmakers' and their helpers' strike at the Charlestown navy yard and asked that steps be taken for the reinstatement of the men. Sec. Daniels expressed hope that the difficulty soon might be adjusted.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 29.—The Pepperell mills in this city and the York mills in Saco closed today for two weeks. Both companies announce they will resume again at the end of that period. The shutdown involves 6100 operatives. The York manufactures colored goods, but is not as yet affected by the dyestuff situation.

"HUMAN FLY" SWATTED

RODMAN LAW STOPPED BY POLICE WHILE SCALING BUILDING

BOSTON, Aug. 29—Several thousand people stood with bated breath yesterday morning at the corner of Essex and Washington streets and watched Rodman Law, the daring young man who recently scaled the wall of the Flatiron building in New York, endeavor to do his "Human Fly" act up the side of the Bacon department store building. Law got as far as the cornice on the third floor and while he was struggling to get a foothold on the coping, the police of the Lagrange street station made their way to the third floor and appeared at the window where Law was standing and ordered him to quit under the threat of arrest.

The stage was set for a rather extraordinary thrill when the police appeared. The fire escapes on the building directly opposite on Washington street were crowded with moving picture operators and newspaper photographers who were ready to record the ascent in film.

In the crowd that watched was Miss Ruth Bancroft Law, a sister of the "Professional Nut," who is to operate the Wright biplane from which Rodman is to make a parachute jump at an altitude of 3000 feet and while the machine is traveling 60 miles an hour, each day at Rockingham fair next week.

CONFESSED AT TRIAL

"DOCK" SMITH SAYS HE SHOT SHERIFF IN KENTUCKY ON HEARING OF MURDER FUND

WINCHESTER, Ky., Aug. 29.—Just before the state rested yesterday in the trial of "Red Tom" Davidson, who is charged with complicity in the assassination of Edward Callahan, former sheriff of Breathitt county, "Dock" Smith confessed on the witness stand that he was one of the men who fired the shots that killed Callahan.

He testified that Davidson told him of a murder fund raised to pay the men who killed Callahan. After the opening of the defense Davidson took the witness stand and denied all the charges made by Smith.

It is expected the jury will get the case today.

LINER ADRIATIC ARRIVES

CREPT INTO NEW YORK PORT IN DARKNESS—1762 PASSENGERS ON BOARD

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—With six-in. guns mounted fore and aft, with every port-hole blanketed and all lights extinguished, the White Star liner Adriatic crept into port in the darkness of early morning today. She had on board 1762 passengers, nearly all Americans who were in England at the outbreak of hostilities.

Not for a moment during the long voyage from Liverpool from which the Adriatic cleared on Aug. 20, were the passengers permitted to forget that Europe was at war. By night the steamer traveled without lights; by day her decks were thronged with her officers and sailors, practicing their gun drill for hours. It is said the vessel will go with little delay from here to Halifax to help carry Canadian volunteers across the sea.

The Adriatic's batteries consist of four six-inch rifles, two mounted on the bow and two on the stern. They were placed in position at Liverpool. On Aug. 27 the French liner France was sighted and the two vessels exchanged signals.

STASCONSET, Aug. 29.—Steamer St. Paul, Liverpool for New York, will dock 8 a. m. Sunday.

BRITISH CRUISER ARRIVES WITH GERMAN PRISONERS

LONDON, Aug. 29 (3.23 p. m.)—A British cruiser arrived in the Nore today with 200 German prisoners on board, chiefly from the German cruiser Mainz, which was sunk by a British fleet in the recent naval engagement off Cuxhaven.

AMERICANS AT GHENT IN NEED OF MONEY

LONDON, Aug. 29 (1.32 p. m.)—The American embassy up to the present time has been unable to get into communication with certain Americans marooned in Ghent, Belgium, who are in need of money.

The news of the plight of these travelers reached London through the state department at Washington, which received its information from the American consul at Ghent, who succeeded in making his way to Antwerp. The embassy is unable to get into communication with either Antwerp or Ghent.

ALBANIA RULER TO VACATE

LONDON, Aug. 29 (1.41 a. m.)—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., from Rome, says:

"An authentic message received here from Durazzo, Albania, states that as both Italy and Austria have withdrawn their financial support from Albania, the intention of the Albanian ruler, Prince William of Wieg, to vacate the throne in the near future, is officially confirmed."

ROME, Aug. 29 (Via London) 3.20 a. m.—The Avlona, Albania, correspondent of the Tribuna, confirms a report that Prince William of Wieg, the Albanian ruler, has left Durazzo.

PARIS WAR OFFICE SAY GERMAN LOSSES ARE HEAVY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—An official despatch from the foreign office in Paris dated yesterday follows:

"On Aug. 27 the French troops took the offensive in the Vosges and in the region between the Vosges and Nancy and their offensive has been interrupted but the German loss has been considerable.

"Our forces found near Nancy on a front of three kilometres, 2500 dead Germans and near Vitrimont on a front of four kilometres, 4500 dead.

"Longwy, where the garrison consisted of only one battalion, has capitulated after a siege of 14 days.

"In the north the English army was attacked by a superior force and after brilliant resistance moved back a little.

"In East Prussia the German troops are retiring on Allenstein. In Galicia the Russians are only 30 kilometres from Lemberg. The general army headquarters of Servia have moved forward to Zalievo."

AS TO STATE PRIMARIES

Movement to Have Polls Open Same Hours as Election Day—Views of Questions Presented

There is a movement on foot to have the hours for the holding of the state primaries changed to correspond with the hours that the polls are open on election day.

Section 115 of the laws relating to primaries, caucuses and elections, provides that the polls at every state primary shall be open during such hours, not less than nine in cities or two in towns, as may be designated by the board of election commissioners in Boston, the aldermen in other cities, and the selectmen in towns.

The city clerk, on Sept. 8, will put in the call for elections to the municipal council and it will be up to the council to say at what hours the polls shall open and close.

While it may not be advisable to open the polls for the primaries at 6 a. m., yet it is deemed altogether advisable that the polls should open as early at least as 10 a. m., instead of 11 a. m., as has been the custom in the past. There seems to be no argument in favor of keeping the polls open after 7 p. m.

It has been stated that only candidates who have something they want to "pull off" favor darkness at the polls, but be that as it may the fact remains that it would be better for all concerned to close the polls as early at least as 7 p. m. A great many hold to the opinion that the polls should open and close at the primaries at the same hours as they open and close on election day. On election day the polls open at 6 a. m., and close at 4 p. m. The argument advanced against this proposition is that closing at 6 o'clock would not give the mill operatives sufficient opportunity to vote, but this argument cannot be advanced as against the proposition to close the polls at 7 o'clock.

"I believe," said a man who has been a precinct officer for several years, "that the polls should close earlier than 8 o'clock. As a precinct officer I do not understand why they should remain open later than 7 o'clock and as a matter of fact I do not believe it necessary to keep them open later than 6 p. m.

"It has been my experience that the number of voters appearing at the polls after 6 o'clock has been very small and I do not think it would work a hardship on one to close the polls at that hour. But if there is objection to that there certainly cannot be any wise objection to closing the polls at 7 o'clock.

"I presume there are candidates who like the dark because it gives their henchmen a better opportunity to work, but I think such candidates are few and far between. I do not know why the custom of keeping the polls open until 8 o'clock at the primaries was adopted. There isn't any occasion for it.

"When it gets around 6 or 7 o'clock in the evening the precinct officers are pretty tired and to delay the counting of the ballots until 8 o'clock is a hardship and a useless one. And there is another very unsatisfactory side to the late hour at the polls. As a rule men don't drink very much during the day and if the polls closed earlier a great many more men would vote before visiting the barrooms. As a matter of fact, I think the saloons ought to be made to close at the primaries as well as on election day. But that is not part of this argument. I claim that there isn't any sound argument against closing the polls as early at least as 7 p. m. It very often happens that men active at the polls get "too much aboard" in the late evening as has been too often reflected in the count. I am certainly very strongly in favor of an earlier closing of the polls at the state primaries and the city primaries, too, as far as that goes."

IN POLICE COURT

Some Pitiful Cases Before Judge Enright—Raid in Billerica

This morning's session of police court might well be termed "Ladies' Day," for the list of female offenders outnumbered the men in the dock.

On the long bench in front of the dock sat, or partially reclined, seven members of the fair sex, some in an attitude of dejection, several of the more hardened characters in a rather jocular mood, while the two young girls on the extreme ends of the line displayed an almost total nervous collapse.

Clara Belanger and Delia Burke were arrested last night on a charge of leading a disorderly life. The Belanger girl was in terrible shape this morning and could not rise when her case was called until assisted to her feet by Court Officer Dwyer.

When placed under arrest last night she became hysterical and tried to break away from the officer and throw herself into the canal. These two cases were continued until Monday morning for trial.

Annie Dufaur wept continually until her case was called, her low moans of anguish reaching the heart of everyone in the court room. Officers Petrie, Clark and Sheridan testified to many incidents in the girl's life which were not contradicted.

In spite of her lapses from grace, however, Judge Enright decided to give the sad faced little girl another chance. Her case was continued for sentence for a month. The mother of the girl took her erring daughter into her arms as soon as the trial was concluded and together they left the court room, the girl still crying as though her heart would break. It was a sad scene, even for a police court.

Liquor Nuisance Alleged

Acting upon complaints which had been made to him by several Billerica residents, Sheriff Stiles collected a posse consisting of Warren Simmons and Officer John Leighton, and swooped down upon the domicile of James and Christina Zecchini. The search warrant was issued by the local court.

Sheriff Stiles dug up enough evidence so that the Zecchini couple appeared in court charged with the illegal sale of liquor and also of maintaining a liquor nuisance. The case was continued until Sept. 5. Melvin Rogers, Esq. appeared for the prosecution.

An assault and battery case which occurred last May on East Merrimack street was brought to light today when Antoini Kososki was called for trial.

The complainant was a blonde little lady who waved aside the interpreter with a superior air and announced that she could speak "the English."

According to her story the defendant assaulted her while they were both in the house of a mutual friend. Antoni attempted to convince the court that the little blonde lady was very, very drunk at the time but his story proved unconvincing to the court. Antoni was taxed $10.

Very Sad Case

A sad case was brought to light, when Mary Guerin pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. The police testified that the woman has been intoxicated quite regularly for some time.

The woman's husband is sick and is being cared for at the City hospital and a three-year-old child is dependent upon her. In spite of a full knowledge of this fact she seems wholly unable to break away from the drink habit. The only course which seemed open to the court was confinement for the unfortunate woman, and she was led away to serve a month's sentence in the Lowell jail.

Timothy F. Donahue was in court this morning to answer to a charge of drunkenness. He had been released earlier in the day upon bail. His case was put over.

Held for Grand Jury

A marked $10 bill was the big factor in the larceny case in which John Ciecenece was accused of stealing $162 from George Monstakos in police court today.

The case hinged upon the number on the bill. One of the government's witnesses testified that he took the number of the bill while it was in possession of the complainant and that later the defendant passed him the same. Judge Enright held the defendant for the grand jury. James E. O'Donnell, Esq., appeared for the defendant.

BISCUIT MEN'S OUTING

The "Uneeda" Company Gives Two Days' Outing at Nantasket—Trip By Train and Steamship

The local office of the National Biscuit company is closed today, and the reason for the suspension of work is that all employes have gone to Nantasket beach, where they will be the guests of the company for two days. This is an annual outing and it is being held for the employes of the company in 18 different offices of the state.

The Lowell delegation left shortly after 8 o'clock, each one bearing a large card inscribed "Uneeda Biscuit." The trip to the Hub was made by train and from there a steamship conveyed the excursionists to the summer resort, where an excellent program was carried out. This included bathing, baseball, tug-of-war and other events and at noon a shore dinner was enjoyed at a prominent hotel.

The guests will remain at the seashore until tomorrow evening, at the expense of the company and undoubtedly Sunday will be spent in a most enjoyable manner. Several officials of the company are expected to participate in the amusements provided for the salesmen, bookkeepers and teamsters.

THE BATTLE OF TOURNAI

Should Go Down in British History—Germans the Victors at Terrible Price

LONDON, Aug. 29, 3.30 a. m.—The Daily Mail's Boulogne correspondent, writing of the battle of Tournai, says:

"The battle of Tournai should go down in British history beside Rokes Drift and Magersfortein as a revelation of the prowess of the British army.

"At Tournai a German cavalry force of 5000 overwhelmed a British force of 750, who hourly expected relief which never appeared.

"The Germans were victors at a terrible price and only after their own ranks had been sadly thinned. The British stood their ground until all hope was lost and only 300 remained. Then they retired, calmly and coolly, carrying their wounded and harassing their pursuers all the way.

"The story of this last stand is somewhat beclouded by the British charge that the Germans finally turned the tide of battle by mounting quick firers in Red Cross wagons. The British survivors fell back on Wednesday afternoon, the fight having lasted from 11.30 in the morning. Here is the story of Tournai in brief:

"On Wednesday morning our troops had taken position slightly to the rear of the town of Tournai upon high ground. Our artillery fired effectively at first upon the German advance, but later lost the range. Toward one o'clock our position became critical.

"As every vital moment slipped by anxious eyes looked back for the promised help that was never to come. Even at the terrible disadvantage of more than ten to one, the infantry and artillery were holding their own when hordes of Uhlans seemed to suddenly swoop down from nowhere.

"Through the town they galloped with amazing disregard for themselves and up to the very muzzles of our field guns. Their losses were appalling, but survivors claim they stood their ground until armed ambulances, at least three in number, made their appearance with rapid fire guns mounted on them. Towards 2 o'clock the 300 survivors began to retire."

ARMORY A BUSY PLACE

No Chance for Letting to Outside Parties Under New Law—Annual Outing of Co. G Today

Captain Walter R. Jeyes, armorer at the local armory, when interviewed by a Sun reporter in reference to the new act of the legislature that allows for a greater use of armories for public purposes than has heretofore been possible, said: "This new bill will not affect us in the least in Lowell, for the armory is one of the busiest places in the city and with the exception of the vacation season every evening and Sunday is being taken up by military affairs."

The armorer said there is not a chance for outsiders to hold reunions of any kind at the local armory unless some of the companies agree to give up their drill or reunion dates and that is optional with the officers. He said the new act might affect some of the armories in small cities or towns but in Lowell it will bring no change.

Capt. Jeyes said it is recognized in this new act that the main purpose of an armory is for military use and every other purpose to be secondary in character and any letting of the armory is to be in a way that will not interfere with its military use, and he said this is plain for anybody. "In Lowell," he said, "the armory is being taken up every night and even Sunday forenoon and afternoon with military affairs, so it is safe to say that at no time, with the exception of the vacation season, will the armory be available to outside parties."

On Sunday morning Tabor's Sixth regiment band holds its weekly rehearsal and on Sunday afternoon a school is held for the non-commissioned officers. On Monday evenings athletics and recruit drills by the regular army sergeant or company sergeant is held.

The other evenings are taken up as follows: Tuesday, Company M's drill; Wednesday, Company C's drill; Saturday, bowling and athletics. It is expected that this fall the armory will be much more utilized for it is believed a battery section will be formed in Lowell and a Machine Gun company will take up its quarters in the state building.

The Lowell armory is recognized as the busiest of its kind in the state and it would be very difficult to let the place to other than military organizations. Besides the companies conduct social gatherings and according to the act all military affairs have precedence.

Annual Outing

Although the weather is not very favorable, the annual outing of the members of Company G is being held today at Company C's camp in Tyngsboro. The again will last two days and will be brought to a close tomorrow evening. The members of the company left this afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock and went to the camp on the shores of the Merrimack river, where a most enjoyable afternoon was spent despite the rain.

A varied list of sporting and athletic events has been arranged for the occasion and it is safe to say that keen rivalry was shown in every contest. The rules were so arranged that one man is entitled to but one prize. In the latter part of the afternoon a dainty luncheon was served, and many of the boys will spend the night at the camp. Tomorrow afternoon another list of sports will be carried out and a feature of the program will be the tub race in the river. It is expected if the weather is favorable a large number of friends of the militiamen will journey to the neighboring town tomorrow and enjoy the day out with the members of the company. The guests of the boys at the camp consist of the commissioned officers and those of the non-commissioned staff. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of the following: Sergt. Barnes, Corp. Barry, chairman; Private Carlson, Private Shaughnessey, Private McClellan.

MISS OWEN'S PARTY HEARD FROM TODAY

Cable Despatch From Italy Says Party Will Arrive in New York About Middle of September

The latest definite information received in this city concerning the whereabouts of Miss Owen's party arrived here this morning in the form of a cable message. In the party were Miss Flora A. Owen, Miss Carrie J. Bailey, Miss Sara M. Deane, Miss Ellen A. Stillings, Miss Doris B. Kerr and Mrs. Sophie W. Wing. The cable message was received by Miss Kerr's father, Mr. John Kerr of the Hamilton Mfg. Co.

The message was dated Venezia, August 29, and stated that the party would sail on the steamer Athene from Italy, arriving in New York about the middle of September.

Miss Owen's party left Lowell, July 11, sailing on that day from Boston on the S. S. Canopic of the White Star line, for Naples. Their itinerary included Naples, Rome, Florence and Venice, in Italy; Brieg, Montreux and Lucerne, in Switzerland; Baden-Baden, Mainz and Cologne, in Germany; Amsterdam and the Hague, Holland; Paris, France; London and Leamington, England. Their calculations, however, were badly crippled by the war which broke out while they were in Italy, where they were obliged to remain. Mr. Kerr received a letter from his daughter in the latter part of July, and did not hear from her again until today.

4 KILLED AT CROSSING

Train Going a Mile a Minute Crashed Into Auto—Other Auto Fatalities and Casualties

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The Long Island railroad's heavy Amagansett express crashed into an automobile containing four persons, near here late yesterday, killing all of them, and carrying three of the bodies on the front of the locomotive for a half-mile.

The train was east-bound from New York, carrying week-end commuters toward suburban Long Island, and was said to be traveling nearly a mile a minute. The victims of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Suydam and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Wilson, all of Brooklyn.

Wilson's body was carried for many yards and then fell at the trackside. He was a salesman. Suydam conducted a livery business in Brooklyn and was well known there.

The accident happened between the towns of Farmingdale and Central Park, Long Island, at what is described as one of the railroad's most dangerous crossings. The highway twists through hilly grounds on approaching the tracks, so that the view of the railroad is obstructed. A bell is the only warning to automobilists when trains are nearing the highway.

The machine had almost stopped when it struck the man.

STARTS OUT-PATIENT DEPARTMENT FOR THOSE WHO FEAR MENTAL DISEASE

WORCESTER, Aug. 29.—Worcester state hospital is to establish a new feature in its work Tuesday night, Sept. 1. It is an out-patient department, which will be open every Tuesday night from 7 to 9 o'clock for consultation by people who are suffering from nervous breakdowns or worry and who may have a fear they are to be afflicted with a mental disease.

Dr. Ernest V. Scribner, superintendent of the hospital, is at the head of the movement, and the benefits of the department will be extended to residents of cities and towns for which the Worcester hospital is responsible.

The services of the department are free. People who are suffering from nervousness, depression and other ailments, which may lead them to think that a mental disease will eventually develop, will be at liberty to present themselves for examination and treatment, and former patients of the hospital and of other institutions will be permitted to receive the benefits of the innovation by visiting the hospital and talking over their condition and getting advice.

SALEM FUND NOT SPENT

WAR DEPARTMENT, AT SUGGESTION OF SENATOR WEEKS, CONSIDERING MATTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—On a reminder from Senator Weeks that congress had appropriated $200,000 for the relief of sufferers from the Salem fire, the war department yesterday took steps to ascertain the manner in which the money might be disbursed for the greatest benefit of the greatest number.

Gen. Devol of the quartermaster's corps has been sent to Salem to study the situation and to learn from the people themselves how best they can be helped. Although the appropriation was made some time ago, the expenditure of the money was not considered promptly and in time the war department actually "forgot" that it had such a relief fund in its care.

Senator Weeks then took up the subject with Sec. Garrison, who in turn held a conference with President Wilson, and Uncle Sam's contribution to the relief of the stricken city now may be made of use.

"Shall the representative from this district be instructed to support the initiative and referendum, so as to give the voters the power to accept or reject at the polls measures that have been proposed by petition?"

Papers for the submission of this question are being distributed from the democratic state headquarters. The paper must be signed by 200 voters in a representative district in order to insure the printing of the question on the ballot. There is little doubt that the required number of signatures will be secured in many, perhaps most, of the districts in the state.

AMERICAN REFUGEES

ON BOARD HOLLAND-AMERICAN LINER ROTTERDAM WHICH SAILED TODAY

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 29.—The Holland-American liner Rotterdam sailed from this port early today for New York bearing more than 2400 passengers, of whom 1950 were American refugees from the continent. There were 1410 of the first cabin passengers, 720 of the second class and 300 steerage. Soren Listoe, American consul general here inspected the emergency first cabin accommodations and expressed himself as satisfied. Although these quarters are located in the freight hold they are quite comfortable. There are four berths to each cabin. Special culinary arrangements were made for the passengers in this section. Officers of the steamship company assured Consul Listoe that the comfort of everybody would be given first consideration. Most of the passengers expressed satisfaction with the arrangements, although some were not altogether pleased.

Henry Van Dyke, American minister, to Holland came to Rotterdam from The Hague to bid the party godspeed. In a short address he requested that they bear in mind the times and exercise patience if their eggs happen to be boiled two seconds too long. He asked the passengers to pray that the open door to Holland be kept ajar.

ANOTHER BICYCLE STOLEN

From Front of Marks' Tailor Shop on Central Street Yesterday

Bicycle thieves are busy around town and quite a few wheels have been stolen of late. The latest case happened only yesterday. Herbert Cartwright, who is employed by Marks the Tailor, in Central street, left his bicycle standing outside the store. He entered the establishment, and was gone but a few minutes, when upon returning he found his bicycle missing. He immediately notified the police who set to work upon the case. Bicycle dealers around the city have received numerous callers of late who wanted to dispose of bicycles, but as most of the dealers have been stung at one time or another, they are naturally cautious.

VALUE OF AEROPLANES

AVIATORS SAFE AT 1000 YARDS—FRENCH CLAIM AERIAL SUPERIORITY

PARIS, Aug. 29.—The value of aeroplanes in scouting work is the subject of discussion among technical observers.

"Our military aviators are rendering invaluable services," says the Temps, quoting an authority on aviation whose name is omitted for military reasons. The paper continues:

"Our aerial forces are infinitely superior to those of Germany. Besides some hundreds of military aviators all our best civilian airmen are in the service. Brindejono des Moulnais, Roland Garros, Eugene Gilbert and Jules Vedrines are all at the front. Vedrines has just completed a raid with an apparatus of extraordinary power. Something more will be heard of this later.

"The experiences of our air people shows that an aeroplane is safe from bullets when 1000 yards high, and at 2000 yards an aviator still can observe accurately with the naked eye. As our flyers can guide a machine with one hand and use glasses with the other, the masses of the enemy cannot escape observation. The most difficult thing is to determine commands by discriminating among the uniforms.

"One danger to the French airmen is from our own soldiers, who have not learned to distinguish our aeroplanes from those of the enemy. I would suggest that we do not fire upon aircraft at all unless absolutely sure that we know their identity.

The Journal de Maine-et-Loire at Angiers publishes a letter from one of the French frontier fortresses, in which the writer complains of the loneliness of the life there. It would seem that the only sport of the garrison is to watch for German aeroplanes and fire upon them. Three German airships have been brought down while the aviators were throwing bombs.

THE EMERALD ASSOCIATES

BEACHMONT SOCIETY, WITH REV. JAS. L. McGUINNESS IN CHARGE, ENJOYED TRIP TO LOWELL

The Emerald Associates of Beachmont, in charge of Rev. James L. McGuinness, formerly of Lowell, enjoyed a trolley ride to this city yesterday and after visiting all the points of interest agreed with the popular young clergyman, that Lowell is some city.

During Fr. McGuinness' stay in Lowell he made many friends and when he was assigned to the Beachmont church he told his parishioners of the many advantages of Lowell and also of the hospitality of its people. So anxious were the residents of the beach town to come to Lowell that when an outing was proposed all expressed their desire to trolley to the City of Spindles Yesterday was the day selected and the associates turned out in large numbers. Father McGuinness directed them to all the interesting places down town and then took them to Lakeview. Here they had supper and enjoyed the roller coasters, dancing and other diversions. Early in the evening they boarded their special car for home and all were loud in their praise of Lowell and congratulated Fr. McGuinness for his efficient management and averred that this year's outing was the "best ever."

GERMAN DYES COMING

WILL BE DESPATCHED TO THIS COUNTRY IN DUTCH SHIPS—REP. METZ OF NEW YORK INFORMED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—A brief cable message announcing hat Rotterdam and the chemical works along the Rhine in Germany were in communication and that the German plants would ship dyes and chemicals to Rotterdam for dispatch to America by Dutch ships was received yesterday by Representative Metz of New York.

"This means," Representative Metz said, "that the chemical industry of the United States is in touch with the German chemical factories and that they are willing to relieve the emergency that has threatened not only the chemical industry of the United States, but the textile interests and other industries which use dyes and other products of the German factories.

"It's the best news the chemical industry has received in many days, but of course it remains to be seen just what and how much the German plants now have in stock."

Mr. Metz discussed the situation today with Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and with state department officials. The question of sending Mr. Metz to Germany as a representative of the United States in the effort to open up the German sources of the world's chemical supply is held in abeyance. Ambassador Bernstorff has promised Germany's support in every way possible to facilitate shipment of chemicals for America.

One great obstacle now is the interruption of the cable to Germany.

REQUIEM MASS
